'Recreation' Memo Gladdens Marijuana Fans

A lengthy memorandum by a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare staffer—which says marijuana should be controlled like alcohol— will be introduced at an Oct. 20 court hearing for Melkon Melkonian, 33, Mill Valley mechanic twice convicted of marijuana violations.

A spokesman for the Ad Hoc Committee for the Legalization of Marijuana, which has distributed 2,800 affidavits to people who either want to confess they're marijuana smokers or protest laws against it, said the memorandum was written by HEW staff member Joseph S. Murphy, and it recommends that marijuana violations be removed from the felony class.

Murphy called marijuana a "recreational drug."

Existence of the memorandum, which yesterday elated Marin County supporters of Melkonian and legalized marijuana, has not yet been confirmed by the Department of Health, Education and welfare, but it reportedly recommends:

"A planned program of reseach to determine the pharmacological, psychological, social, economic and political feasibility of removing present restrictions on the sale and distribution of marijuana in the same fashion in which alcohol is controlled."

Murphy's report continues, "It is clear that the conventional wisdon concerning marijuana is generally uninformed. So far as an objective analysis of the problem is possible, to that degree one can only conclude that the case offered against marijuana does not hold good."

In Washington, a spokesman for HEW said the question of marijuana is under review, but "there is no departmental position paper.

"There are papers and memos around in connection with this," said the HEW spokesman, but none, he said, as specific as recommendations reported to be contained in the Murphy memo.

John H. Finlator, director of HEW's Bureau of Drug Abuse Control, said, "I do understand there are people in the department who feel that way, but whether anyone is going to present a paper is a conjecture.

"If that were to be done," he added, "our position would be that the manufacture, transport and sale of marijuana should remain a felony. But there should be no law against its use. The government tries to keep away from making laws to regulate people's morals."

Hugh A. Hinchliffe a spokesman for the Ad Hoc committee, opined that "the only real question within HEW is not whether or not to legalize marijuana — but how to go about it."

San Francisco attorney Molly Minurdi will ask San Francisco Superior Court to set aside judgement of Melkonian on grounds that marijuana laws constitute "a cruel and unusual punishment" that is unconstitutional.

Mrs. Minurdi also will use the memorandum in support of Mrs. Garnet E. Brennan, 58, Nicasio school principal who was fired after she admitted smoking marijuana for 18 years..

KLANSMEN ALIBI WITNESSES SPEAK

Court Hears Claims Suspects 'Too Good' To Have Murdered Civil Rights Workers

MERIDIAN, Miss. (UPI)— More alibi and character witnesses told an all-white jury today that 18 white men charged with conspiracy were either elsewhere at the time or too "law-biding" to have plotted the 1964 slayings of three civil rights workers.

Relatives, neighbors and friends took the stand today in U.S. District Court as the defense continued to portary the 18 defendants, including a Ku Klux Klan chief and four lawmen, as solid citizens.

The trial, which was in its sixth day, was expected to be recessed later today until 10 a.m. Monday.

The wife of one of the defendants, Jimmy Snowden, was disqualified by Judge Harold Cox as an alibi witness today after she testified she had been in the courtroom daily since the trial began. Snowden had been placed at the scene of the slayings in earlier testimony by key government witnesses.

The defense began calling wives and friends of the 18 to the stand after the government rested its case yesterday.

They attacked the credibility of key government witnesses, chiefly preacher-klansman Delmar Dennis, the FBI informer who rose to the top of the klan's White Knights and said he was helping the FBI because it was his "duty to God and my country."

The government rested its case yesterday with the alleged confession of defendant Horace Doyle Barnette, who said some of the defendants took the three victims to a secluded country road and killed them because they did not agree with their anti-segregation philosophy.

Michael Schwerner and Andrew Goodman, both white youths from New York, and James Chaney, a Negro from Meridian, were killed during Mississippi's "long, hot summer" when hundreds of civil rights workers came to Mississippi. Their deaths touched off an intense FBI search to find the bodies.

Barnette's statement accused James E. Jordan, the FBI's chief informant in the case and also a 19th defendant whose trial has been delayed in exchange for his testimony, of killing Chaney and complaining, to the others "you didn't save me anything but a nigger."

Red Bombs Barrage Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) —Communist bombs wounded four more police and 16 civilians today, including four small children, after a night of terror in which two persons were killed and 33 wounded. A British border police inspector was seized by Red Chinese and dragged across Hong Kong's border into the Communist mainland.

FOURTH KIDNAK

It was the fourth such kidnaping by the Red Chinese. The three other victims were a Hong Kong Chinese policeman and two farmers. The British inspector was trying to mediate a dispute between Hong Kong and Red Chinese farmers over a fence.

Anti-British terrorists planted more than 40 bombs throughout Hong Kong Island and across the harbor channel in Kowloon today.

CROWD BLASTED

They hurled two or three bombs into a crowd at the entrance of a Chinese fish and vegetable market in teeming Wanchai District on the island.

The wounded included four children, four men shoppers and two members of a police demolition team lured by a fake bomb call into position for the attack from a nearby tenement roof.

Ford, Union Exchange Concrete Proposals

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators for the strikebound Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union had two new contract proposals on the bargaining table today, the first solid sign of possible accord in three months of talks.

The proposals, one by Ford and a counterproposal by the union, were announced last night in terse statements after negotiators emerged from their self-imposed news blackout. Then the two sides withdrew into the blackout again.

Neither side would elaborate about either proposal, but late night talks recessed with bargainers seeming cheerful and as untalkative as at any time since the blackout was imposed at 9 p.m. Tuesday.

New negotiations were set for later today, with UAW President Walter P. Reuther and Ford's top bargainers considering the new situation, although no one would say whether there will be any face-to-face meetings.

The proposals also were the first important movement in negotiations since Sept. 6, when the old three-year contract ended and 160,000 Ford workers began the strike, now fifth longest in auto industry history.

Similar pacts also expired at General Motors and Chrysler, but the UAW named Ford as target for what it hopes will be a pattern-setting agreement and continued to work, without a formal contract, at GM and Chrysler.

Ike Turns 77, Must Forego Vietnam Trip

COMBINED AP & UPI

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)— Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, feeling "very well" and looking forward to playing some golf this winter, celebrated his 77th birthday today.

Eisenhower planned to travel to Washington today for the laying of the cornerstone of the new national Presbyterian Church. He was a member of the church during his eight years in the White House.

Immediately following the ceremony, he planned to attend a birthday luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel arranged by his old political friends.

The former president was in Washington just last weekend for a checkup at Walter Reed Army Hospital. Though doctors pronounced him fit, Eisenhower said it does not appear he will be able to visit Vietnam as he had hoped.

The general said his doctors were becoming "increasingly pessimistic" about his traveling to Southeast Asia.

Eisenhower's wife, Mamie, was by his side yesterday during a prebirthday news conference at Gettysburg College.

During the conference, the subject of Vietnam was raised and the former president

Red Attack Follows U.S. Bombing Error

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAIGON (AP) — The battered U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien was hit by a mistaken bombing from an American plane last night, killing two Marines and wounding 21, the U.S. command in Saigon disclosed.

The report of the mistaken bombing came after a fierce three-hour fight early today between Marines and attacking North Vietnamese troops a mile below Con Thien, which is just south of the demilitarized zone.

A spokesman said a Marine Corps aircraft "making a bomb run Friday evening in support of ground forces at Con Thien had two 500-pound bombs impact on the perimeter of the ground unit."

The spokesman said an investigation is under way.

Marine infantrymen, artillery and planes beat off an attempt by 500 Hanoi regulars to storm the perimeter of a Leatherneck battalion below Con Thien. The war just below the DMZ had mounted furiously.

The U.S. Command said 21 Americans were killed and 12 of the enemy were found dead on the field. There was no estimate of how many casualties the enemy troops may have carried away as they withdrew toward the mountains southwestward.

Draft Foes' Rally Defended By U.C. Chief

BERKELEY (UPI) — Chancellor Roger Heyns says he will permit an antidraft demonstration on the Universty of California's Berkeley campus despite threats of a court injunction.

Heyns, hopeful of averting a "free speech" controversy similar to the one which rocked the university in 1964, Friday approved the teach-in which is aligned with a nationwide "shaft the draft" campaign.

In rejecting demands that anti-draft groups be banned from campus, Heyns told the Alameda County Board of Supervisors in a 1,000-word statement:

..."It does not seem wise to me to exclude a group which advocates disobedience to the Selective Service Act as long as their behavior complies with the laws and university and campus rules..."

The anti-draft groups, supported by the student government, plan to hold their all-night teach-in Monday at a university auditorium in connection with "Stop the Draft Week."

Seven States Try Again To End Violence Against Steel Haulers

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A second attempt to settle a violent two-months steel haulers strike got under way here today, but most of the parties in the dispute were slow in arriving.

Th meeting began with representatives of the governors of five states and an independent group of steelhauling trucking companies.

William J. Hart, Pennsylvania state secretary of labor and industry, said he did not know if representatives of the National Steel Carriers Assn., the Teamsters Union and the striking drivers would arrive later in the day to take part in the talks.

"This is Yom Kippur. Some people can't be here because of the holy day," Hart said.

He said the governors of Ohio and New York, whose representatives were not able to get here in time, were keping in touch by telephone.

A similar session held earlier this week produced an 11-point agreement which the haulers approved but the trucking companies rejected.

When word spread of the carrirs' rejection, the violence which has marked the two-month-old strike increased in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Ex-jockey William Slocum has filed as in independent candidate.

If no candidate gets a majority Nov. 14, a runoff between the leading Republican and Democrat will be held Dec. 12. Younger, a Republican, died in office last spring.

Confusion Rife On Che Guevara Fate

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — A fact-finding commission from Ernesto Che Guevara's native Argentina has arrived in Bolivia seeking clarification of the growing confusion over reports of the guerrilla leader's death in a battle with army units this week.

One Bolivian official said the commission has asked to study the dead man's diary and fingerprints and may inspect a finger which President Rene Barrientos said was removed from the body.

A welter of conflicting reports since the announcement of Guevara's death has raised two chief questions: Whether the man killed in southeast Bolivia was actually the former top aide of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, and whether he was murdered after his capture instead of fatally wounded in battle.

Bolivian authorities insist that it was Guevara's body that was shown to newsmen in Vallegrande on Tuesday, that he was wounded in battle on Sunday and succumbed to his wounds on Monday. Gen. Alfredo Ovando, the armed forces commander, said the man identified himself as Guevara after he was captured.

The army also said on Wednesday the body had been buried, then said later it had been cremated. Immediately there was suspicion the military had something to hide.

Dr. Jose Martinez Caso, one of two doctors who examined the body, said in an interview yesterday he saw it late Monday afternoon and from its condition the man must have died about five or six hours before. But Dr. Martinez said the man had been shot in the heart and could not have lived overnight with such a wound.

Guevara's brother Roberto, who arrived from Buenos Aires Thursday and went to Vallegrande to claim the body, left for Argentina after being told the body had been cremated. He declined to say whether he believed the dead man was his brother.

In Buenos Aires, an Argentine Foreign Ministry source said the Bolivian government had confirmed army reports that Guevara's body was cremated, but Dr. Martinez said: "There are no facilities for cremation in Vallegrande. I believe he simply was buried in a common grave."

Anniversary For 'K'

MOSCO W(AP) — Former Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev today marks the third anniversary of his forced retirement.

Khrushchev and his wife Nina live in comfortable obscurity near the Soviet capital. His solitude is strictly enforced and the controlled press rarely mentions his name.

An American television network, NBC, obtained film of the ousted dictator last June showing him in retirement, building bonfires and playing with his grandchildren.

Khrushchev is seen in person publicly only at election time.

Wasps, bees, hornets and other winged insects cause more deaths in the United States than any other wild creatures.

Catholic Laymen Battling Over Birth Control Stand

ROME (UPI)—A bitter dispute over birth control rocked a Vatican-sponsored world congress of Catholic laymen today.

Harsh words about the hierarchy and demands that the laymens' views be heard added to the rebellious atmosphere. The Vatican, which had placed high hopes in the congress, listened in shocked silence.

The restive laymen stole the limelight from the 15-day-old synod of bishops, meeting in the Vatican to advise Pope Paul VI on church matters. The two neetings had been timed to coincide in the obvious assumption that the laymen would follow the bishops' guidance.

Instead, the third world congress for the lay apostolate turned into a forum for the most outspoken public debate by a Catholic group meeting in Rome under Vatican sponsorship.

Shouts and applause punctuated hours of heated arguments over birth control in the congress working group on family problems yesterday. One group battled for an outspoken appeal to the Pope to lift the church ban on artificial contraception, while others favored a mildly worded call for "responsible parenthood."

Hours of angry debate ended in deadlock and the 140-member group agreed to send the motions to their coordinating committee without a vote.

"It would be a shame if this congress leaves without making it absolutely crystal clear that the laity is furious" over the birth control ban, Anthony Spencer, director of the London Center for Pastoral Research, told the working group.

Mrs. Patricia Crowley of Chicago, who with her husband was on Pope Paul's birth control study commission, said "the big need in the church today is a clarification of the stand of the church on family planning."

"Make your feelings on this clear to the Holy Father," she urged.

The motion prepared by birth control advocates said:

"The congress draws the attention of the Holy Father to the agonizing situation in which human society finds itself today, where uncontrolled population increase threatens both the good of the family and the good of society."

Bridegroom Wins Second Escape

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Magistrate Jeanette Johnson was about to perform the marriage ceremony when the would-be groom took a deep breath and rushed from her courthouse office.

But not for long.

His would-be bride ran after him, and the couple returned in a few minutes. The young girl was beaming and the boy was red-faced and nervous.

Magistrate Johnson started the ceremony again and all was fine until she reached the words "and forsaking all others and keep ye only unto her so long as ye both shall live?"

Suddenly, the boy shouted: "I won't."

He bolted out of the office and this time the bride didn't chase him.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Temblor Detected

PASADENA (UPI) — A small earthquake jolted the Los Angeles area yesterday, but it was not strong enough to cause damage.

Jury Duty A Must

OAKLAND (UPI)—An Oakland real estate salesman has learned the hard way—by serving two days in jail and paying a $500 fine—that jury duty is not only a civic obligation but a mandatory one.

A Superior Court judge handed out the sentence when Charles P. Basnick failed to show for jury duty when summoned six different times.

When he finally showed up on the seventh call he was late.

Smog Hits South

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A stubborn air inversion bottled the Los Angeles basin for the fifth consecutive day today with a mixture of fog, smog and warm temperature.

A high of 86 degrees was forecast and the county air pollution control district predicted moderate smog would develop in the central and inland portions of the basin.

Yesterday's high was 84.

Heavy fog rolled inland from the coast during the night and hampered traffic at airports.

GOP Newspaper Set

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration plans to publish its own newspaper designed for distribution to members of official and volunteer GOP groups.

The newspaper will not be published at public expense and won't carry ads.

The publication, edited by Clyde Beane, a gubernatorial aide, will carry feature stories, pictures and quotations from Reagan speeches.

Prison Plant Probe

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—An investigation of the types of products produced by inmates in California prisons and the effects of the goods on private industry will be conducted by the Assembly Rules Committee.

Committee chairman Joe A. Gonsalves, D-La Mirada, said the committee was "very much concerned" with rehabilitation and job training programs for inmates.

But, he said, "we must not allow programs to develop that put private industry at a disadvantage in the competitive marketplace."

Latin Draft Picket

SAN JOSE (AP)—Draft headquarters in San Jose were picketed Friday by some 75 Bay Area students protesting the alleged high percentage of Mexican-Americans killed in Vietnam.

Marching without incident, the demonstrators toted Spanish language signs that translated: "No mutilation without representation." M any shouted "la raza (the race)."

Kuchel Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Santa Monica engineer says he will try to win the California Republican senatorial nomination over Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel.

S. Phillip Cammack, 32, told a news conference he decided to run while in Washington on a business trip. He said he is a project engineer for the aircraft division of Hughes Tool Co.

Cammack described himself as a conservative Republican. He said Kuchel has "lost touch with the people of California."

Alaska Search Ends

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The search for the 22 missing members of the 40-man crew of the sunken freighter Panoceanic Faith was ended at nightfall yesterday, Coast Guard headquarters said.

The ship went down in the North Pacific Monday, 870 miles southwest of Kodiak, Alaska.

Two life rafts dropped by aircraft in the vicinity were not located, ending hope of finding any further survivors.

Five members of the crew were rescued and 13 bodies were recovered.

Romney Citizenship Row Revived

NEW YORK (AP) — A constitutional law expert, entering a three-year-old controversy, says Gov. George Romney of Michigan is constitutionally ineligible to be president because he was born in Mexico.

Romney

Isidor Blum, former professor of constitutional law at New York Law School, writes in a New York Law Journal article series to be published next week that although Romney was a citizen from birth because his parents were American citizens, he does not meet the constitutional requirement that only a "natural born citizen" can be president.

Blum says that to the framers of the U.S. Consitution "natural born" meant born in the United States and that all other citizens were naturalized.

When the question was raised before, Romney said an exhaustive study in 1955 concluded that "natural born citizen" was meant to include persons born abroad to American parents.

The study was made, he said, because former Secretary of State Christian Herter, who was born in France to American parents, was being talked of as a vice presidential candidate.

GOP Women Pick Conservative

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Members of the California Federation of Republican Women heeded Gov. Ronald Reagan's warning on party unity and began closing ranks yesterday after narrowly electing a floor-nominated conservative for president over a committee-picked moderate.

Mrs. Lombardi

The women reversed the outcome of a bitter battle in the national federation last May, as they chose Mrs. Louis Lombardi of Glendale over Mrs. Laurence Rogers of Long Beach by a 124-vote margin.

Mrs. Rogers

Mrs. Lombardi, who supported the losing conservative in the national election in Washington, received 1,066 votes to the 942 received by Mrs. Rogers, who had been the 5-2 choice of the federation nominating committee.

Mrs. Rogers, choice of the moderates, moved to smooth the split vote right after the vote was announced, pledging support to the winner.

Governor Reagan warned the women Thursday night that any signs of disunity might court national disaster for the party in 1968.

LBJ Aide Denies Security Bars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walt W. Rostow, special assistant to President Johnson, denies assertions he was three times rejected for security clearance during President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration.

Rostow

A brief filed in a Civil Service case at the State Department makes the charges. It was filed last month on behalf of Otto F. Otepka, who is fighting dismissal as the department's chief security evaluations officer.

"From 1951 onward," Rostow told a reporter when asked yesterday about the brief's allegations, "I had continuous security clearance from various agencies of the federal government." Eisenhower took office in 1953.

Rostow, 51, has long had a reputation for scholarly achievement in international studies. His current White House post is that of chief adviser on international matters. He is widely regarded as one of the strong voices in the administration for U.S. firmness in Vietnam.

The late President John F. Kennedy brought Rostow into the government from Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he was a professor of economics.

The still-secret brief for Otepka was reported to develop an argument that a "get Otepka" effort had its beginning when the Kennedy administration came into office.

The Otepka case has been hanging fire for nearly four years. John F. Reilly, then a deputy assistant secretary of state, ordered Otepka dismissed in November 1963 on grounds of insubordination.

Air Search Test

BURBANK (AP) — The Air Force is conducting a three-day test of the search and rescue capabilities of the California Civil Air Patrol wing.

The test began last night when CAP emergency services personnel were sent to Fresno to begin a simulated search. Some 300 members of the CAP will take part in the annual effectiveness test.

Shriver Rumors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite his persistent denials, equally persistent Capitol Hill rumors say federal antipoverty chief Sargent Shriver plans to resign soon.

"Shriver won't be around 10 days after the poverty bill is passed by Congress," said a source close to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Shriver's brother-in-law.

Anti-Maoist Rampage In Canton Described

HONG KONG (UPI)—Red Guard publications smuggled out of China and made available today said Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung's enemies used cannons, machine-guns, firebombs and poison gas in a three-day battle which destroyed a huge Canton warehouse filled with supplies for North Vietnam.

The fight took place last month during the virtual civil war that broke out in Communist China's largest southern industrial city and had to be stopped by Red army troops.

The publications, which intelligence analysts termed "reasonably accurate," gave one of the most vivid descriptions in months of the turmoil spawned by Mao's cultural revolution.

STORIES DOUBTED

Travelers from the area had reported the fighting earlier. At the time, their reports were received with skepticism, but the two publications tended to support their stories of bloody fighting. And it supported reports that Mao's enemies had captured artillery and used it to attack government posts in the Canton area.

The publications, Hung Chi Pao and Chu-Ying Tung-Fang-Hung, said that 3,000 of Mao's enemies surrounded the huge complex of storage buildings known as the Taiku warehouse.

WAREHOUSE ROLE

"Taiku warehouse has become Canton's only warehouse for keeping tens of thousands of tons of export commodities such as foodstuffs, sugar and silk piecegoods—most ordered by buyers at the export commodity fair held in Canton last spring," one publication reported.

"Taiku warehouse thus serves as a major outlet for Canton's export items and a depository for imported goods . . . and has the heavy tasks of aiding Vietnam, resisting America, supporting Hong Kong and providing foreign trade facilities."

The publications said the anti-Mao forces attacked on Sept. 1.

Charities Take Stand

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Delegates to the National Conference of Catholic Charities have endorsed a guaranteed annual income, criticized liberalized abortion laws and opposed Social Security amendments.

Their stands were taken yesterday in a series of resolutions.

The delegates opposed the Social Security amendments now before Congress on grounds they threaten to become "instruments of oppression."

Another resolution criticized provisions that would send mothers on welfare out into "an unprotected labor market" in the name of training and jobs.

Stars To Marry

BEVERLY HILLS (AP)—Yale Summers, a star of the "Daktari" television series, and actress Suzanne Reid plan to marry tomorrow.

A spokesman for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer said a private ceremony would be held at a relative's home.

It is the first marriage for both Miss Ried, 24, and the 27-year-old Summers, who plays the animal psychologist and assistant to Daktari, Marshall Thompson.

Apollo Test Finally Is Completed

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—With a long and frustrating rehearsal countdown completed, Project Apollo officials today evaluated the test's results and aimed toward an early November launch for the first Saturn 5 moon rocket.

The countdown test was finished successfully when the 363-foot rocket came within nine seconds of blastoff late yesterday in an exercise that differed from the real thing only by the lack of engine ignition. Troubles had stretched the test from a scheduled 83-hour countdown to 16 days.

The power-packed Saturn now will undergo final flight preparations and be put through a mock flight test to make certain all systems are ready for launch. If no difficulties are encountered, it should be ready in about three weeks.

The Saturn 5 is the first of the rockets built to send men to the moon, and yesterday's countdown demonstration was a key step in the long chain of events leading toward flight.

For its first outing, the 8.7 million pound thrust rocket will drive an unmanned Apollo 4 spacecraft toward a peak altitude of 11,300 miles. The spacecraft will dive back toward a Pacific Ocean recovery fleet hours later at the 25,000 mile-an-hour reentry speed returning moon pilots will face.

In another development, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration revealed the initial unmanned flight test of the Apollo lunar module moon landing ship has been delayed from December to early next year.

12 Compete In Bay Race For Congress

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — Shirley Temple Black has been making most of the headlines, but there are 11 other candidates who have filed for that special congressional election Nov. 14 for the job held by the late Rep. J. Arthur Younger.

Mrs. Black, Hollywood's all-time top child star in the late 1930's, filed her papers on the final day yesterday. Other Republicans in the race include businessman William H. Draper, attorney Paul McCloskey, former New York Congressman Robert Barry, and San Mateo County sheriff Earl B. Whitmore.

Democrats include San Mateo City Councilman Roy Archibald, teacher Andrew Baldwin, former Ramparts Magazine publisher Edward M. Keating, attorney Patrick F. X. McGucken, attorney Daniel J. Monaco, and businessman Bryant McDonald.

Ex-jockey William Slocum has filed as in independent candidate.

If no candidate gets a majority Nov. 14, a runoff between the leading Republican and Democrat will be held Dec. 12. Younger, a Republican, died in office last spring.

WAREHOUSE ROLE

"Taiku warehouse has become Canton's only warehouse for keeping tens of thousands of tons of export commodities such as foodstuffs, sugar and silk piecegoods—most ordered by buyers at the export commodity fair held in Canton last spring," one publication reported.

"Taiku warehouse thus serves as a major outlet for Canton's export items and a depository for imported goods . . . and has the heavy tasks of aiding Vietnam, resisting America, supporting Hong Kong and providing foreign trade facilities."

The publications said the anti-Mao forces attacked on Sept. 1.

Charities Take Stand

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Delegates to the National Conference of Catholic Charities have endorsed a guaranteed annual income, criticized liberalized abortion laws and opposed Social Security amendments.

Their stands were taken yesterday in a series of resolutions.

The delegates opposed the Social Security amendments now before Congress on grounds they threaten to become "instruments of oppression."

Another resolution criticized provisions that would send mothers on welfare out into "an unprotected labor market" in the name of training and jobs.

BEVERLY HILLS (AP)—Yale Summers, a star of the "Daktari" television series, and actress Suzanne Reid plan to marry tomorrow.

It is the first marriage for both Miss Ried, 24, and the 27-year-old Summers, who plays the animal psychologist and assistant to Daktari, Marshall Thompson.

Apollo Test Finally Is Completed

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—With a long and frustrating rehearsal countdown completed, Project Apollo officials today evaluated the test's results and aimed toward an early November launch for the first Saturn 5 moon rocket.

The countdown test was finished successfully when the 363-foot rocket came within nine seconds of blastoff late yesterday in an exercise that differed from the real thing only by the lack of engine ignition. Troubles had stretched the test from a scheduled 83-hour countdown to 16 days.

The power-packed Saturn now will undergo final flight preparations and be put through a mock flight test to make certain all systems are ready for launch. If no difficulties are encountered, it should be ready in about three weeks.

The Saturn 5 is the first of the rockets built to send men to the moon, and yesterday's countdown demonstration was a key step in the long chain of events leading toward flight.

For its first outing, the 8.7 million pound thrust rocket will drive an unmanned Apollo 4 spacecraft toward a peak altitude of 11,300 miles. The spacecraft will dive back toward a Pacific Ocean recovery fleet hours later at the 25,000 mile-an-hour reentry speed returning moon pilots will face.

In another development, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration revealed the initial unmanned flight test of the Apollo lunar module moon landing ship has been delayed from December to early next year.

muddy hills two miles south of the DMZ. It has been battered repeatedly by enemy artillery, mortars and rockets since the Marines set up camp there last spring.

The fighting erupted as U.S. warplanes continued to bomb North Vietnamese MIG bases and Hanoi officials said that Communist Chinese "advisers" by the score have been killed in air attacks.

The frontier fighting came on the heels of a massive Communist barrage that sent more than 500 artillery, rocket and recoilless rifle rounds slamming into the embattled Con Thien outpost guarding major infiltration trails from the DMZ.

The North Vietnamese apparently had been hoping for a lightning victory. When the Marines held firm until daybreak, when the Communists would be more vulnerable to tactical air strikes, the enemy began pulling back to the west.

Marine helicopters swarmed into the area looking for them, flying low, daring the Communists to fire and expose themselves.

Troop-carrying helicopters shuttled Leatherneck units into blocking positions.

Officials said the attack was one of the few instances in which the Communists have used tear gas and smoke in an attack.

Shipboard Terror Is Described

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "He has a knife and he's stabbing me. Don't stab me no more."

A victim's screams jarred Frederick Pratt, 30, of Baileysville, W.Va., from sleep early Wednesday when a shipmate went berserk with a five-inch knife, stabbing 11 sailors aboard the San Diego-based destroyer Mullany.

Pratt told a news conference yesterday aboard the Mullany what happened when Machinists Mate 1. C. Roy Sattiewhite, 31, of San Diego turned the 20-by-30 foot compartment into a blood bath while the ship was cruising five miles off Camp Pendleton.

"I was awakened by the commotion," said Pratt, a shipfitter first class who turned on the lights to see the 6-foot, 200-pound Sattiewhite swinging the knife and yelling obscenities.

Pratt said he grabbed the arm holding the knife and two other men among about 60 in the compartment helped restrain the attacker.

"I gotta get outa here," Pratt quoted Sattiewhite. "I'll get all of you—come on—I'll get all of you."

Sattiewhite, married and the father of three children, escaped and jumped overboard. A search failed and he was presumed missing at sea.

The skipper of the Mullany, Cmdr. John L. Everngam Jr., 40, of Denton, Md., said he had "no clue as to what caused Sattiewhite to go berserk."

But Everngam said the sailor had "personal problems."

Sattiewhite, a 10-year veteran, was absent without leave for one night last month and was brought before the skipper. Everngam said he ordered a suspended reduction of rate, meaning Sattiewhite would be allowed one more infraction before losing one rank.

"He indicated at the time that he had personal problems but he declined to discuss them with me or anyone else," the skipper said.

Everngam said Sattiewhite normally was quiet and reserved, a "good, hard-working machinists mate. He had no close friends aboard but he was friendly with quite a few."

An official inquiry may be concluded next week, Everngam said.

Meanwhile, seven of the victims were reported in good condition at Long Beach Naval Hospital. Four others have been returned to duty and one did not require hospital treatment.

NOT FLYING SAUCERS?

Veterinarian Says Horse Died Of More Mundane Troubles

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — Snippy the horse may have been done in by an infection and varmints of the prairie, but he certainly was not killed by a flying saucer, a Colorado State University scientist says.

Dr. Robert O. Adams of the university's college of veterinary medicine and biomedical sciences, examined the carcass and reported yesterday there were natural, earthbound explanations for everything he found.

"I know it's going to pop the bubble, but the horse was not killed by a flying saucer," he said.

The flying saucer theory was advanced by Snippy's owner, Mrs. Berle Lewis, after the 3-year-old Appaloosa gelding's carcass was found on a remote prairie 20 miles northeast of here, with all flesh stripped from the neck and head.

Mrs. Lewis also reported finding exhaust-like marks in the area, a high level of radioactivity and no tracks around the horse.

Mrs. Lewis' view was shared by many residents of this sparsely populated San Luis Valley, where reported sightings of unidentified flying objects are common.

Later checks showed a normal radiation level, and Adams said he found nothing indicating an extraterrestrial visitor.

He said his findings were speculative, but said, "There was some evidence that severe infection had been present in the right flank area. That can kill a horse in a short time."

He said he also found evidence that the skin in front of the shoulder had been incised. This, he continued, could mean someone found Snippy down and suffering and ended the pain by cutting his throat.

Mrs. Lewis, however, held fast to her flying saucer theory. She said Adams failed to explain the absence of blood on the ground, the absence of tracks in the area and the odor.

DRAFT

onstrators plan to circle the Oakland Army Induction Center with pickets as part of the effort to discourage young men from being drafted. The center normally processes 300 men daily.

But county supervisors, fearing the campus may become a base from which to mount demonstrations at the center, have threatened legal action against the university administration.

They accused the school of permitting students to use the campus as a command post to plan illegal demonstrations.

Upon learning of Heyns' refusal to ban the teach-in, Robert E. Hannon, chairman of the county board of supervisors, and yesterday he would meet with the supervisor's attorney to determine whether an injunction will be sought.

Meanwhile, the anti-draft groups proceeded with plans to demonstrate at the Federal Building in San Francisco and at the induction center next week. Folksinger Joan Baez announced Friday that she would join the demonstrations at the Oakland center.

Novatan, 41, Survives Shot Wound

A 41-year-old Novato man shot himself in the mouth today with a rifle and lived, police said.

Jack Dilbert Deen, of 1145 Elm Street, Apt. 7., told police "I did it myself, I wanted to be with Betty," when they found him in an alley at 5:54 a.m. behind 875 Grant Avenue.

Deen had put the muzzle of a .22 caliber bolt-action rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger, police reported. He was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital. Police said the bullet disintegrated, damaging his nose and teeth.

Deen, police said, was a friend of Mrs. Betty Saunders Anderson, 38, of 1150 Cambridge Street, Novato, who fatally shot herself July 11, after a disagreement with Deen.

Cruelty Charge Follows Horse Hauling Case

A soap company truck driver was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a charge of mishandling an aged, sickly horse which later had to be shot by a sheriff's deputy.

Americo John Giubergia, an employee of the Royal Tallow and Soap Co. in Petaluma, is accused of hauling the animal unsecured in the rear of a truck from Muir Beach Aug. 17.

Bernard M. Weller, a state humane officer, noticed the animal fall into the side of the truck near Sausalito, halted Giubergia, and summoned a deputy to kill the animal.

The complaint was digned by Mrs. Evelyn Pervier of Muir Beach, who had arranged for removal of the horse and said Giubergia had failed to live up to an agreement to kill the horse before taking it away.

Giubergia is to plead to the misdemeanor at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

criticized outspoken opponents of the Johnson administration's Vietnam policies. He said they are "assuming an expertise that they do not possess.

"When we get into trouble abroad, we've got to follow our leaders," Eisenhower said. "If we do dissent, we ought to be more moderate in our tones and our emphasis. No man is so all-seeing that he can afford to be arrogant."

Dwight D. Eisenhower was asked who he thought had a chance in 1968 for the Republican presidential nomination.

The general began reeling off names. . .New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. . .Michigan Gov. George Romney . . . California Gov. Ronald Reagan . . . Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond Shafer. . .

Then, his wife of 51 years, Mamie, leaned over and whispered something in her husband's ear.

Gas Chamber Date Faces New Delay

A new court test will stay the execution set Wednesday in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber for Leaman Russell Smith, 37, convicted of killing two security officers in Los Angeles.

U.S. District Judge William T. Sweigert promised a ruling before 4 p.m. Monday on Smith's right to contest the state's death penalty procedures. The judge indicated he would order a stay of execution to allow appeal if he rules against Smith.

Smith's attorney, Anthony Asterdam, argued that Smith was denied due process because he was deprived of a court-appointed attorney most of the time while his appeal was decided by the state Supreme Court.

If Smith's execution is stayed, only one of the 61 men now on death row will have an execution date. Robert Lee Massie, 26, who killed a San Gabriel woman during a robbery, is to die Nov. 2.

Reagan is traveling east on a six-passenger chartered jet.

The second national speech-making tour of the governor also is certain to continue speculation about his chances for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination. Reagan insists he intends to remain governor of California, and that his Eastern trips are an obligation as a party leader.

halted road traffic to and from the airport but no flights were affected. Military experts defused the bomb.

Communist newspapers said the bombs were a welcome for Lord Shepherd, British minister of state for Commonwealth affairs, who arrived yesterday to survey the situation. The newspapers called for more terrorism.

WAR

muddy hills two miles south of the DMZ. It has been battered repeatedly by enemy artillery, mortars and rockets since the Marines set up camp there last spring.

The fighting erupted as U.S. warplanes continued to bomb North Vietnamese MIG bases and Hanoi officials said that Communist Chinese "advisers" by the score have been killed in air attacks.

The frontier fighting came on the heels of a massive Communist barrage that sent more than 500 artillery, rocket and recoilless rifle rounds slamming into the embattled Con Thien outpost guarding major infiltration trails from the DMZ.

The North Vietnamese apparently had been hoping for a lightning victory. When the Marines held firm until daybreak, when the Communists would be more vulnerable to tactical air strikes, the enemy began pulling back to the west.

Marine helicopters swarmed into the area looking for them, flying low, daring the Communists to fire and expose themselves.

Troop-carrying helicopters shuttled Leatherneck units into blocking positions.

Officials said the attack was one of the few instances in which the Communists have used tear gas and smoke in an attack.

Shipboard Terror Is Described

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "He has a knife and he's stabbing me. Don't stab me no more."

A victim's screams jarred Frederick Pratt, 30, of Baileysville, W.Va., from sleep early Wednesday when a shipmate went berserk with a five-inch knife, stabbing 11 sailors aboard the San Diego-based destroyer Mullany.

Pratt told a news conference yesterday aboard the Mullany what happened when Machinists Mate 1. C. Roy Sattiewhite, 31, of San Diego turned the 20-by-30 foot compartment into a blood bath while the ship was cruising five miles off Camp Pendleton.

"I was awakened by the commotion," said Pratt, a shipfitter first class who turned on the lights to see the 6-foot, 200-pound Sattiewhite swinging the knife and yelling obscenities.

Pratt said he grabbed the arm holding the knife and two other men among about 60 in the compartment helped restrain the attacker.

"I gotta get outa here," Pratt quoted Sattiewhite. "I'll get all of you—come on—I'll get all of you."

Sattiewhite, married and the father of three children, escaped and jumped overboard. A search failed and he was presumed missing at sea.

The skipper of the Mullany, Cmdr. John L. Everngam Jr., 40, of Denton, Md., said he had "no clue as to what caused Sattiewhite to go berserk."

But Everngam said the sailor had "personal problems."

Sattiewhite, a 10-year veteran, was absent without leave for one night last month and was brought before the skipper. Everngam said he ordered a suspended reduction of rate, meaning Sattiewhite would be allowed one more infraction before losing one rank.

"He indicated at the time that he had personal problems but he declined to discuss them with me or anyone else," the skipper said.

Everngam said Sattiewhite normally was quiet and reserved, a "good, hard-working machinists mate. He had no close friends aboard but he was friendly with quite a few."

An official inquiry may be concluded next week, Everngam said.

Meanwhile, seven of the victims were reported in good condition at Long Beach Naval Hospital. Four others have been returned to duty and one did not require hospital treatment.

NOT FLYING SAUCERS?

Veterinarian Says Horse Died Of More Mundane Troubles

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — Snippy the horse may have been done in by an infection and varmints of the prairie, but he certainly was not killed by a flying saucer, a Colorado State University scientist says.

Dr. Robert O. Adams of the university's college of veterinary medicine and biomedical sciences, examined the carcass and reported yesterday there were natural, earthbound explanations for everything he found.

"I know it's going to pop the bubble, but the horse was not killed by a flying saucer," he said.

The flying saucer theory was advanced by Snippy's owner, Mrs. Berle Lewis, after the 3-year-old Appaloosa gelding's carcass was found on a remote prairie 20 miles northeast of here, with all flesh stripped from the neck and head.

Mrs. Lewis also reported finding exhaust-like marks in the area, a high level of radioactivity and no tracks around the horse.

Mrs. Lewis' view was shared by many residents of this sparsely populated San Luis Valley, where reported sightings of unidentified flying objects are common.

Later checks showed a normal radiation level, and Adams said he found nothing indicating an extraterrestrial visitor.

He said his findings were speculative, but said, "There was some evidence that severe infection had been present in the right flank area. That can kill a horse in a short time."

He said he also found evidence that the skin in front of the shoulder had been incised. This, he continued, could mean someone found Snippy down and suffering and ended the pain by cutting his throat.

Mrs. Lewis, however, held fast to her flying saucer theory. She said Adams failed to explain the absence of blood on the ground, the absence of tracks in the area and the odor.

DRAFT

onstrators plan to circle the Oakland Army Induction Center with pickets as part of the effort to discourage young men from being drafted. The center normally processes 300 men daily.

But county supervisors, fearing the campus may become a base from which to mount demonstrations at the center, have threatened legal action against the university administration.

They accused the school of permitting students to use the campus as a command post to plan illegal demonstrations.

Upon learning of Heyns' refusal to ban the teach-in, Robert E. Hannon, chairman of the county board of supervisors, and yesterday he would meet with the supervisor's attorney to determine whether an injunction will be sought.

Meanwhile, the anti-draft groups proceeded with plans to demonstrate at the Federal Building in San Francisco and at the induction center next week. Folksinger Joan Baez announced Friday that she would join the demonstrations at the Oakland center.

Novatan, 41, Survives Shot Wound

A 41-year-old Novato man shot himself in the mouth today with a rifle and lived, police said.

Jack Dilbert Deen, of 1145 Elm Street, Apt. 7., told police "I did it myself, I wanted to be with Betty," when they found him in an alley at 5:54 a.m. behind 875 Grant Avenue.

Deen had put the muzzle of a .22 caliber bolt-action rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger, police reported. He was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital. Police said the bullet disintegrated, damaging his nose and teeth.

Deen, police said, was a friend of Mrs. Betty Saunders Anderson, 38, of 1150 Cambridge Street, Novato, who fatally shot herself July 11, after a disagreement with Deen.

Cruelty Charge Follows Horse Hauling Case

A soap company truck driver was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a charge of mishandling an aged, sickly horse which later had to be shot by a sheriff's deputy.

Americo John Giubergia, an employee of the Royal Tallow and Soap Co. in Petaluma, is accused of hauling the animal unsecured in the rear of a truck from Muir Beach Aug. 17.

Bernard M. Weller, a state humane officer, noticed the animal fall into the side of the truck near Sausalito, halted Giubergia, and summoned a deputy to kill the animal.

The complaint was digned by Mrs. Evelyn Pervier of Muir Beach, who had arranged for removal of the horse and said Giubergia had failed to live up to an agreement to kill the horse before taking it away.

Giubergia is to plead to the misdemeanor at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

criticized outspoken opponents of the Johnson administration's Vietnam policies. He said they are "assuming an expertise that they do not possess.

"When we get into trouble abroad, we've got to follow our leaders," Eisenhower said. "If we do dissent, we ought to be more moderate in our tones and our emphasis. No man is so all-seeing that he can afford to be arrogant."

Dwight D. Eisenhower was asked who he thought had a chance in 1968 for the Republican presidential nomination.

The general began reeling off names. . .New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. . .Michigan Gov. George Romney . . . California Gov. Ronald Reagan . . . Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond Shafer. . .

Then, his wife of 51 years, Mamie, leaned over and whispered something in her husband's ear.

Gas Chamber Date Faces New Delay

A new court test will stay the execution set Wednesday in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber for Leaman Russell Smith, 37, convicted of killing two security officers in Los Angeles.

U.S. District Judge William T. Sweigert promised a ruling before 4 p.m. Monday on Smith's right to contest the state's death penalty procedures. The judge indicated he would order a stay of execution to allow appeal if he rules against Smith.

Smith's attorney, Anthony Asterdam, argued that Smith was denied due process because he was deprived of a court-appointed attorney most of the time while his appeal was decided by the state Supreme Court.

If Smith's execution is stayed, only one of the 61 men now on death row will have an execution date. Robert Lee Massie, 26, who killed a San Gabriel woman during a robbery, is to die Nov. 2.

too early to make a decision."

Reagan is traveling east on a six-passenger chartered jet.

The second national speech-making tour of the governor also is certain to continue speculation about his chances for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination. Reagan insists he intends to remain governor of California, and that his Eastern trips are an obligation as a party leader.

Then Reagan goes to New York for a Sunday television interview, and on board a luxury liner Monday for the National Governor's Conference, to be held during a cruise to the Virgin Islands.

Kim Stewart, with the U.S. Army, claimed Suzanne Peterson as his bride on Sept. 24 at the West Acton Baptist Church in Acton, Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Peterson of Acton, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Stewart of Mill Valley.

Check Pattern's Length Before—

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

I recently had a sad experience and I thought I would pass the information on to you. I am not considered tall, but have always cut several inches off my pattern before I cut it out. The last time I did this, my dress turned out to be too short. You just can't seem to depend on patterns.

MRS. V. A.

DEAR MRS. V.A.

This is a good warning to everyone to check this point out before cutting their garment. If you are using a pattern that has just come off the press, it will undoubtedly be cut shorter than one that has been available for over a year. New patterns gradually replace the old ones. Remember this when a new style or trend appears.

Ruth Dethlefs, Des Moines, Iowa, is this week's tailor trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

Many times I've made the mistake of pulling against a spool of thread to break the thread. Then, the broken end becomes embedded in the spool and you can't find the beginning thread again. I now take a discarded toothbrush and brush vigorously one way, then the other, and it never fails to bring up that elusive end without ruining the spool of thread by cutting into it.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

I have so much trouble finishing "V" necklines. After I have stitched and clipped the point and turned it, the point always seems to fray out. What am I doing wrong?

MRS. A. D. M

DEAR MRS. A. D. M.:

Sounds like one of two things. First, if you haven't underlined the garment, you must place a small piece of fabric on the wrong side of your garment, covering the "V". Machine stitch, with a very short stitch, one inch each side of the point, taking one stitch straight across at the point. If the fabric is extremely loosely woven, press on a small patch of press-on interfacing before the reinforced stitching is done.

Pin the facing to your dress, and stitch over the exact row of stitching you made for the reinforcement. Clip right down to the last stitch. Turn the facing to wrong side, hold flat with all seams facing toward facing, and machine stitch close to the seam on the facing. This is called understitching and will prevent the facing from working up and showing from the right side.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

Does it really matter which side you use for the right side of 100 per cent wool?

MRS. G. M.

DEAR MRS. G. M.:

The right side of the wool is always folded inside. With your more expensive woolens, both sides are finished practically the same and it would be a matter of preference as to color and texture. It is possible to use the wrong side; just be sure to cut all of the garment one way or the other.

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

When you are lining a wool dress, is it necessary to line the sleeves as well?

MRS. R.T

DEAR MRS. R.T.:

Usually the sleeves are not lined. It is important to keep the sleeves as flexible as possible for ease. If the wool is irritating to your skin, as it is with many women, you will have to underline it with a very soft, lightweight fabric.

BEFORE YOUR BABY COMES

Food Sunshine And Health

Sixth in a 10-part series on care during pregnancy for a healthy child and mother, written by Virginia Apgar, M.D. for the National Foundation, March of Dimes.

Gaining weight is normal when you're pregnant. But gaining only normal weight is normal. And the average normal gain is 15 to 20 pounds, depending on your weight before pregnancy.

Your doctor is your menu-maker. He'll even tell you how much salt you may use. What he says goes — goes into your mouth, into your stomach, into your blood, and into your baby.

YOU MIGHT NEED something extra or different from the following list of foods that have general approval. But most mothers and babies-to-be should have, every single day:

1 quart of milk
1 bowl of whole grain cereal
2 servings of meat, or fish or chicken
1 or 2 eggs
1 cooked vegetable
1 raw vegetable or salad
1 potatoe, or a little rice or noodles or macaroni
2 oranges, or a half a grapefruit and an orange, or an orange and a tomato
2 or 3 slices of whole wheat bread
a little butter.

TAKE TIME TO EAT QUIETLY — let your mealtime be a restful time. Don't eat when you're nervous or over-tired, and remember that worry never helps.

Stand in the sun, or walk in the sun and you just naturally get a gift from the sun. Not only the feeling of well-being, but an actual gift of vitamin D. If you don't get enough sunshine where you live, or if you're forming your baby during a sunless winter, your doctor may prescribe additional vitamins. Don't take extra vitamins unless your physician prescribes them.

SICK TO YOUR STOMACH? One morning, without much warning, you might feel like you're going to "upchuck." Your mother and grandmother called it "morning sickness." It doesn't always happen, but if it does — remember that it happens to two women out of every three, in the early weeks of expecting. It also helps to remember it seldom lasts past the third month.

If it should happen one morning, be ready for the next morning. An empty stomach has a lot to do with that feeling of nausea. So put a couple of crackers by your bed, before you go to sleep, and eat them the first thing in the morning, before you get out of bed. Don't even lift your head from the pillow. Just lie flat and still for about 20 minutes after you eat the crackers.

Try to take a little something in your stomach throughout the day. Not another meal between meals! Crackers — milk — some fruit juice — not fattening goodies.

Skip butter on breakfast toast. Stop frying food. For a while, you might have to cut out cabbage and cauliflower and spinach — they are sometimes upsetting to a queasy stomach.

DRINK LOTS OF LIQUIDS — at least six glasses a day. If water sometimes makes you feel sick to your stomach, take milk, or ginger ale or cocoa. And lie down during the day — lie down flat whenever the upset feeling comes on.

If you should actually vomit, more than once or twice — tell your doctor. Sometimes smoking a cigarette will cause that sick-stomach feeling. If this happens, be glad. Put out the cigarette! Smoke less and less if you're a heavy smoker. Heavy smoking may slow your baby's growth.

If you drink — cut your intake down, if not out. Alcohol can upset a stomach that is uneasy to begin with.

Brian Steadman Claims Bride In Hillsborough Rite

The home of the bride's parents in Hillsborough was the setting for the Sept. 23. wedding of Barbara Lee Lewis and Brian Howard Steadman of Corte Madera. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis.

Brian is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Monte G. Steadman of Corte Madera.

BEFORE YOUR BABY COMES

Food Sunshine And Health

Sixth in a 10-part series on care during pregnancy for a healthy child and mother, written by Virginia Apgar, M.D. for the National Foundation, March of Dimes.

Gaining weight is normal when you're pregnant. But gaining only normal weight is normal. And the average normal gain is 15 to 20 pounds, depending on your weight before pregnancy.

Your doctor is your menu-maker. He'll even tell you how much salt you may use. What he says goes — goes into your mouth, into your stomach, into your blood, and into your baby.

YOU MIGHT NEED something extra or different from the following list of foods that have general approval. But most mothers and babies-to-be should have, every single day:

1 quart of milk
1 bowl of whole grain cereal
2 servings of meat, or fish or chicken
1 or 2 eggs
1 cooked vegetable
1 raw vegetable or salad
1 potatoe, or a little rice or noodles or macaroni
2 oranges, or a half a grapefruit and an orange, or an orange and a tomato
2 or 3 slices of whole wheat bread
a little butter.

TAKE TIME TO EAT QUIETLY — let your meal-time be a restful time. Don't eat when you're nervous or over-tired, and remember that worry never helps.

Stand in the sun, or walk in the sun and you just naturally get a gift from the sun. Not only the feeling of well-being, but an actual gift of vitamin D. If you don't get enough sunshine where you live, or if you're forming your baby during a sunless winter, your doctor may prescribe additional vitamins. Don't take extra vitamins unless your physician prescribes them.

SICK TO YOUR STOMACH? One morning, without much warning, you might feel like you're going to "upchuck." Your mother and grandmother called it "morning sickness." It doesn't always happen, but if it does — remember that it happens to two women out of every three, in the early weeks of expecting. It also helps to remember it seldom lasts past the third month.

If it should happen one morning, be ready for the next morning. An empty stomach has a lot to do with that feeling of nausea. So put a couple of crackers by your bed, before you go to sleep, and eat them the first thing in the morning, before you get out of bed. Don't even lift your head from the pillow. Just lie flat and still for about 20 minutes after you eat the crackers.

Try to take a little something in your stomach throughout the day. Not another meal between meals! Crackers — milk — some fruit juice — not fattening goodies.

Skip butter on breakfast toast. Stop frying food. For a while, you might have to cut out cabbage and cauliflower and spinach — they are sometimes upsetting to a queasy stomach.

DRINK LOTS OF LIQUIDS — at least six glasses a day. If water sometimes makes you feel sick to your stomach, take milk, or ginger ale or cocoa. And lie down during the day — lie down flat whenever the upset feeling comes on.

If you should actually vomit, more than once or twice — tell your doctor. Sometimes smoking a cigarette will cause that sick-stomach feeling. If this happens, be glad. Put out the cigarette! Smoke less and less if you're a heavy smoker. Heavy smoking may slow your baby's growth.

If you drink — cut your intake down, if not out. Alcohol can upset a stomach that is uneasy to begin with.

CONCERT REVIEW

Good Performance Is Poorly Attended

By MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

Last night's concert by the Mills Performing Group — some of the finest Bay Area musicians — as the second musical offering in the College of Marin fall concert-lecture series was one of the most fascinating and original programs we have heard in Marin.

Yet there were only 28 people present in the theater of the new fine arts complex just completed.

Since pervious series have been well attended, we believe a large part of the reason was lack of information on fall programs and the magnificent facilities in this auditorium.

COMFORTABLE SETTING

It was a thrilling experience to be able to hear fine music for the first time in Marin in a comfortable setting worthy of it.

Composed of Mills College faculty-artists, the group included such top musicians as violinist Nathan Rubin, cellist Bonnie Hampton, pianist Naomi Sparrow, clarinetist Donald O'Brien and percussionist Jean Le Roux.

The program paid tribute to American composers, stressing contemporary sounds. The first part, an exception, honored Benjamin Franklin. The first number, "Apotheosis of Lully," by Couperin — chosen because it was the kind of music Franklin probably heard in Paris — was agreeable and unusually organized.

But the surprise was a string quartet by Franklin himself. Through a special method of tuning, the whole composition was played on the open strings without any fingering whatsoever — an unheard of feat!

In the three pieces of Henry Cowell, played by pianist Naomi Sparrow, the audience heard sounds created by this American composer many years ago that were very much like those performed by the full ensemble in a 1967 composition, "Session III" by William Bolcom, featuring percussion.

In the piano, the strange effects were created by playing the strings directly within the grand or by pounding out tone clusters with the fists. Results were enchanting, eerie, stunning or laughable. We would call it experiments in sound rather than music, but it was a stimulating experience.

CRAZY TITLE

Tuneful despite its crazy title was "The Gall Bladder Operation," by Marin Marais, consisting of the recitation of gory details by O'Brien, while the piano and cello played melodious music.

Chosen because it showed the influence of American music — particularly jazz — on Bartok was his "Contrasts," a work commissioned by Benny Goodman. O'Brien's clarinet playing was sensational, and Rubin on the violin and Naomi Sparrow at the piano were practically the same. It made a brilliant finale for the evening.

Trio May Die For Attack On Actress

MANILA (UPI)—A female judge, in a sensational trial broadcast live to the nation, today sentenced four Filipino youths from wealthy families to die in the electric chair for kidnaping and raping a young movie actress.

The case became one of the most dramatic in Philippine history because the actress filed her complaint personally with President Ferdinand Marcos. She did it because, she said, she feared lower officials might be influenced by the families of the defendants.

Two of the youths, one the son of a former Manila police chief, broke down and cried. But the other two showed no emotion as Judge Lourdes San Diego handed down the first death sentences in her career.

Maggie De la Riva, 24, the victim of the attack, was not in Court.

She wept too, when the sentence was announced, but said:

"This is a triumph of justice and a vindication of my name and honor. I hope this will be a deterrent to sex maniacs."

The defendents were Jaime Jose, 21, Edgardo Aquino, 26, Rogelio Canial, 24, and Basilio Pineda Jr., 25.

CHILLER SNIFFING FATAL TO BOY

MARTINEZ (UPI) — Coroner L. H. Fraser said Friday that David Parinella, 16, Concord, died on June 7 because he sniffed gas from an aerosol spray can used for chilling cocktail glasses.

The youth brings to at least seven the number of persons who have died after sniffing the gas, known as Freon F-12, for "kicks," Fraser said.

Thief Empties Cash Register

Thefts of $180 from a cash register and a tachometer from a locked car were reported today by San Rafael police.

At the Record King, 1134 Fourth Street, police said, cash and checks worth $180 were stolen from a register near the front door of the store. Clerk Marie F. Irwin said she discovered the theft upon returning from the rear of the store.

The tachometer was taken Thursday night while his car was parked in his open carport, reported John J. Lynch of 62 Fair Drive. There was no sign of forced entry.

Hattie McDaniels Wins Equal Billing

NEW YORK (AP) — The late Hattie McDaniels, first Negro to win an Academy Award, is being given equal billing with Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh in the revival of the film, "Gone With The Wind."

The Rivoli Theater, at Seventh Avenue and 50th Street, agreed Friday to change its marquee. Civil rights demonstrators marched twice during the week outside the theater to protest what they termed "the injustice to Afro-American achievements" in not giving Miss McDaniels equal status in the film's credits.

Menon To U.N.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — V.K. Krishna Menon is scheduled to fly to New York Monday and plans to discuss the Middle East situation with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, a Menon aide said yesterday.

The leftist former Indian defense minister will stop off en route at Canada, the aide said, where he will take part in an international teach-in at the University of Toronto.

Trio May Die For Attack On Actress

MANILA (UPI)—A female judge, in a sensational trial broadcast live to the nation, today sentenced four Filipino youths from wealthy families to die in the electric chair for kidnaping and raping a young movie actress.

The case became one of the most dramatic in Philippine history because the actress filed her complaint personally with President Ferdinand Marcos. She did it because, she said, she feared lower officials might be influenced by the families of the defendants.

Two of the youths, one the son of a former Manila police chief, broke down and cried. But the other two showed no emotion as Judge Lourdes San Diego handed down the first death sentences in her career.

Maggie De la Riva, 24, the victim of the attack, was not in Court.

She wept too, when the sentence was announced, but said:

"This is a triumph of justice and a vindication of my name and honor. I hope this will be a deterrent to sex maniacs."

The defendents were Jaime Jose, 21, Edgardo Aquino, 26, Rogelio Canial, 24, and Basilio Pineda Jr., 25.

CHILLER SNIFFING FATAL TO BOY

MARTINEZ (UPI) — Coroner L. H. Fraser said Friday that David Parinella, 16, Concord, died on June 7 because he sniffed gas from an aerosol spray can used for chilling cocktail glasses.

The youth brings to at least seven the number of persons who have died after sniffing the gas, known as Freon F-12, for "kicks," Fraser said.

Thief Empties Cash Register

Thefts of $180 from a cash register and a tachometer from a locked car were reported today by San Rafael police.

At the Record King, 1134 Fourth Street, police said, cash and checks worth $180 were stolen from a register near the front door of the store. Clerk Marie F. Irwin said she discovered the theft upon returning from the rear of the store.

The tachometer was taken Thursday night while his car was parked in his open carport, reported John J. Lynch of 62 Fair Drive. There was no sign of forced entry.

Hattie McDaniels Wins Equal Billing

NEW YORK (AP) — The late Hattie McDaniels, first Negro to win an Academy Award, is being given equal billing with Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh in the revival of the film, "Gone With The Wind."

The Rivoli Theater, at Seventh Avenue and 50th Street, agreed Friday to change its marquee. Civil rights demonstrators marched twice during the week outside the theater to protest what they termed "the injustice to Afro-American achievements" in not giving Miss McDaniels equal status in the film's credits.

Menon To U.N.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — V.K. Krishna Menon is scheduled to fly to New York Monday and plans to discuss the Middle East situation with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, a Menon aide said yesterday.

The leftist former Indian defense minister will stop off en route at Canada, the aide said, where he will take part in an international teach-in at the University of Toronto.

GLENWOOD FOREST

Perhaps we are a bit premature, but we have had so many inquiries from people expressing an interest in this beautiful quiet and secluded area, that we have opened a temporary office, and are now taking reservations on the limited number of breathtaking view sites and secluded sites which are encompassed by trees. The new model homes are not built, and the streets are not paved, but the sites are ready. Wear your old clothes because it is dusty. We are sure that when you see this exciting setting, which we feel is outstanding and cannot be duplicated, you will be pleasantly surprised.

Our salesmen will be on the site all day Saturday, Sunday, October 14th & 15th. During the following week by appointment. The phone at the site is 454-3768, or call 479-9611 for further information.

GLENWOOD FOREST

Perhaps we are a bit premature, but we have had so many inquiries from people expressing an interest in this beautiful quiet and secluded area, that we have opened a temporary office, and are now taking reservations on the limited number of breathtaking view sites and secluded sites which are encompassed by trees. The new model homes are not built, and the streets are not paved, but the sites are ready. Wear your old clothes because it is dusty. We are sure that when you see this exciting setting, which we feel is outstanding and cannot be duplicated, you will be pleasantly surprised.

Our salesmen will be on the site all day Saturday, Sunday, October 14th & 15th. During the following week by appointment. The phone at the site is 454-3768, or call 479-9611 for further information.

HISTORIC TREASURE

The grace of an earlier California is evident throughout this restored Victorian, built for Gen. Butler in 1856. A famous landmark, the house sits atop a knoll surrounded by 4 acres, and has 5 plus bedrooms, 3½ baths, family room and den, and 4 fireplaces! A complete remodelling was done in 1963, providing for a modern kitchen and bathrooms. But reminders of its historic past are to be found in the home's antique Americana.

HISTORIC TREASURE

The grace of an earlier California is evident throughout this restored Victorian, built for Gen. Butler in 1856. A famous landmark, the house sits atop a knoll surrounded by 4 acres, and has 5 plus bedrooms, 3½ baths, family room and den, and 4 fireplaces! A complete remodelling was done in 1963, providing for a modern kitchen and bathrooms. But reminders of its historic past are to be found in the home's antique Americana.

New Cars Suddenly Sprout Fins Again

WOBURN, Mass. (AP) — A two-mile-long traffic jam on Route 93 yesterday was blamed on fresh mish.

State police said the fish spilled from a truck which overturned. Several accidents were reported in the area as motorists lost control of cars in the slippery mess.

"We had a foot of fish across the northbound lane," police said. "Traffic was tied up for three hours."

ONE WAY TO END WAR

Hippies Try Pentagon Witchcraft

NEW YORK (AP) — If the Pentagon rises 300 feet into the air and then disintegrates on Oct. 21, a group of East Village hippies will be elated but unsurprised.

After all, they spent more than an hour yesterday in a trial run of a magical ceremony exorcising the Pentagon to make sure everything goes off without a hitch during the peace rally scheduled for Washington next weekend.

A young man with long hair and long mustache said the hippies want the Defense Department headquarters destroyed because "the Pentagon is the actual and mythical symbol of evil in our time."

One hippie said the people in the Pentagon won't be hurt, just purified.

As an audience of about 200 antiwar hippie demonstrators at the Village Theater waved lighted amber musk joss sticks and jiggled bells against a background of shrill electronic sounds, the ceremonies got under way.

Onstage at the direction of poet Ed Sanders ritual participants daubed themselves with green paint because of its magical properties to offset red, the color of Mars, god of war. Then they spread magical cornmeal, symbol of the earth goddess, in a circle around a table-size scale cardboard model of the Pentagon.

A picture of the Pentagon was burned in the name of the spirit of fire. "Burn, baby, burn!" cried some spectators.

As the ritualists, their faces streaked with green paint, joined hands and circled the Pentagon chanting, "Up, demon! Up, demon!" the audience stood and joined the shouting. The electronic wailing ascended to an intolerable pitch.

Slowly the cardboard Pentagon rose. The elevating wires attached to the five points glistened in the lights of the multicolored psychedelic backdrop, but the crowd went as wild as if it had been the real thing.

The cardboard model will be burned, a hippie leader said, and the ashes buried in a consecrated bottle near the Pentagon. Then at the time of the Oct. 21 demonstration, he explained, before 1,200 people try to ring the Pentagon for the exorcism ceremony, the bottle will be exhumed and the ashes strewn on the Pentagon steps.

Do the hippies seriously think they can destroy the Pentagon with ritual magic?

Christianity's Drug Origins Hotly Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — An expert on the Dead Sea Scrolls today dismissed as "sheer fantasy" the claims of a British professor that the scrolls suggest that Christianity had its roots in a drug- taking cult akin to LSD trippers.

The Rev. James A. Sanders, a Biblical scholar and member of the 12-man international team working on the scrolls, said "no evidence whatever" has been found of such a condition.

He referred to remarks in London Friday by John Marce Allegro, a lecturer at Manchester University, who said his studies of the scrolls indicated the New Testament was "just a cover story" for Christianity's actual origins.

Allegro, a Hebrew-language specialist, said that when the precursors of Christianity, the Old Testament prophets, had visions, they were probably "taking a trip" on LSD or something like it.

Asked for comment Dr. Sanders said, "One wonders if Mr. Allegro took a little LSD himself before offering these historical misconstructions."

He added: "This sensational kind of speculation reflects more the state of his own mind than it does anything in antiquity. There is no evidence of it whatever that I know of, or that any of my colleagues know of."

Dr. Sanders, professor of Old Testament at Union Theological Seminary and translater of "The Psalm Scroll of Qumran Cave 11" published earlier this year, said the project has turned up invaluable material.

"It is absolutely indispensable today for the study of the New Testament. It affords intimate knowledge of conditions of life, vocabulary usages and beliefs in the first century at the time of Jesus."

As for Allegro's claims that the findings threaten to undermine the basis of Christianity, however, Dr. Sanders said nothing had been turned up of that nature.

His Honor Sees Topless Show

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A topless go-go dancer with the unlikely but real name of Queen Victoria Vanilla Williams bounced one of Miami's last vestiges of the Victorian age into the history books yesterday.

In a two-word ruling, Criminal Court Judge Carling Stedman upheld Miss Williams' plea that public exposure of the breasts need not always be indecent.

"Not guilty," the judge said and dismissed a disorderly conduct charge against the shapely Virgin Islands native. Stedman's ruling came after he personally inspected a local topless nightspot to see if the dancers offended public decency.

Marijuana Case Trial Scheduled

Case of Steven F. Palm, 18, charged with marijuana possession, was certified in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to Juvenile Court.

Jury trial for six companions, all accused of being present where marijuana was being used, was scheduled for De. 7. Defendants are Paulette Elizabeth Palm, 22, Lawrence A. Palm, 26, Richard Ackers Fogle, 21, Philip Scott Fulkerson, 22, Raymond Lee Furrow, 25, and Diana Kay Roberts, 18.

The seven were arrested at their Barnett's Place cabin in San Geronimo Sept. 23, after a 12-year-old boy reported he smoked what appeared to be marijuana in the cabin.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Pancreatitis Is No Disorder To Be Taken As Minor Illness

VAN DELLEN

Acute inflammation of the pancreas is a severe disorder. Some victims go into shock, an understandable state because irritating pancreatic enzymes escape and digest away some of the pancreas. The pain is excruciating and is noted in the upper abdomen and occasionally in the back.

An alcoholic binge may precede the attack. It also develops after a heavy meal or is associated with an infected gallbladder. In some, a stone is blocking the opening from the pancreas into the intestine. Absolute bed rest and avoiding food and liquids by mouth may lead to recovery. A percentage do not survive.

CHRONIC INFLAMMATION implies repeated attacks. This form is definitely more stubborn to treat. Pain is less severe but digestion is disturbed because the output of digestive juices is reduced. Ultimately the cells that produce insulin are destroyed and the victim develops diabetes. The enzymes manufactured by the pancreas are used to digest fat. When they are in short supply the undigested fat irritates the intestines causing gas and diarrhea.

Surgery leads to cure in the 15 per cent in whom the gallbladder is infected or filled with stones. Operations designed to improve the flow of pancreatic juice may afford relief. In one of these procedures, the end of the pancreas is removed and the remaining stump is inserted into the small intestine. The juices now flow directly into the digestive tract.

NONSURGICAL treatment consists of a bland, low-fat diet; avoidance of overeating, and drugs to relax the ducts and intestine. Alcohol is taboo because it encourages swelling of the pancreatic ducts. Potent pancreatic extracts by mouth make up for the glandular deficiency. These medical measures are of limited value in halting progression of the disease once it is established. Surgery is preferable when the disorder persists.

The latest remedy (hypothermai) is placing a person in a refrigerated unit. This helps lower the body temperature considerably.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

INFECTION BY PHONE?

E. M. writes: Can cold germs be spread through the common use of an office phone?

REPLY

In general, this is not a common health hazard. Theoretically, however, organisms could be transmitted if the user places his lips on the mouthpiece when he has a cold or cough.

CRACKING UP

A. K. writes: How do you feel when you are about to have a nervous breakdown?

REPLY

So frustrated and depressed you are sure you will never be able to get through another day. Many of these individuals get upset about trivial things or become suspicious of those they love.

ALLERGY TO BUTTER

Mrs. E. A. writes: Can a person with a milk allergy use butter?

REPLY

Not as a rule. On the other hand, allergies vary in severity and it is conceivable that a small amount of butter may not lead to symptoms. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on allergy.

MEALS STANDING UP

T. V. writes: I eat standing up. Is this a bad habit and can it have any effect upon the digestive system?

REPLY

There is no harm in this practice but in my opinion it is carrying the modern trend of wanting to be different a bit too far.

RASH FROM SWEAT

F. F. writes: Whenever I perspire heavily a rash breaks out under my arms and on other parts of the body. The popular deodorants irritate my skin. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

This may be prickly heat. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this topic, which offers various suggestions.

LIP PICKER

Mrs. D. writes: What are the dangers of picking the lips? I have done this ever since I can remember and am now 25 years old. Sometimes I pick to the point of bleeding.

REPLY

Irritation may lead to infection, unsightly scarring, or cancer. Act your age by keeping your fingers away from the lips.

VOICE BOX CANCER

A. M. writes: Could heavy smoking be one of the causes that resulted in loss of the voice via an operation?

REPLY

Yes, provided the voice box (larynx) was removed because of cancer.

BRONCHITIS

J. J. writes: Every autumn, after a cold, I develop bronchitis which longers on more or less all winter. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

This is a long story. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on bronchitis.

SULFA AND WATER

H. T. writes: Why does the doctor advise drinking lots of water when he prescribes a sufla drug?

REPLY

Because certain sulfonamides, especially sulfadiazine, crystalize in the urine unless there is ample fluid to keep them dissolved in solution.

PURIFYING THE PENTAGON — Hippies rehearse around a cardboard model of the Pentagon, for their planned attempt to "purify" the defense headquarters through witchcraft later this month. (AP Wirephoto)

ONE WAY TO END WAR

Hippies Try Pentagon Witchcraft

NEW YORK (AP) — If the Pentagon rises 300 feet into the air and then disintegrates on Oct. 21, a group of East Village hippies will be elated but unsurprised.

After all, they spent more than an hour yesterday in a trial run of a magical ceremony exorcising the Pentagon to make sure everything goes off without a hitch during the peace rally scheduled for Washington next weekend.

A young man with long hair and long mustache said the hippies want the Defense Department headquarters destroyed because "the Pentagon is the actual and mythical symbol of evil in our time."

One hippie said the people in the Pentagon won't be hurt, just purified.

As an audience of about 200 antiwar hippie demonstrators at the Village Theater waved lighted amber musk joss sticks and jiggled bells against a background of shrill electronic sounds, the ceremonies got under way.

Onstage at the direction of poet Ed Sanders ritual participants daubed themselves with green paint because of its magical properties to offset red, the color of Mars, god of war. Then they spread magical cornmeal, symbol of the earth goddess, in a circle around a table-size scale cardboard model of the Pentagon.

A picture of the Pentagon was burned in the name of the spirit of fire. "Burn, baby, burn!" cried some spectators.

As the ritualists, their faces streaked with green paint, joined hands and circled the Pentagon chanting, "Up, demon! Up, demon!" the audience stood and joined the shouting. The electronic wailing ascended to an intolerable pitch.

Slowly the cardboard Pentagon rose. The elevating wires attached to the five points glistened in the lights of the multicolored psychedelic backdrop, but the crowd went as wild as if it had been the real thing.

The cardboard model will be burned, a hippie leader said, and the ashes buried in a consecrated bottle near the Pentagon. Then at the time of the Oct. 21 demonstration, he explained, before 1,200 people try to ring the Pentagon for the exorcism ceremony, the bottle will be exhumed and the ashes strewn on the Pentagon steps.

Do the hippies seriously think they can destroy the Pentagon with ritual magic?

Christianity's Drug Origins Hotly Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — An expert on the Dead Sea Scrolls today dismissed as "sheer fantasy" the claims of a British professor that the scrolls suggest that Christianity had its roots in a drug- taking cult akin to LSD trippers.

The Rev. James A. Sanders, a Biblical scholar and member of the 12-man international team working on the scrolls, said "no evidence whatever" has been found of such a condition.

He referred to remarks in London Friday by John Marce Allegro, a lecturer at Manchester University, who said his studies of the scrolls indicated the New Testament was "just a cover story" for Christianity's actual origins.

Allegro, a Hebrew-language specialist, said that when the precursors of Christianity, the Old Testament prophets, had visions, they were probably "taking a trip" on LSD or something like it.

Asked for comment Dr. Sanders said, "One wonders if Mr. Allegro took a little LSD himself before offering these historical misconstructions."

He added: "This sensational kind of speculation reflects more the state of his own mind than it does anything in antiquity. There is no evidence of it whatever that I know of, or that any of my colleagues know of."

Dr. Sanders, professor of Old Testament at Union Theological Seminary and translater of "The Psalm Scroll of Qumran Cave 11" published earlier this year, said the project has turned up invaluable material.

"It is absolutely indispensable today for the study of the New Testament. It affords intimate knowledge of conditions of life, vocabulary usages and beliefs in the first century at the time of Jesus."

As for Allegro's claims that the findings threaten to undermine the basis of Christianity, however, Dr. Sanders said nothing had been turned up of that nature.

His Honor Sees Topless Show

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A topless go-go dancer with the unlikely but real name of Queen Victoria Vanilla Williams bounced one of Miami's last vestiges of the Victorian age into the history books yesterday.

In a two-word ruling, Criminal Court Judge Carling Stedman upheld Miss Williams' plea that public exposure of the breasts need not always be indecent.

"Not guilty," the judge said and dismissed a disorderly conduct charge against the shapely Virgin Islands native. Stedman's ruling came after he personally inspected a local topless nightspot to see if the dancers offended public decency.

Marijuana Case Trial Scheduled

Case of Steven F. Palm, 18, charged with marijuana possession, was certified in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to Juvenile Court.

Jury trial for six companions, all accused of being present where marijuana was being used, was scheduled for De. 7. Defendants are Paulette Elizabeth Palm, 22, Lawrence A. Palm, 26, Richard Ackers Fogle, 21, Philip Scott Fulkerson, 22, Raymond Lee Furrow, 25, and Diana Kay Roberts, 18.

The seven were arrested at their Barnett's Place cabin in San Geronimo Sept. 23, after a 12-year-old boy reported he smoked what appeared to be marijuana in the cabin.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Acute inflammation of the pancreas is a severe disorder. Some victims go into shock, an understandable state because irritating pancreatic enzymes escape and digest away some of the pancreas. The pain is excruciating and is noted in the upper abdomen and occasionally in the back.

An alcoholic binge may precede the attack. It also develops after a heavy meal or is associated with an infected gallbladder. In some, a stone is blocking the opening from the pancreas into the intestine. Absolute bed rest and avoiding food and liquids by mouth may lead to recovery. A percentage do not survive.

CHRONIC INFLAMMATION implies repeated attacks. This form is definitely more stubborn to treat. Pain is less severe but digestion is disturbed because the output of digestive juices is reduced. Ultimately the cells that produce insulin are destroyed and the victim develops diabetes. The enzymes manufactured by the pancreas are used to digest fat. When they are in short supply the undigested fat irritates the intestines causing gas and diarrhea.

Surgery leads to cure in the 15 per cent in whom the gallbladder is infected or filled with stones. Operations designed to improve the flow of pancreatic juice may afford relief. In one of these procedures, the end of the pancreas is removed and the remaining stump is inserted into the small intestine. The juices now flow directly into the digestive tract.

NONSURGICAL treatment consists of a bland, low-fat diet; avoidance of overeating, and drugs to relax the ducts and intestine. Alcohol is taboo because it encourages swelling of the pancreatic ducts. Potent pancreatic extracts by mouth make up for the glandular deficiency. These medical measures are of limited value in halting progression of the disease once it is established. Surgery is preferable when the disorder persists.

The latest remedy (hypothermai) is placing a person in a refrigerated unit. This helps lower the body temperature considerably.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

INFECTION BY PHONE?

E. M. writes: Can cold germs be spread through the common use of an office phone?

REPLY

In general, this is not a common health hazard. Theoretically, however, organisms could be transmitted if the user places his lips on the mouthpiece when he has a cold or cough.

CRACKING UP

A. K. writes: How do you feel when you are about to have a nervous breakdown?

REPLY

So frustrated and depressed you are sure you will never be able to get through another day. Many of these individuals get upset about trivial things or become suspicious of those they love.

ALLERGY TO BUTTER

Mrs. E. A. writes: Can a person with a milk allergy use butter?

REPLY

Not as a rule. On the other hand, allergies vary in severity and it is conceivable that a small amount of butter may not lead to symptoms. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on allergy.

MEALS STANDING UP

T. V. writes: I eat standing up. Is this a bad habit and can it have any effect upon the digestive system?

REPLY

There is no harm in this practice but in my opinion it is carrying the modern trend of wanting to be different a bit too far.

RASH FROM SWEAT

F. F. writes: Whenever I perspire heavily a rash breaks out under my arms and on other parts of the body. The popular deodorants irritate my skin. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

This may be prickly heat. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this topic, which offers various suggestions.

LIP PICKER

Mrs. D. writes: What are the dangers of picking the lips? I have done this ever since I can remember and am now 25 years old. Sometimes I pick to the point of bleeding.

REPLY

Irritation may lead to infection, unsightly scarring, or cancer. Act your age by keeping your fingers away from the lips.

VOICE BOX CANCER

A. M. writes: Could heavy smoking be one of the causes that resulted in loss of the voice via an operation?

REPLY

Yes, provided the voice box (larynx) was removed because of cancer.

BRONCHITIS

J. J. writes: Every autumn, after a cold, I develop bronchitis which longers on more or less all winter. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

This is a long story. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on bronchitis.

SULFA AND WATER

H. T. writes: Why does the doctor advise drinking lots of water when he prescribes a sufla drug?

REPLY

Because certain sulfonamides, especially sulfadiazine, crystalize in the urine unless there is ample fluid to keep them dissolved in solution.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

Slip In A Side Suit Before Slam Bid To Confuse Foes

When you've made up your mind about the final contract, you can often bid to affect the opponents rather than your partner. For example, before jumping to a slam you might take time off to bid a side suit in the hope of discouraging a lead in that suit.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

THE SITUATION

In today's hand South knew he wanted to get to six hearts as soon as North had raised hearts. South bid five clubs on the way to six hearts only because this might discourage a club lead and thus encourage West to lead diamonds, the unbid suit.

Since West had a natural club lead the plot didn't work, but it's worth remembering for use in other hands. Your opponent doesn't always have a natural opening lead.

South won the club opening with the king and took the top trumps. West discarded a diamond on the second spade, and South saw that he would not set up the spades. The opponents were being most uncooperative.

NO NEED

There was still no need to risk the diamond finesse. South ruffed a spade in dummy, got to his hand with the ace of clubs, ruffed another spade in dummy and ruffed a club. East could not afford to ruff since then South would discard the queen of diamonds; and East could not discard a spade since that would set up South's last spade.

LAST SPADE

Declarer ruffed his last spade in dummy and returned the last club. Again East had to throw a diamond, and South could safely ruff. Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds and gave up the last trick doubly to West's king of diamonds and East's high trump.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 2 no trump, the negative response. You must show your high-card weakness first. You will have your chance to show the spade support later.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 14, 287th day of 1967 with 78 to follow

The moon is between the first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Born on this day in 1890 was Dwight D. Eisenhower, 33rd President of the United States.

On this day in history:

In 1066, the Normans defeated King Harold and his English forces in the battle of Hastings.

In 1912, former President Theodore Roosevelt was shot in Milwaukee but refused to have the wound treated until he finished a speech. He recovered.

In 1938, Nazi Germany announced it would withdraw from the League of Nations at the end of the following year.

In 1949, Russian occupation authorities set up an East German state with headquarters in East Berlin.

A thought for the day — American poet Joaquin Miller once said: "That man who lives for self alone, lives for the meanest mortal known."

Slip In A Side Suit Before Slam Bid To Confuse Foes

When you've made up your mind about the final contract, you can often bid to affect the opponents rather than your partner. For example, before jumping to a slam you might take time off to bid a side suit in the hope of discouraging a lead in that suit.

THE SITUATION

In today's hand South knew he wanted to get to six hearts as soon as North had raised hearts. South bid five clubs on the way to six hearts only because this might discourage a club lead and thus encourage West to lead diamonds, the unbid suit.

Since West had a natural club lead the plot didn't work, but it's worth remembering for use in other hands. Your opponent doesn't always have a natural opening lead.

South won the club opening with the king and took the top trumps. West discarded a diamond on the second spade, and South saw that he would not set up the spades. The opponents were being most uncooperative.

NO NEED

There was still no need to risk the diamond finesse. South ruffed a spade in dummy, got to his hand with the ace of clubs, ruffed another spade in dummy and ruffed a club. East could not afford to ruff since then South would discard the queen of diamonds; and East could not discard a spade since that would set up South's last spade.

LAST SPADE

Declarer ruffed his last spade in dummy and returned the last club. Again East had to throw a diamond, and South could safely ruff. Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds and gave up the last trick doubly to West's king of diamonds and East's high trump.

'State Parks For People' Upsets Conservationists

FOR MORE THAN A DECADE Angel Island has stood as an example of what's wrong with California's state parks.

It hasn't been easy to get there, ever. During much of the decade it was almost impossible, unless you owned a yacht.

Some modest developments — roughly the equivalent of facilities to be found at a first-rate roadside rest — finally came into being at Hospital Cove. For a long time, then, a 100-yard stroll in almost any direction would bring you face-to-face with a "Keep Out" sign.

We Californians have been effectively barred from seeing the rest of our Angel Island State Park, except from a great distance. The situation is similar in other state parks.

WILLIAM PENN MOTT, state parks and recreation chief, says he wants to change all this and Angel Island is high on his list for attention. He wants to open it up so more people can use and enjoy it.

Bully for him!

Thus far he has not gone into specific detail as to his plans, but he has led us to believe that what he has in mind will be interesting to many more visitors than are presently attracted to the picturesque island at Marin's doorstep.

He has been criticized by some fellow-conservationists on the grounds that he should be seeking to acquire more land instead of developing what's already acquired.

FOR HIS FORWARD-LOOKING plans, Mott gets the back of the hand from some far-out conservationists. They call him a "conservative" which, among conservationists who call themselves "liberal," is a term of great oprobrium.

Webster's Dictionary says conservationist is one who seeks to conserve, preserve or protect.

Conservative, says the same dictionary, is one who seeks to conserve, preserve, disposed to keep things as they are, opposed to change, etc.

It's hard to see how a person who calls himself conservationist can regard the word conservative as bad — unless he just plain doesn't know what he is talking about.

WEBSTER SAYS LIBERAL means one who is generous, not strict, not bound by orthodox or generally excepted doctrines, showing independence in thought, and "not conservative."

What can a conservationist mean when he berates another as "conservative" while patting himself on the back as "liberal"?

"You don't get the idea," says the man and at the next desk. And he is right.)

"Liberal means abundant, generous — as with other people's money. They want to be more liberal in spending taxpayers' money," he explains.

Anyone have a better explanation than that?

School Bond Failures

The obvious reason for the turndown of all Marin school finance measures in special elections Tuesday is that people have reached the limit of what they are willing to pay in taxes. But there are other inferences to be drawn.

The Tamalpais High School District tax issue was designed to provide something for everybody. In doing so, it mounted to a $12,315,000 total.

Most long-range of the needs to be filled were new high schools in Tiburon and the San Geronimo Valley, but they proved the most persuasive — to the residents there. The issue carried in Reed School District (Tiburon) by 69.6 per cent, and in Lagunitas and Nicasio, which would be served by the San Geronimo School, by 73.7 and 73 per cent, respectively.

The most sorely needed, however, are additional classrooms at Drake and Tamalpais High Schools. But — probably because of the large amount of the issue — voters in both those areas turned it down. It mustered only a 59 per cent "yes" vote in Mill Valley and 61.3 per cent in San Anselmo and 51.8 per cent in Fairfax (Drake).

"Something for everybody" didn't work.

POPULARITY MEANS CARING FOR OTHERS

When asked, "What qualities or characteristics make a teenage girl popular?" high school students in St. Paul, Minn., gave the following answers:

"She usually thinks about others first."

"She's got to be considerate of others."

"She's interested in the people around her rather than herself."

Another said, "Popularity is just taking the time to get involved with people."

On the whole, the students considered popularity was more than "having a bubbling personality and a good sense of humor." They felt it also meant showing "consideration for another person's feelings, being genuinely interested in other people, easy to get along with and being involved."

Most of us, whether young or old, are usually conscious of the friendly attitude that others should display towards us. We should also keep in mind that the Lord expects us to show the same consideration for others.

"Above all hold unfailing your love for one another."

Congress Big Producer Of Junk Mail

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Congress seems in a mood to hike mail rates for the citizens, but nothing has been heard about the mountain of junk mail Congress itself jams into overburdened post offices.

Even if tripled, the postal rates our Washington representatives pay would no change, since they pay nothing to clog the mails with their "official" mail. But the privilege must cost the taxpayers a handsome sum.

The most obvious abuse of the privilege to cross this desk in the past week was a copy of a 15-page speech on Vietnam by Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel. The ordinary mortal probably would have had to pay half a dollar to send such a package through the mail, yet the senator mailed thousands at no cost — to him.

In any event, the mailing was utterly futile, since it was for release on Oct. 3, but did not arrive here until Oct. 9. Even if the wire services had not sent stories of his speech, few newspapers would want to use a six-day-old version.

The only reassuring note was that the Post Office Department apparently gives this sort of mail exactly the speedy service it deserves.

Even government units paying to bloat the mails could cut back. The University of California, for example, sent this newspaper a fat packet of press releases when its new president was selected. It cost 85 cents, and hundreds must have been sent all over the state.

It, too, came too late for use — and after the event already had been reported in the paper.

BEGORRAH! VAT'S DOT?

The Pentagon this week unveiled a tank being developed by the U.S. and Germany. It will fire both artillery shells and a surface-to-surface guided missile.

The catch is that the name of the missile is "Shillelagh." By the time the Germans figure out how to pronounce it, the war will be over. It comes out "eichener Knuettel" in German, but then that's no help to the G.I.

BURNS IN DANGER?

The special session next month of the legislature revives the chance that Republican senators may try to dump the Democratic leader of their house, Hugh M. Burns of Fresno.

The recent election of Sen. Milton Marks, R/San Francisco, gave the GOP a 20-20 tie in the senate, and Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch could give the Republicans the edge in any split vote. Burns, however, has said that if the Republicans unite behind a new president pro tempore, he will cast the 21st vote.

In the past 54 years, the lieutenant governor voted only three times to break a tie, according to a recent speech by Marks.

Time For Jewry To Forgive Enemies

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In the I.-J. an article appeared a short time ago with a Paris dateline which stated that one Simon Wiesenthal, who lives in Vienna, has come to the United States to track down two women who were connected with the extermination of Jews in Europe 22 years ago, and who are now married to Americans.

This is the man who helped get Adolph Eichman and, Christianity not-withstanding, thirsts for more blood.

The United States, more than two decades and two wars since, has forgiven its enemies, fed them, clothed them, and almost unreservedly accepted them as repentent sinners. The Jewish world still wants vengeance.

Let us put an end to this witch-hunting less Jewry become an international shrine upon which all racial crimes, real or whispered, must be expiated.

Since those inglorious days global society, under the aegis of the United Nations, has undergone many changes. Millions of American dollars have been poured carte blanche into Israel to alleviate their suffereings and their needs. This peaceful agricultural people have repaid us by establishing themselves as a nuclear threat, by building a first class army, and by brazenly throwing firebrands of armed aggression about in the Middle East with little concern as to who must tend the fire once they have struck the match. . . .

Police Brutality Held Riot Cause

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Where does one begin to comment on your editorial deploring the Supreme Court's defense of the Bill of Rights' guarantees of due process of law? And what can one say about Roscoe Drummond's column quoting Professor Moynihan's warning to the Negro to avoid violence? Everyone's against crime and violence, but that's only the beginning of the story.

You presume that Miranda and Escobedo were guilty even though the police failed to inform them of their constitutional rights — the right in one case to avoid self-incriminating statements, in the other to have counsel. Let's accept your presumption of guilt (the Supreme Court, by the way, is not concerned with questions of fact as such, but only with questions of law). Then what is the citizen's remedy? Isn't it to insist that our public servants observe due process, rather than to commiserate with them over their errors?

Every outbreak of violence by Negro fellow citizens has been precipitated by an act of police brutality or ineptitude, and has occurred in a ghetto slum. The Negroes' violence has been directed almost solely against offending police and exploiting merchants . . .

The I-J has seen through the inhumanity of Johnson's intervention in Vietnam in the name of anti-Communism, and of Reagan's attacks on social welfare in the name of economy. Bombing is not the right remedy for North Vietnam's alleged misdeeds, nor are cuts in Medi-Cal the right remedy for some physicians' alleged cheating. And certainly police state methods are not the right remedy for crime and civil disorder.

Strong Personalities In Tax Bill Clash

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deadlock now gripping President Johnson's tax increase bill is personified by two men who know each other extremely well, have shared many experiences and much responsibility —and don't give in easily.

One is Johnson. The other is Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Until one budges, the tax bill is going nowhere. The narrow issue is Mills' insistence that Johnson provide convincing evidence that spending will be cut $5 billion to $10 billion—he has never set an exact figure—before Congress moves on taxes.

This collides with Johnson's insistence that Congress first finish appropriating, then let the executive judge where to cut— and meanwhile that the tax increase must be approved.

THE UNDERLYING issues are broader. Johnson, who developed his political philosophy in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal, is determined that the massive programs he launched against poverty, for education and in welfare will survive the Vietnam-troubled times and endure to be his monument.

Mills, whose first job was to help keep a small town Arkansas bank afloat during the depression of the 1930's, leans markedly to the conservative side in fiscal matters. But he is no blind Southern reactionary.

He does not insist on a budget balanced every year. He has carefully repeated over and over that he is not demand ing that the welfare programs bear the brunt of the economies he advocates.

MILLS ACCEPTED enough of the new economics to pilot to passage the tax reduction of 1964—despite an unbalanced budget. He wrote into the bill a statement of principles: As the economy grows and provides more government revenues, some should be spent but some should be returned to the private sector in continued tax reductions. Encouragement to private business rather than government spending was to be the major guarantor of prosperity.

The 1964 tax reduction is generally considered an economic smash success. A sluggish economy took off and, though tax rates went down, tax revenue went up. It is for this bill, and for the principle he based it on and to which he constantly refers, that Mills wants to be remembered.

He feels he has been let down, that a commitment to hold down spending has gone by the board. Vietnam, he insists, can be charged with only part of the responsibility for the huge deficit now threatening and demanding the tax increase that would reverse Mills' preferred course.

SO THE PRESIDENT and the congressman primarily responsible for tax legislation, two Washington veterans whose easy working arrangements were a byword, have drawn apart. Associates say there has been practically no direct communication between them since the tax message was sent to Congress Aug. 3.

Mills' indirect messages have been increasingly sharp. The most cutting was his committee's recent shelving of the tax bill "until such time as the President and the Congress reach an understanding" on spending cuts. Mills says the action represents the overwhelming sentiment of the House—and he does not bring out of his committee bills the House won't pass.

Hippies Not Only Ones Who Flee Responsibility

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

One of the most publicized aspects of the current scene is the "hippie" movement. The sight of thousands of young people, most of them from middle-class homes, dropping out of society for a life of bohemian irresponsibility is widely reported and discussed.

A popular explanation of the movement is that they are rejecting the values of their middle-class parents. I wonder. In some ways they remind me of their parents' irresponsibility. Hippies, for example, say they want no part of politics. While they are superbly integrated and without overt prejudice themselves, they say they don't care about the Negro's efforts to secure equality. Meaningful social action doesn't concern them.

HOW DOES THIS differ from their parents' attitudes? They too, reject involvement in society's problems. They too, including many who say they are "liberal," have abandoned meaningful efforts to join with Negroes to secure a better society. So in this respect at least, both the hippies and their middle-class parents don't want to become involved in the world around them. The hippies "drop out"; their parents just turn their backs.

One hippie told a reporter: "When this many people decide a society is worthless, it's something to think about." He should have said: "When so many people decide a society is worthless, they should work to change it into something better, rather than running away from it."

It's too bad these youngsters don't share the idealism and courage of the thousands of young men and women who also turn their backs on middle-class values, or lack of them, to work in the slums and ghettos of our nation to help war on poverty. It is disturbing that they don't get a tenth of the publicity given to the hippies. In fact the whole war on poverty effort is under attack from citizens seeking to escape from responsibility.

SOME OF THE THINGS I've heard about the anti-poverty effort sound very much like excuses not to support it. One such comment I've heard is that the war on poverty doesn't matter because riots occurred in cities like Detroit, which got all the federal money it wanted.

I don't know how that idea got around, but nothing could be farther from the truth. The Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers the war on poverty, said that Detroit only got 14 per cent of the funds it asked for. Some big cities got even less; New York only got a tenth of its needs.

I've also heard stories about all the anti-poverty workers who were supposed to have taken part in riots. But the facts are that only six anti-poverty workers in the whole country were arrested. That's probably less than the total number of policemen charged with misconduct during the riots.

The people making such charges don't seem to want anything to be done to cure the sickness of poverty and racism. If you wanted to be nice you could call some of them "backlashers," but in my book, "backlash" is just a nice word for racial bigotry.

SO WE HAVE two groups which won't help responsible people reform society: the solid, respectable citizens who take refuge in apathy or in the rationalization of their prejudices, and their sons and daughters who reject their parents but rebel in such a way that they most resemble them.

All of this goes against the traditional picture of the American as the man who sees problems as things to be solved and overcome, not run away from nor resisted. Fortunately, the ranks of those who are concerned about our country are growing. Many people who were indifferent are now becoming involved in the fight against racism. They see the riots as a call to action to end the tragic conditions in the ghetto, not as events to justify "backlash."

It has been said that crisis brings out the best in people. I have high hopes that our urban racial crisis will bring out the best in Americans of all political creeds and opinions. We are all in the same boat, and we can work together to keep it afloat, or we can separately dive off into fantasies or bitterness, and watch it sink.

Thus far he has not gone into specific detail as to his plans, but he has led us to believe that what he has in mind will be interesting to many more visitors than are presently attracted to the picturesque island at Marin's doorstep.

He has been criticized by some fellow-conservationists on the grounds that he should be seeking to acquire more land instead of developing what's already acquired.

FOR HIS FORWARD-LOOKING plans, Mott gets the back of the hand from some far-out conservationists. They call him a "conservative" which, among conservationists who call themselves "liberal," is a term of great oprobrium.

Webster's Dictionary says conservationist is one who seeks to conserve, preserve or protect.

Conservative, says the same dictionary, is one who seeks to conserve, preserve, disposed to keep things as they are, opposed to change, etc.

It's hard to see how a person who calls himself conservationist can regard the word conservative as bad — unless he just plain doesn't know what he is talking about.

WEBSTER SAYS LIBERAL means one who is generous, not strict, not bound by orthodox or generally excepted doctrines, showing independence in thought, and "not conservative."

What can a conservationist mean when he berates another as "conservative" while patting himself on the back as "liberal"?

"You don't get the idea," says the man and at the next desk. And he is right.)

"Liberal means abundant, generous — as with other people's money. They want to be more liberal in spending taxpayers' money," he explains.

Anyone have a better explanation than that?

School Bond Failures

The obvious reason for the turndown of all Marin school finance measures in special elections Tuesday is that people have reached the limit of what they are willing to pay in taxes. But there are other inferences to be drawn.

The Tamalpais High School District tax issue was designed to provide something for everybody. In doing so, it mounted to a $12,315,000 total.

Most long-range of the needs to be filled were new high schools in Tiburon and the San Geronimo Valley, but they proved the most persuasive — to the residents there. The issue carried in Reed School District (Tiburon) by 69.6 per cent, and in Lagunitas and Nicasio, which would be served by the San Geronimo School, by 73.7 and 73 per cent, respectively.

The most sorely needed, however, are additional classrooms at Drake and Tamalpais High Schools. But — probably because of the large amount of the issue — voters in both those areas turned it down. It mustered only a 59 per cent "yes" vote in Mill Valley and 61.3 per cent in San Anselmo and 51.8 per cent in Fairfax (Drake).

"Something for everybody" didn't work.

POPULARITY MEANS CARING FOR OTHERS

When asked, "What qualities or characteristics make a teenage girl popular?" high school students in St. Paul, Minn., gave the following answers:

"She usually thinks about others first."

"She's got to be considerate of others."

"She's interested in the people around her rather than herself."

Another said, "Popularity is just taking the time to get involved with people."

On the whole, the students considered popularity was more than "having a bubbling personality and a good sense of humor." They felt it also meant showing "consideration for another person's feelings, being genuinely interested in other people, easy to get along with and being involved."

Most of us, whether young or old, are usually conscious of the friendly attitude that others should display towards us. We should also keep in mind that the Lord expects us to show the same consideration for others.

"Above all hold unfailing your love for one another."

Congress Big Producer Of Junk Mail

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Congress seems in a mood to hike mail rates for the citizens, but nothing has been heard about the mountain of junk mail Congress itself jams into overburdened post offices.

Even if tripled, the postal rates our Washington representatives pay would no change, since they pay nothing to clog the mails with their "official" mail. But the privilege must cost the taxpayers a handsome sum.

The most obvious abuse of the privilege to cross this desk in the past week was a copy of a 15-page speech on Vietnam by Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel. The ordinary mortal probably would have had to pay half a dollar to send such a package through the mail, yet the senator mailed thousands at no cost — to him.

In any event, the mailing was utterly futile, since it was for release on Oct. 3, but did not arrive here until Oct. 9. Even if the wire services had not sent stories of his speech, few newspapers would want to use a six-day-old version.

The only reassuring note was that the Post Office Department apparently gives this sort of mail exactly the speedy service it deserves.

Even government units paying to bloat the mails could cut back. The University of California, for example, sent this newspaper a fat packet of press releases when its new president was selected. It cost 85 cents, and hundreds must have been sent all over the state.

It, too, came too late for use — and after the event already had been reported in the paper.

BEGORRAH! VAT'S DOT?

The Pentagon this week unveiled a tank being developed by the U.S. and Germany. It will fire both artillery shells and a surface-to-surface guided missile.

The catch is that the name of the missile is "Shillelagh." By the time the Germans figure out how to pronounce it, the war will be over. It comes out "eichener Knuettel" in German, but then that's no help to the G.I.

BURNS IN DANGER?

The special session next month of the legislature revives the chance that Republican senators may try to dump the Democratic leader of their house, Hugh M. Burns of Fresno.

The recent election of Sen. Milton Marks, R/San Francisco, gave the GOP a 20-20 tie in the senate, and Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch could give the Republicans the edge in any split vote. Burns, however, has said that if the Republicans unite behind a new president pro tempore, he will cast the 21st vote.

In the past 54 years, the lieutenant governor voted only three times to break a tie, according to a recent speech by Marks.

Time For Jewry To Forgive Enemies

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In the I.-J. an article appeared a short time ago with a Paris dateline which stated that one Simon Wiesenthal, who lives in Vienna, has come to the United States to track down two women who were connected with the extermination of Jews in Europe 22 years ago, and who are now married to Americans.

This is the man who helped get Adolph Eichman and, Christianity not-withstanding, thirsts for more blood.

The United States, more than two decades and two wars since, has forgiven its enemies, fed them, clothed them, and almost unreservedly accepted them as repentent sinners. The Jewish world still wants vengeance.

Let us put an end to this witch-hunting less Jewry become an international shrine upon which all racial crimes, real or whispered, must be expiated.

Since those inglorious days global society, under the aegis of the United Nations, has undergone many changes. Millions of American dollars have been poured carte blanche into Israel to alleviate their suffereings and their needs. This peaceful agricultural people have repaid us by establishing themselves as a nuclear threat, by building a first class army, and by brazenly throwing firebrands of armed aggression about in the Middle East with little concern as to who must tend the fire once they have struck the match. . . .

Police Brutality Held Riot Cause

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Where does one begin to comment on your editorial deploring the Supreme Court's defense of the Bill of Rights' guarantees of due process of law? And what can one say about Roscoe Drummond's column quoting Professor Moynihan's warning to the Negro to avoid violence? Everyone's against crime and violence, but that's only the beginning of the story.

You presume that Miranda and Escobedo were guilty even though the police failed to inform them of their constitutional rights — the right in one case to avoid self-incriminating statements, in the other to have counsel. Let's accept your presumption of guilt (the Supreme Court, by the way, is not concerned with questions of fact as such, but only with questions of law). Then what is the citizen's remedy? Isn't it to insist that our public servants observe due process, rather than to commiserate with them over their errors?

Every outbreak of violence by Negro fellow citizens has been precipitated by an act of police brutality or ineptitude, and has occurred in a ghetto slum. The Negroes' violence has been directed almost solely against offending police and exploiting merchants . . .

The I-J has seen through the inhumanity of Johnson's intervention in Vietnam in the name of anti-Communism, and of Reagan's attacks on social welfare in the name of economy. Bombing is not the right remedy for North Vietnam's alleged misdeeds, nor are cuts in Medi-Cal the right remedy for some physicians' alleged cheating. And certainly police state methods are not the right remedy for crime and civil disorder.

Strong Personalities In Tax Bill Clash

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deadlock now gripping President Johnson's tax increase bill is personified by two men who know each other extremely well, have shared many experiences and much responsibility —and don't give in easily.

One is Johnson. The other is Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Until one budges, the tax bill is going nowhere. The narrow issue is Mills' insistence that Johnson provide convincing evidence that spending will be cut $5 billion to $10 billion—he has never set an exact figure—before Congress moves on taxes.

This collides with Johnson's insistence that Congress first finish appropriating, then let the executive judge where to cut— and meanwhile that the tax increase must be approved.

THE UNDERLYING issues are broader. Johnson, who developed his political philosophy in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal, is determined that the massive programs he launched against poverty, for education and in welfare will survive the Vietnam-troubled times and endure to be his monument.

Mills, whose first job was to help keep a small town Arkansas bank afloat during the depression of the 1930's, leans markedly to the conservative side in fiscal matters. But he is no blind Southern reactionary.

He does not insist on a budget balanced every year. He has carefully repeated over and over that he is not demanding that the welfare programs bear the brunt of the economies he advocates.

MILLS ACCEPTED enough of the new economics to pilot to passage the tax reduction of 1964—despite an unbalanced budget. He wrote into the bill a statement of principles: As the economy grows and provides more government revenues, some should be spent but some should be returned to the private sector in continued tax reductions. Encouragement to private business rather than government spending was to be the major guarantor of prosperity.

The 1964 tax reduction is generally considered an economic smash success. A sluggish economy took off and, though tax rates went down, tax revenue went up. It is for this bill, and for the principle he based it on and to which he constantly refers, that Mills wants to be remembered.

He feels he has been let down, that a commitment to hold down spending has gone by the board. Vietnam, he insists, can be charged with only part of the responsibility for the huge deficit now threatening and demanding the tax increase that would reverse Mills' preferred course.

SO THE PRESIDENT and the congressman primarily responsible for tax legislation, two Washington veterans whose easy working arrangements were a byword, have drawn apart. Associates say there has been practically no direct communication between them since the tax message was sent to Congress Aug. 3.

Mills' indirect messages have been increasingly sharp. The most cutting was his committee's recent shelving of the tax bill "until such time as the President and the Congress reach an understanding" on spending cuts. Mills says the action represents the overwhelming sentiment of the House—and he does not bring out of his committee bills the House won't pass.

Hippies Not Only Ones Who Flee Responsibility

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

One of the most publicized aspects of the current scene is the "hippie" movement. The sight of thousands of young people, most of them from middle-class homes, dropping out of society for a life of bohemian irresponsibility is widely reported and discussed.

A popular explanation of the movement is that they are rejecting the values of their middle-class parents. I wonder. In some ways they remind me of their parents' irresponsibility. Hippies, for example, say they want no part of politics. While they are superbly integrated and without overt prejudice themselves, they say they don't care about the Negro's efforts to secure equality. Meaningful social action doesn't concern them.

HOW DOES THIS differ from their parents' attitudes? They too, reject involvement in society's problems. They too, including many who say they are "liberal," have abandoned meaningful efforts to join with Negroes to secure a better society. So in this respect at least, both the hippies and their middle-class parents don't want to become involved in the world around them. The hippies "drop out"; their parents just turn their backs.

One hippie told a reporter: "When this many people decide a society is worthless, it's something to think about." He should have said: "When so many people decide a society is worthless, they should work to change it into something better, rather than running away from it."

It's too bad these youngsters don't share the idealism and courage of the thousands of young men and women who also turn their backs on middle-class values, or lack of them, to work in the slums and ghettos of our nation to help war on poverty. It is disturbing that they don't get a tenth of the publicity given to the hippies. In fact the whole war on poverty effort is under attack from citizens seeking to escape from responsibility.

SOME OF THE THINGS I've heard about the anti-poverty effort sound very much like excuses not to support it. One such comment I've heard is that the war on poverty doesn't matter because riots occurred in cities like Detroit, which got all the federal money it wanted.

I don't know how that idea got around, but nothing could be farther from the truth. The Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers the war on poverty, said that Detroit only got 14 per cent of the funds it asked for. Some big cities got even less; New York only got a tenth of its needs.

I've also heard stories about all the anti-poverty workers who were supposed to have taken part in riots. But the facts are that only six anti-poverty workers in the whole country were arrested. That's probably less than the total number of policemen charged with misconduct during the riots.

The people making such charges don't seem to want anything to be done to cure the sickness of poverty and racism. If you wanted to be nice you could call some of them "backlashers," but in my book, "backlash" is just a nice word for racial bigotry.

SO WE HAVE two groups which won't help responsible people reform society: the solid, respectable citizens who take refuge in apathy or in the rationalization of their prejudices, and their sons and daughters who reject their parents but rebel in such a way that they most resemble them.

All of this goes against the traditional picture of the American as the man who sees problems as things to be solved and overcome, not run away from nor resisted. Fortunately, the ranks of those who are concerned about our country are growing. Many people who were indifferent are now becoming involved in the fight against racism. They see the riots as a call to action to end the tragic conditions in the ghetto, not as events to justify "backlash."

It has been said that crisis brings out the best in people. I have high hopes that our urban racial crisis will bring out the best in Americans of all political creeds and opinions. We are all in the same boat, and we can work together to keep it afloat, or we can separately dive off into fantasies or bitterness, and watch it sink.

Marin Grid Stock Soars

By KIMO CAMPBELL

It looks as if Marin County, already far ahead of the rest of Northern California in diverse areas, has added a new title to its list— that of Prep Football Capital of Northern California.

Terra Linda's rugged Trojans, the top Marin County Athletic League club with a 2-0 conference mark, ran their over-all record to five straight last night by defeating highly touted South San Francisco of the North Peninsula League 21-14 before an estimated crowd of 1,400 at San Rafael High.

The win, achieved with less trouble than the score would indicate, was the 12th for MCAL teams against outside foes this year.

Terra Linda had one big complaint about the win — linebacker Rod Powell suffered a compound fracture of his ring finger on the second series of downs, making him an unknown quantity for next week's showdown with Drake.

The Trojans, who have a habit of making their point early, scored the second time they got their hands on the football, after stopping the Warriors on the Terra Linda 29.

With handyman halfback Keith Stirling, the night's top ballcarrier with 88 yards in 23 trips, carrying 5 times, the men of Troy ground out 57 yards in 12 playoffs, the payoff coming on the second play of the second quarter when quarterback Dave Edson tossed a pass to Stirling in the left flat for nine yards and a score. Boyd Barnette's PAT kick was good, with 11:14 to play in the second period.

Unable to dent the Trojans' stiff forward wall, South San Francisco tried to punt out of danger on the ensuing series, but the snap from center was high, giving punter Rocky Walker no chance to kick, and Terra Linda perfect field position at the Warrior 15. Two runs by Stirling and a keeper by Edson brought the ball to the one, where halfback Mark Buckley took it over. Barnette's kick was good.

South City came back after the kickoff with a 10-play, 60-yard drive that ended in a 2-yard slash by tailback Ed Aguilar for the score. Ron Palla kicked the PAT, with 3:25 left in the first half.

After a Terra Linda punt, the Trojans' left linebacker, Ron Weekly, picked off a Bill Ergas pass to put the Blue and Gold in scoring position again, at the Southerners' 14, but an Edson pass was intercepted at the three to cut off the threat.

The Trojans put the Warriors in a deep hole on the first series of the second half when

Giants Tip Novato

By GARY TISCHLER

"I can't give enough credit to my defense. Smith, Keppel, Simpson, Kaspersak, you name 'em, they all did a job."

Redwood High School football coach Bob Troppmann wasn't talking about the old gang in the old neighborhood, but the Novato Hornets may have felt that they ran into a football version of a tough crowd after their hopes for a Marin County Athletic League title were all but blasted in a grueling 7-0 defeat at College of Marin Stadium last night.

Defense was the key to the victory for the Giants but so was their nickname. Six-foot-three Skip Schmidt and 6-2 Gary Kaspersak gave bullet-throwing Novato quarterback Russ Dillon fits all night with a high-handed, hold-up charge that batted down pass attempts like angry fly swatters.

Dillon, the league's most accurate quarterback going into the game, finished with a 7-20 night, far below his usual season-long average of 55 per cent completions. And part of the reason was that he couldn't see his receivers.

If defense was the key, the Giant offense opened the door.

Although Redwood scored only once against the gritty Novato defense led by Corey Parfitt, Mike Mattheson and Gary Olsen, the Giants rolled up yardage like an automated plow, creaming out first downs in drill-like fashion.

They sent out speedster Larry Blackwell like some explosive decoy, then turned loose junior fullback Pete Richter and churning Ray Biagini.

Richter gained 74 yards, including a 33-yard blast and Biagini ground out 69, most of it in the second half.

Blackwell chopped up the turf for 59 yards in 15 carries, enough to keep the Hornets double-team

49ers Will Have To Stop Passing Of Norm Snead

Norman Snead, quarterback of the Philadelphia Eagles, is the National Football League's top-rated passer this season. The job of the 49ers tomorrow in Philadelphia will be to stop Snead who has a 60.7 passing percentage.

Snead has completed 65 of 107 passes in the four games the Eagles have played thus far for a total of 1,019 yards. Eight of them have been touchdown strikes. His average per pass is 9.52 yards.

But Snead is not flawless. He has thrown four interceptions and against the Baltimore Colts he couldn't complete one TD pass. It was the first time in four years that the Eagles failed to score at least one touchdown in a game. The Colts beat the Eagles, 38-6, Philadelphia's only loss this year.

Didn't Do Much Better

However, the 49ers didn't do much better against the Colts, losing 41-7 in Baltimore a couple of weeks ago. That was the first loss of the season for John Brodie and Co. who rebounded into the win column last Sunday with a stunning 27-24 upset of the Rams.

Jack Christiansen already has told the 49ers to forget what happened in the Los Angeles Coliseum last Sunday because nobody is interested in last week's results. The 49er coach did make one final allusion to the Ram game but only for the purpose of pointing up the primary problem in the forthcoming battle with the Eagles.

"The test last Sunday was our offensive ability to move the ball against the Ram defense," said Christiansen. "This Sunday the Philadelphia game will test our pass defense."

They Really Rushed Gabriel

Charlie Krueger, Roland Lakes and Stan Hindman, on the defensive forward wall of the 49ers, put a terrific rush on Roman Gabriel, nailing the Ram quarterback three times for losses and forcing three interceptions.

If the forward defensive men put the same pressure on Snead, the work of the 49er aerial patrol will be simplified but not solved. Snead's accuracy never is far off target even under severe pressure. He is a cool operator on short or long passes.

Ben Hawkins, Philadelphia's wide man, is Snead's favorite received on long passes. Hawkins already has caught one 68-yarder for a touchdown this season. He also caught a more modest one for another TD. In all, Hawkins has caught 15 for 320 yards and a 21.3 average.

Ditka Is A Favorite Target

Mike Ditka, the ex-Bear who now plays the inside end spot for the Eagles, is Snead's favorite target on quick shots over-the-middle. Ditka will keep 49er linebackers alert.

While the 49ers are meeting the Eagles, the Rams will be facing the Colts in Baltimore. A Ram win,

49ers, Eagles In Key Clash

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The San Francisco Forty Niners and Philadelphia match 3-1 records tomorrow in an evenly-balanced NFL intra-divisional battle.

Both teams are fresh from hot performances. The Eagles rolled over Atlanta 38-7 last Sunday as veteran Norm Snead moved to the top of the National Football League passing statistics and big Tom Woodeshick battered the Falcons for 129 yards rushing.

San Francisco, which also earlier beat Atlanta 38-7, upset mighty Los Angeles 27-24 as the Rams could not recover from three Prospector interceptions and four lost fumbles.

John Brodie riddled the fine Ram defense for 269 yards and three touchdowns even though his best receiver, Dave Parks, missed most of the game. Parks and offensive guard Howard Mudd, also shaken up in the Los Angeles game, will be ready for the Eagles. In fact, the Forty Niners have no major injuries except ones they suffered in early season play.

Philadelphia is operating without speedster Timmy Brown while safety Joe Scarpeti, tackle John Meyers, flanker Ron Goodwin and reserve defensive back Jim Gray are either out of action or will see only limited duty.

The teams have met seven times and although the Forty Niners lead the series 4-2-1, it has been a wild one. The first meeting produced a fist fight involving every player on both squads on the turf at Kezar Stadium while Philadelphia staged a memorable comeback last year to pull out a 35-34 win behind the passing of King Hill.

Hill is out for the season with an injury which is one reason why observers feel Snead has blossomed. He knows the starting job is his. Another reason could be the development of a trio of fine receivers —second year man Ben Hawkins and veterans Mike Ditka and Gary Ballman.

One added plus for the Forty Niners this time around is the caliber of the reserve receivers and rushers. End Sonny Randle caught the winning pass against Los Angeles after filling in for the injured Parks while backs Gary Lewis and Doug Cunningham are about even in statistics with starters Ken Willard and John David Crow.

Coach Jack Christiansen knows he can give his pass-catchers and running backs a breather and still have first class talent on the field.

The Forty Niners can make hay in the Coastal Division with to win tomorrow. Los Angeles 3-1 in calling on Baltimore 4-0 so San Francisco has to gain on somebody.

Rams Bid To Derail Hot Colts; NFL Also-Rans Face Uphill Fight

By DICK COUCH

The Baltimore Colts risk their perfect National Football League record against Los Angeles' rebounding Rams tomorrow while New Orleans, Atlanta and Minnesota, seeking to end early-season tailspins, face uphill battles against formidable foes.

Baltimore, only unbeaten, untied club in the NFL, goes after its fifth victory against the visiting Rams, who must bounce all the way back from a 27-24 upset loss to San Francisco last week if they are to stay within reach of the Colts in the Coastal Division race.

The New Orlenas Saints, trying to nail their initial NFL victory after four losses, march into Dallas, where the powerful Cowboys will be a strong favorite despite the absence of injured quarterback Don Meredith.

Atlanta, winless in four starts, entertains the explosive Washington Redskins and Minnesota, also 0-4, tackles Green Bay's defending world champs at Milwaukee, Wis.

St. Louis is at Cleveland, San Francisco at Philadelphia, New York at Pittsburgh and Detroit at Chicago in other games tomorrow.

The Rams, 3-1, should be hard-pressed trying to contain Baltimore's Johnny Unitas, who triggers the NFL's most potent passing attack. The Colts must contend with the league's best defensive unit against rushing and running force, led by Dick Bass and Les Josephson, that also tops the circuit.

Craig Morton is expected to start for Dallas, 3-1, in place of Meredith, who reinjured his ribs in last week's 17-14 victory over Washington. The Saints also lost an offensive weapon when rookie John Gilliam, their top pass receiver, suffered a broken finger.

Charlie Taylor, the Redskins' healthy pass-catching sensation —25 catches in four games—poses the chief threat to Atlanta's struggling Falcons. Washington has split four decisions.

Minnesota faces a bruising defense that has helped the Packers overcome early offensive shortcomings and a series of injuries to quarterback Bart Starr. The Packers, 3-0-1, lead the Central Division.

St. Louis has reeled off three straight victories—the last two with second half rallies—to grab the Century Division lead with a 3-1 mark. Rookie quarterback Jim Hart has given the Cardinals surprising offensive punch, but the Browns, 2-2, are slight favorites at home.

Surprise! Schoendienst Tabbed Top NL Manager

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst played his cards right and became The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year.

The soft spoken manager teamed up with his former roommate, Stan Musial, and their St. Louis Cardinals ran away with the National League pennant and beat the Boston Red Sox in the seven-game 1967 World Series. The Cardinals won 101 games during the season.

Schoendienst went to spring training hoping his Cardinals had enough to win the pennant. He was certain they could move up from their sixth-place finish in 1966. The Cardinals finished seventh in Red's first year as a manager, 1965.

"We knew we had pretty good talent and we had a chance to move up," Schoendienst said, smiling at the news that he had won the award. "We had good pitching, and we were sure we would score more runs than last year," he said. "I had a fine ball club."

Shannon often said Schoendienst's confidence in his ability to play third was important to him. And Orlando Cepeda praised Schoendienst because "he treats us like men, like human beings."

All the Cardinals say Schoendienst is a master at treating his ball players with respect. Schoendienst's only comment is that's the kind of guy he is.

Smooth Warriors Grab NBA Opener

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Old cage foes Rudy LaRusso and Tom Meschery were trying to outmuscle each other again last night as another NBA season got underway—but there was a big difference.

LaRusso, who used to battle Meschery as a Laker in Los Angeles-San Francisco games, now plays for the Warriors while Meschery is now performing for the expansion team Seattle Sonics.

A BREEZE

The Western Division champion Warriors, going without super star Rick Barry this season, breezed to a 144-116 victory.

Only 5,609 fans showed up at the Cow Palace to watch the Warriors show their new balanced attack. Seven Warriors hit in double figures, led by Fred Hetzel with 24 and Jim King and Jeff Mullins with 20.

Nate Thurmond grabbed 28 rebounds and Clyde Lee helped out with 15. Warrior guard Al Attles was held out because of a muscle pull and guard Bob Warlick, his replacement, was the happiest surprise for San Francisco, scoring 18 and dazzling with his floor play.

THORN HURT

Meschery scored 26 and led the losers' rebounding with 11 while Walt Hazzard, transferred from the Lakers, hit 21 in the first half and 30 for the night.

Rod Thorn also tallied four first-half buckets for the Sonics and they sagged considerably when he left early in the contest with a twisted ankle.

Though Meschery is gone from the Warriors, he is not forgotten. Owner Franklin Mieuli announced that his uniform number, 14, is being retired.

Oaks Triumph With Barry As Spectator

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—The Oakland Oaks had an American Basketball Association win today—even with their best player in the stands.

Rick Barry is sitting out this season but will join the Oaks, who are coached by his father-in-law, next year. He and 4,827 others saw the Oaks down the Anaheim Amigos 134-129 in the first ABA game ever.

The Oaks showed several good backcourt men during their exhibition games and they were standouts again. Andy Anderson hit 33 and Levern Tart hit 23.

Big John Fairchild, who played two years with the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association, paced the orange-shirted Amigos with 30 points.

The Oaks led 70-60 at the half but then Fairchild began hitting and the Amigos tied it up 102-all with 10:25 left. But Mel Peterson and Tart both began to score and Oakland moved six points ahead and never looked back.

The celebrities in the stands drew as much attention as the players. In addition to Barry, singer Pat Boone, who owns the Oaks, and ABA commissioner George Mikan also attended.

PALMER TAKES WORLD TITLE ON LAST HOLE

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP)—Arnold Palmer won the Piccadilly World Match Play golf title today by defeating Peter Thomson of Australia, 1 up in the 36-hole final.

The final decision came down to the final hole where Palmer teed off in the comfortable position of being 1 up.

His shot went to the center of the fairway.

Thomson pulled into the rough on the left. The Australian was 120 yards short with his second. His third stall was short of the pin.

Palmer knocked his second shot to the fringe and then chipped to within six feet. When Thomson missed his putt for a birdie four, he realized he had lost and he conceded the match.

The referee decided that the hole was then halved in five.

The final nine holes produced some of the finest golf ever played on the par 36-38—74 Wentworth course.

The winner was 12 under par for the rounds and Thomson eight under.

The finalists, playing for a first prize of $14,000 which means little to them in terms of money but a great deal in prestige, had survived two days of elimination from a select field of eight world stars.

Unbeaten Apaches Top Tam Indians

Tamalpais High's Mill Valley-variety Indians tangled with some real Injuns, Vallejo Apache variety, and came out with a respectable performance, but missing a few patches of scalp here and there, as unbeaten Vallejo rolled, 33-14.

Coach Willie Hector's club was paced by the superb receiving of Leroy Barrow, who played fullback early in the game, switching back to end when Tam couldn't gain on the ground, and Ron Blasingame, whose bruised ribs didn't seem to hurt his running ability at all.

Barrow roamed at will through the Apache secondary, grabbing eight passes for 162 yards, while Blasingame picked up 58 yards on just eight rushes.

Vallejo capitalized on Tam errors for a 21-0 edge at halftime, as the Indians gained all kinds of yardage, piling up twelve first downs to the Apaches' eleven, but bogging down against the tough Vallejo line close to the goal.

Hector said, "We missed a couple of assignments and Vallejo scored a couple of times on them, and they got another when a back made a shoetop interception and ran down the sidelines for the touchdown."

Over-all, Hector thought that his team was "hitting real well, but so were they — Vallejo's improved since the Drake game — and they shut us off when they had to."

The Indians finally got on the board in the last period when the swift invalid, Blasingame, sprinted thirty-one yards to pay dirt. Quarterback Don Mackin, who hit on 14 of 33 passes for 217 yards, ran over the PAT. Second team quarterback Kerry Tusup produced the other Tam score by passing to Barrow for thirty-five, then to Luther Brown for twenty-two and the score. Ron Small ran over the conversion.

Hector praised Barrow and Blasingame, who he said "ran real well, broke some tackles" and thought that Tam was in fair physical shape for next week's game with Redwood.

Former Hero Lemon To Manage Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Lemon, a popular Washington slugger in the late 1950s and a first base coach for the Minnesota Twins for the last three years, was named today as manager of the Washington Senators.

Lemon, 39, succeeds Gil Hodges who signed Wednesday to manage the New York Mets.

General Manager George Selkirk said at a news conference that Lemon, who played for the old Senators from 1954 to 1960, agreed on a two-year contract Thursday night.

Lemon, who was present during the announcement, told reporters: "It was very much a surprise. Things have happened so fast we haven't discussed anything."

Lemon was a popular player in Washington, hitting 144 of his 162 major league home runs for Washington from 1954 to 1960 before the team moved to Minnesota. He hit 33 homers in 1959 and 38 in 1960, driving in 100 runs in each of his last two years.

Lemon said no decision had been made on coaches.

Hodges resigned after four and one-half years at the Senators' helm. When he took over in 1963, the team was mired in last place in the American League. It finished this season in a sixth-place tie with Baltimore.

Hodges, 43, replaced Wes Westrum, who resigned shortly before the season ended after two years as the Mets' manager.

Lemon will be a newcomer as a major league manager but he had one year's experience in piloting the Senators' York, Pa., farm club of the Eastern League in 1964. York finished last.

YOM KIPPUR OBSERVANCE ENDS TODAY

Yom Kippur, the most sacred of the ancient Jewish Holy Days, concludes at sundown today.

The Day of Atonement is observed by fasting, prayer and reappraisal of the individual's behavior, Yom Kippur is the end of the 10-day High Holy Day period that began with the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah.

When Yom Kippur falls on the Sabbath, as it does this year, it is considered especially sacred. The Holy Day will end at sundown with a final blast from the shofar, a hollow ram's horn used in Jewish worship and as a trumpet in battle for more than 3,500 years.

Catholic School Study Launched By Three Agencies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A joint effort to explore ways to upgrade Catholic education and expand its scope has been launched by three national agencies involved in Catholic education.

They are the National Catholic Educational Association, the largest Catholic school organization in the country; the National Center of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, which is responsible for the religious education of Catholics not in Catholic schools, and the Education Department of the United States Catholic Conference, the secretariat of the U.S. Catholic bishops. A joint statement said the aim of exploring cooperation among their organizations was to find ways of bringing Christian information to more Catholics, adults as well as children, and improving its quality.

Television's relationship with its audience will be discussed by John Chase of the American Broadcasting Co. at 9:40 a.m. tomorrow at Novato Community Methodist Church as part of a nationwide evaluation of television in which the Methodist Church is participating.

BIKINIS

Outdoor Minister At Resort

DENNISON, Tex. (UPI)—When you are a resort area minister, as is Rev. Thomas E. Arney, you take your parishioners as you find them—even in bikinis.

Thus it is possible to swim up to one of Arney's services, or interrupt a water ski trip around Lake Texoma to stop and hear the scriptures.

The Lake Texoma resort on the border between Texas and Oklahoma has been Arney's ministry for two and a half years.

SKY STEEPLE

His steeple is the sky; his pulpit often the back of an outboard motorboat.

Arney says attendance at his informal services has risen steadily, proving to him that people don't leave their faith behind when they go on vacation or off for a weekend.

In addition to the boatside services, he holds a yearly Bible school for six weeks in Oklahoma State Park, and appears before civic and sports clubs in the area. His ministry is financed jointly by the Texas and Oklahoma councils of churches.

GOES OUTSIDE

"I am going right to the spots where the people are camping and boating and swimming," Arney explains. "I'd be rather foolish to think that they are going to stop what they are doing and go get dressed to come to my church service. It is the fact that I want them to come as they are that has made this unique service so successful."

There are some drawbacks to a resort ministry.

For one thing, "It is pretty hard to pass a collection plate when your worshippers are in swim suits."

Ministers Trade Posts

Congregations of three Novato churches will hear different pastors tomorrow in a continuation of a "pulpit exchange" among the Presbyterian, United and Methodist churches.

Rev. Edwin C. Gompke of the United church will speak at the Methodist Church at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services on "Is there Any Certainty in Religion?"

Rev. C. M. Croughan of the Presbyterian church will preach at before the United church congregation at 10:30 a.m. at Druid Hall, Grant Avenue at Reichert Avenue. Title of his sermon will be "It's Never Too Late."

Rev. Leo W. Hamilton of the Methodist church will speak on "A Bridge to a Better Tomorrow" at 9:30 a.m. at the Presbyterian church.

Clothing Appeal

NEW YORK (UPI)—The annual Spring Clothing Appeal of Lutheran World Relief received contributions totaling 1,388,928 pounds this year, according to Bernard A. Confer, executive secretary of the overseas material aid agency. This compared with 1,475,682 pounds in 1966.

Young Missionaries

Heading For East, Scotland

Daniel and David Mortensen of Novato will realize a long-time ambition in coming weeks when they become missionaries for their church, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

David will leave Monday for Salt Lake City for a week's training and then go on to Scotland for a two-year term as a missionary.

Daniel leaves on Oct. 23 for his assignment as a missionary in the eastern states, basically New York.

The youths, 19, are now working as ambulance attendants for the Novato Ambulance Co. at 655 Canyon Road, Novato.

"I am going on the mission with a lot of fear and confidence," David said.

"I am going on mine with mixed emotions," Daniel added.

In their missions, they are assigned to live with a group of people continually from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., teaching the Mormon doctrine, David explained.

The move won't be too great a change, as the youths have lived in many places with their stepfather, M/Sgt. Maxwell L. Symmonds. Their mother lives in Flagstaff, Ariz.

This will be the first time that the twins will be separated, the beginning of what may be a long separation.

"I want to go to college when I get back in two years and get my registered nurse certificate. Then I want to go ahead and become a physician's assistant" Daniel said. David wants to go into teaching and music composition.

"I want to write music for the organ — music which expresses what the organ should say," he said.

Aims Of Missionaries, Activities Changing

NEW YORK (AP) — An electrical engineer in Liberia, a commercial artist in Johannesburg. A psychiatric staff member in Lucknow, India. A cattleman in Peru. An economics teacher in Turkey.

These are among today's changing models of Christian missionaries, which often aren't even called that anymore.

As their numbers grow, their activities are becoming so diversified, their problems so compounded and their role so spread beyond its former concentration on making converts that the whole operation has come in for recurrent questioning.

NEW GOALS?

At a recent meeting of the American Roman Catholic mission-sending societies, one expert said the old goals no longer are valid, that the movement has served its purposes and should be dismantled in the interests of wider objectives.

"The era of the foreign missionary movement as we have known it is definitely over," said the Rev. Ronan Hoffman, who teaches missilogy at the Catholic University of America. He added that it must give way to over-all serving, rather than direct persuading.

Some others disagreed, in part.

"There are huge parts of the globe where the Gospel has as yet made practically no impression," said Rev. Avery Dulles, of Woodstock College, Md.

TRANSITION

While the emphasis varies, there is general recognition that the churches' missionary operation is in a time of transition of more ecumenical teamwork, of greater involvement of laymen, of more utilitarian functions, of broader aims.

"It is more than 'saving souls'," says Rev. Dr. Tracey K. Jones Jr., Methodist world missions official. "It includes saving nations, cultures and civilizations. The task is to proclaim by word and act the Lordship of Christ over every aspect of man's life."

That covers a wide gamut of efforts to improve the lot of people, and an indication of its variety shows up in a sampling of some of the recent mission undertakings.

PLANTATION

Lutherans have developed a 700-acre tea plantation at Santal, India, eventually to be taken over by natives, with profits going to medical and educational work.

The United Church — Congregationalists—and a French ecumenical agency started a program in Dakar, Senegal, Africa, in which women learn to keep house.

Finding a sugar shortage in a cane-producing area in Paraguay, Disciples of Christ—Christian Churches— missionaries opened a sugar-processing plant.

CATTLE

To help poor settlers get started raising cattle in a recently cleared jungle area in Peru, Methodists set up a breeding herd at Cebu, from which initial stock is being distributed to homesteaders.

Mrs. E. M. Shanley of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, will discuss "Union With God," with Rev. Kyle M. Yates of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry.

Others who will participate in the day's discussions are Rev. Antonius Wall of the Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley; Rev. Bliss Belinger of Faith Lutheran Church, Terra Linda; Rev. Philip O'Donnell, chaplain at the Newman Center, and Rev. Charles Robertson, the other center chaplain who is campus representative for the Marin Council of Churches.

Mrs. Robert Clarke of San Rafael is chairman of this first unity day, planned to be an annual event.

Question: Was Luther Wronged?

TORONTO (UPI)—A hope that the Roman Catholic Church will lift its excommunication of Martin Luther was expressed here by a prominent Catholic theologian.

Father Bernard Haering, C.Ss.R., here for a Catholic theology congress, said Luther strived hard to remain in the Catholic Church but was forced out by a ruling of the Roman Curia. He said he hoped there will be "a spirit of penance in the Church of Rome," at the third Vatican Council this fall. "The first step," he said, "should be that we recognize responsibility — that Martin Luther should not have been excommunicated.

Mass, Live Rosary For Mission Fete

A concelebrated Mass and a living Rosary recitation will highlight commemoration next week of the 150th anniversary of the founding of Mission San Rafael Arcangel by the Franciscans.

The religious observances will open at 8 p.m. Wednesday with the re-enactment of the planting of the cross at the mission.

Two thousand students in Marin Catholic schools will enact a living Rosary at Albert Field, San Rafael, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Students, each representing a bead on the Rosary, will move in circles taking turns reciting prayers over a microphone.

Rev. Martin McKeon, a Franciscan, will be main speaker at the ceremony.

A luncheon sponsored by San Rafael service clubs will be held Friday at Dominic's reataurant with Marshall Dill, professor of history at Dominican College, as speaker.

The concelebrated Mass will be at 6:30 p.m. Friday at St. Raphael's Church with Archbishop Joseph T. McGlucken. Cocelebrants will be the pastors of the state's 21 other missions.

Additional Food

NEW YORK (UPI) — The board of directors of Lutheran World Relief has authorized shipment of 16,000 additional tons of food to India during the next nine months.

The action raised the total of such shipments earmarked for India to nearly 25,000 tons. The shipments consist of food donated by the U.S. Government.

Welfare Conference

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Lutheran Health and Welfare Forum, a biennial conference sponsored by the new Lutheran Social Welfare Conference of America for the denomination's specialists in social welfare, will be held here Oct. 20 through Nov. 1.

YOM KIPPUR OBSERVANCE ENDS TODAY

Yom Kippur, the most sacred of the ancient Jewish Holy Days, concludes at sundown today.

The Day of Atonement is observed by fasting, prayer and reappraisal of the individual's behavior, Yom Kippur is the end of the 10-day High Holy Day period that began with the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah.

When Yom Kippur falls on the Sabbath, as it does this year, it is considered especially sacred. The Holy Day will end at sundown with a final blast from the shofar, a hollow ram's horn used in Jewish worship and as a trumpet in battle for more than 3,500 years.

Catholic School Study Launched By Three Agencies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A joint effort to explore ways to upgrade Catholic education and expand its scope has been launched by three national agencies involved in Catholic education.

They are the National Catholic Educational Association, the largest Catholic school organization in the country; the National Center of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, which is responsible for the religious education of Catholics not in Catholic schools, and the Education Department of the United States Catholic Conference, the secretariat of the U.S. Catholic bishops. A joint statement said the aim of exploring cooperation among their organizations was to find ways of bringing Christian information to more Catholics, adults as well as children, and improving its quality.

TV Evaluation

Television's relationship with its audience will be discussed by John Chase of the American Broadcasting Co. at 9:40 a.m. tomorrow at Novato Community Methodist Church as part of a nationwide evaluation of television in which the Methodist Church is participating.

BIKINIS

Outdoor Minister At Resort

DENNISON, Tex. (UPI)—When you are a resort area minister, as is Rev. Thomas E. Arney, you take your parishioners as you find them—even in bikinis.

Thus it is possible to swim up to one of Arney's services, or interrupt a water ski trip around Lake Texoma to stop and hear the scriptures.

The Lake Texoma resort on the border between Texas and Oklahoma has been Arney's ministry for two and a half years.

SKY STEEPLE

His steeple is the sky; his pulpit often the back of an outboard motorboat.

Arney says attendance at his informal services has risen steadily, proving to him that people don't leave their faith behind when they go on vacation or off for a weekend.

In addition to the boatside services, he holds a yearly Bible school for six weeks in Oklahoma State Park, and appears before civic and sports clubs in the area. His ministry is financed jointly by the Texas and Oklahoma councils of churches.

GOES OUTSIDE

"I am going right to the spots where the people are camping and boating and swimming," Arney explains. "I'd be rather foolish to think that they are going to stop what they are doing and go get dressed to come to my church service. It is the fact that I want them to come as they are that has made this unique service so successful."

There are some drawbacks to a resort ministry.

For one thing, "It is pretty hard to pass a collection plate when your worshippers are in swim suits."

Ministers Trade Posts

Congregations of three Novato churches will hear different pastors tomorrow in a continuation of a "pulpit exchange" among the Presbyterian, United and Methodist churches.

Rev. Edwin C. Gompke of the United church will speak at the Methodist Church at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services on "Is there Any Certainty in Religion?"

Rev. C. M. Croughan of the Presbyterian church will preach at before the United church congregation at 10:30 a.m. at Druid Hall, Grant Avenue at Reichert Avenue. Title of his sermon will be "It's Never Too Late."

Rev. Leo W. Hamilton of the Methodist church will speak on "A Bridge to a Better Tomorrow" at 9:30 a.m. at the Presbyterian church.

Clothing Appeal

NEW YORK (UPI)—The annual Spring Clothing Appeal of Lutheran World Relief received contributions totaling 1,388,928 pounds this year, according to Bernard A. Confer, executive secretary of the overseas material aid agency. This compared with 1,475,682 pounds in 1966.

Young Missionaries

Heading For East, Scotland

Daniel and David Mortensen of Novato will realize a long-time ambition in coming weeks when they become missionaries for their church, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

David will leave Monday for Salt Lake City for a week's training and then go on to Scotland for a two-year term as a missionary.

Daniel leaves on Oct. 23 for his assignment as a missionary in the eastern states, basically New York.

The youths, 19, are now working as ambulance attendants for the Novato Ambulance Co. at 655 Canyon Road, Novato.

"I am going on the mission with a lot of fear and confidence," David said.

"I am going on mine with mixed emotions," Daniel added.

In their missions, they are assigned to live with a group of people continually from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., teaching the Mormon doctrine, David explained.

The move won't be too great a change, as the youths have lived in many places with their stepfather, M/Sgt. Maxwell L. Symmonds. Their mother lives in Flagstaff, Ariz.

This will be the first time that the twins will be separated, the beginning of what may be a long separation.

"I want to go to college when I get back in two years and get my registered nurse certificate. Then I want to go ahead and become a physician's assistant" Daniel said. David wants to go into teaching and music composition.

"I want to write music for the organ — music which expresses what the organ should say," he said.

Aims Of Missionaries, Activities Changing

NEW YORK (AP) — An electrical engineer in Liberia, a commercial artist in Johannesburg. A psychiatric staff member in Lucknow, India. A cattleman in Peru. An economics teacher in Turkey.

These are among today's changing models of Christian missionaries, which often aren't even called that anymore.

As their numbers grow, their activities are becoming so diversified, their problems so compounded and their role so spread beyond its former concentration on making converts that the whole operation has come in for recurrent questioning.

NEW GOALS?

At a recent meeting of the American Roman Catholic mission-sending societies, one expert said the old goals no longer are valid, that the movement has served its purposes and should be dismantled in the interests of wider objectives.

"The era of the foreign missionary movement as we have known it is definitely over," said the Rev. Ronan Hoffman, who teaches missilogy at the Catholic University of America. He added that it must give way to over-all serving, rather than direct persuading.

Some others disagreed, in part.

"There are huge parts of the globe where the Gospel has as yet made practically no impression," said Rev. Avery Dulles, of Woodstock College, Md.

TRANSITION

While the emphasis varies, there is general recognition that the churches' missionary operation is in a time of transition of more ecumenical teamwork, of greater involvement of laymen, of more utilitarian functions, of broader aims.

"It is more than 'saving souls'," says Rev. Dr. Tracey K. Jones Jr., Methodist world missions official. "It includes saving nations, cultures and civilizations. The task is to proclaim by word and act the Lordship of Christ over every aspect of man's life."

That covers a wide gamut of efforts to improve the lot of people, and an indication of its variety shows up in a sampling of some of the recent mission undertakings.

PLANTATION

Lutherans have developed a 700-acre tea plantation at Santal, India, eventually to be taken over by natives, with profits going to medical and educational work.

The United Church — Congregationalists—and a French ecumenical agency started a program in Dakar, Senegal, Africa, in which women learn to keep house.

Finding a sugar shortage in a cane-producing area in Paraguay, Disciples of Christ—Christian Churches— missionaries opened a sugar-processing plant.

CATTLE

To help poor settlers get started raising cattle in a recently cleared jungle area in Peru, Methodists set up a breeding herd at Cebu, from which initial stock is being distributed to homesteaders.

Many Faiths Join Unity Observance

Three subjects — union with the world, union among ourselves and union with God — will be explored during a Day of Unity scheduled Wednesday by the Interfaith Fellowship, the auxiliary to the Newman Center at the College of Marin.

Members of the interdenominational group will hear talks and enter discussions between 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Keil at Keil Cove on the Tiburon Peninsula.

Rev. L. A. White of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Belvedere, will open the meeting with a reading from the Bible.

Mr. and Mrs Charles Clifford of St. Raphael's Roman Catholic Church, San Rafael, will speak on "Union With the World." Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Matzinger of the World Retreat Movement will talk of "Union Among Ourselves."

Mrs. E. M. Shanley of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, will discuss "Union With God," with Rev. Kyle M. Yates of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry.

Others who will participate in the day's discussions are Rev. Antonius Wall of the Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley; Rev. Bliss Belinger of Faith Lutheran Church, Terra Linda; Rev. Philip O'Donnell, chaplain at the Newman Center, and Rev. Charles Robertson, the other center chaplain who is campus representative for the Marin Council of Churches.

Mrs. Robert Clarke of San Rafael is chairman of this first unity day, planned to be an annual event.

Question: Was Luther Wronged?

TORONTO (UPI)—A hope that the Roman Catholic Church will lift its excommunication of Martin Luther was expressed here by a prominent Catholic theologian.

Father Bernard Haering, C.Ss.R., here for a Catholic theology congress, said Luther strived hard to remain in the Catholic Church but was forced out by a ruling of the Roman Curia. He said he hoped there will be "a spirit of penance in the Church of Rome," at the third Vatican Council this fall. "The first step," he said, "should be that we recognize responsibility — that Martin Luther should not have been excommunicated.

Marin Grid Stock Soars

By KIMO CAMPBELL

It looks as if Marin County, already far ahead of the rest of Northern California in diverse areas, has added a new title to its list— that of Prep Football Capital of Northern California.

Terra Linda's rugged Trojans, the top Marin County Athletic League club with a 2-0 conference mark, ran their over-all record to five straight last night by defeating highly touted South San Francisco of the North Peninsula League 21-14 before an estimated crowd of 1,400 at San Rafael High.

The win, achieved with less trouble than the score would indicate, was the 12th for MCAL teams against outside foes this year.

Terra Linda had one big complaint about the win — linebacker Rod Powell suffered a compound fracture of his ring finger on the second series of downs, making him an unknown quantity for next week's showdown with Drake.

The Trojans, who have a habit of making their point early, scored the second time they got their hands on the football, after stopping the Warriors on the Terra Linda 29.

With handyman halfback Keith Stirling, the night's top ballcarrier with 88 yards in 23 trips, carrying 5 times, the men of Troy ground out 57 yards in 12 playoffs, the payoff coming on the second play of the second quarter when quarterback Dave Edson tossed a pass to Stirling in the left flat for nine yards and a score. Boyd Barnette's PAT kick was good, with 11:14 to play in the second period.

Unable to dent the Trojans' stiff forward wall, South San Francisco tried to punt out of danger on the ensuing series, but the snap from center was high, giving punter Rocky Walker no chance to kick, and Terra Linda perfect field position at the Warrior 15. Two runs by Stirling and a keeper by Edson brought the ball to the one, where halfback Mark Buckley took it over. Barnette's kick was good.

South City came back after the kickoff with a 10-play, 60-yard drive that ended in a 2-yard slash by tailback Ed Aguilar for the score. Ron Palla kicked the PAT, with 3:25 left in the first half.

After a Terra Linda punt, the Trojans' left linebacker, Ron Weekly, picked off a Bill Ergas pass to put the Blue and Gold in scoring position again, at the Southerners' 14, but an Edson pass was intercepted at the three to cut off the threat.

The Trojans put the Warriors in a deep hole on the first series of the second half when

Giants Tip Novato

By GARY TISCHLER

"I can't give enough credit to my defense. Smith, Keppel, Simpson, Kaspersak, you name 'em, they all did a job."

Redwood High School football coach Bob Troppmann wasn't talking about the old gang in the old neighborhood, but the Novato Hornets may have felt that they ran into a football version of a tough crowd after their hopes for a Marin County Athletic League title were all but blasted in a grueling 7-0 defeat at College of Marin Stadium last night.

Defense was the key to the victory for the Giants but so was their nickname. Six-foot-three Skip Schmidt and 6-2 Gary Kaspersak gave bullet-throwing Novato quarterback Russ Dillon fits all night with a high-handed, hold-up charge that batted down pass attempts like angry fly swatters.

Dillon, the league's most accurate quarterback going into the game, finished with a 7-20 night, far below his usual season-long average of 55 per cent completions. And part of the reason was that he couldn't see his receivers.

If defense was the key, the Giant offense opened the door.

Although Redwood scored only once against the gritty Novato defense led by Corey Parfitt, Mike Mattheson and Gary Olsen, the Giants rolled up yardage like an automated plow, creaming out first downs in drill-like fashion.

They sent out speedster Larry Blackwell like some explosive decoy, then turned loose junior fullback Pete Richter and churning Ray Biagini.

Richter gained 74 yards, including a 33-yard blast and Biagini ground out 69, most of it in the second half.

Blackwell chopped up the turf for 59 yards in 15 carries, enough to keep the Hornets double-team

CENTER OF ATTRACTION — Novato's Larry Bresnan (43) is the target of three Redwood tacklers in last night's MCAL game in Kentfield. Bresnan ran for seven of his 54-yard total on this first-half run. Charley Keppel (rear) of Redwood is in on the stop, with Joe Royer (43, dark) on the ground.

Smooth Warriors Grab NBA Opener

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Old cage foes Rudy LaRusso and Tom Meschery were trying to outmuscle each other again last night as another NBA season got underway—but there was a big difference.

LaRusso, who used to battle Meschery as a Laker in Los Angeles-San Francisco games, now plays for the Warriors while Meschery is now performing for the expansion team Seattle Sonics.

A BREEZE

The Western Division champion Warriors, going without super star Rick Barry this season, breezed to a 144-116 victory.

Only 5,609 fans showed up at the Cow Palace to watch the Warriors show their new balanced attack. Seven Warriors hit in double figures, led by Fred Hetzel with 24 and Jim King and Jeff Mullins with 20.

Nate Thurmond grabbed 28 rebounds and Clyde Lee helped out with 15. Warrior guard Al Attles was held out because of a muscle pull and guard Bob Warlick, his replacement, was the happiest surprise for San Francisco, scoring 18 and dazzling with his floor play.

THORN HURT

Meschery scored 26 and led the losers' rebounding with 11 while Walt Hazzard, transferred from the Lakers, hit 21 in the first half and 30 for the night.

Rod Thorn also tallied four first-half buckets for the Sonics and they sagged considerably when he left early in the contest with a twisted ankle.

Though Meschery is gone from the Warriors, he is not forgotten. Owner Franklin Mieuli announced that his uniform number, 14, is being retired.

PALMER TAKES WORLD TITLE ON LAST HOLE

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP)—Arnold Palmer won the Piccadilly World Match Play golf title today by defeating Peter Thomson of Australia, 1 up in the 36-hole final.

The final decision came down to the final hole where Palmer teed off in the comfortable position of being 1 up.

His shot went to the center of the fairway.

Thomson pulled into the rough on the left. The Australian was 120 yards short with his second. His third stall was short of the pin.

Palmer knocked his second shot to the fringe and then chipped to within six feet. When Thomson missed his putt for a birdie four, he realized he had lost and he conceded the match.

The referee decided that the hole was then halved in five.

The final nine holes produced some of the finest golf ever played on the par 36-38—74 Wentworth course.

The winner was 12 under par for the rounds and Thomson eight under.

The finalists, playing for a first prize of $14,000 which means little to them in terms of money but a great deal in prestige, had survived two days of elimination from a select field of eight world stars.

49ers Will Have To Stop Passing Of Norm Snead

Norman Snead, quarterback of the Philadelphia Eagles, is the National Football League's top-rated passer this season. The job of the 49ers tomorrow in Philadelphia will be to stop Snead who has a 60.7 passing percentage.

Snead has completed 65 of 107 passes in the four games the Eagles have played thus far for a total of 1,019 yards. Eight of them have been touchdown strikes. His average per pass is 9.52 yards.

But Snead is not flawless. He has thrown four interceptions and against the Baltimore Colts he couldn't complete one TD pass. It was the first time in four years that the Eagles failed to score at least one touchdown in a game. The Colts beat the Eagles, 38-6, Philadelphia's only loss this year.

Didn't Do Much Better

However, the 49ers didn't do much better against the Colts, losing 41-7 in Baltimore a couple of weeks ago. That was the first loss of the season for John Brodie and Co. who rebounded into the win column last Sunday with a stunning 27-24 upset of the Rams.

Jack Christiansen already has told the 49ers to forget what happened in the Los Angeles Coliseum last Sunday because nobody is interested in last week's results. The 49er coach did make one final allusion to the Ram game but only for the purpose of pointing up the primary problem in the forthcoming battle with the Eagles.

"The test last Sunday was our offensive ability to move the ball against the Ram defense," said Christiansen. "This Sunday the Philadelphia game will test our pass defense."

They Really Rushed Gabriel

Charlie Krueger, Roland Lakes and Stan Hindman, on the defensive forward wall of the 49ers, put a terrific rush on Roman Gabriel, nailing the Ram quarterback three times for losses and forcing three interceptions.

If the forward defensive men put the same pressure on Snead, the work of the 49er aerial patrol will be simplified but not solved. Snead's accuracy never is far off target even under severe pressure. He is a cool operator on short or long passes.

Ben Hawkins, Philadelphia's wide man, is Snead's favorite received on long passes. Hawkins already has caught one 68-yarder for a touchdown this season. He also caught a more modest one for another TD. In all, Hawkins has caught 15 for 320 yards and a 21.3 average.

Ditka Is A Favorite Target

Mike Ditka, the ex-Bear who now plays the inside end spot for the Eagles, is Snead's favorite target on quick shots over-the-middle. Ditka will keep 49er linebackers alert.

While the 49ers are meeting the Eagles, the Rams will be facing the Colts in Baltimore. A Ram win,

49ers, Eagles In Key Clash

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The San Francisco Forty Niners and Philadelphia match 3-1 records tomorrow in an evenly-balanced NFL intra-divisional battle.

Both teams are fresh from hot performances. The Eagles rolled over Atlanta 38-7 last Sunday as veteran Norm Snead moved to the top of the National Football League passing statistics and big Tom Woodeshick battered the Falcons for 129 yards rushing.

San Francisco, which also earlier beat Atlanta 38-7, upset mighty Los Angeles 27-24 as the Rams could not recover from three Prospector interceptions and four lost fumbles.

John Brodie riddled the fine Ram defense for 269 yards and three touchdowns even though his best receiver, Dave Parks, missed most of the game. Parks and offensive guard Howard Mudd, also shaken up in the Los Angeles game, will be ready for the Eagles. In fact, the Forty Niners have no major injuries except ones they suffered in early season play.

Philadelphia is operating without speedster Timmy Brown while safety Joe Scarpeti, tackle John Meyers, flanker Ron Goodwin and reserve defensive back Jim Gray are either out of action or will see only limited duty.

The teams have met seven times and although the Forty Niners lead the series 4-2-1, it has been a wild one. The first meeting produced a fist fight involving every player on both squads on the turf at Kezar Stadium while Philadelphia staged a memorable comeback last year to pull out a 35-34 win behind the passing of King Hill.

Hill is out for the season with an injury which is one reason why observers feel Snead has blossomed. He knows the starting job is his. Another reason could be the development of a trio of fine receivers —second year man Ben Hawkins and veterans Mike Ditka and Gary Ballman.

One added plus for the Forty Niners this time around is the caliber of the reserve receivers and rushers. End Sonny Randle caught the winning pass against Los Angeles after filling in for the injured Parks while backs Gary Lewis and Doug Cunningham are about even in statistics with starters Ken Willard and John David Crow.

Coach Jack Christiansen knows he can give his pass-catchers and running backs a breather and still have first class talent on the field.

The Forty Niners can make hay in the Coastal Division with to win tomorrow. Los Angeles 3-1 in calling on Baltimore 4-0 so San Francisco has to gain on somebody.

Rams Bid To Derail Hot Colts; NFL Also-Rans Face Uphill Fight

By DICK COUCH

The Baltimore Colts risk their perfect National Football League record against Los Angeles' rebounding Rams tomorrow while New Orleans, Atlanta and Minnesota, seeking to end early-season tailspins, face uphill battles against formidable foes.

Baltimore, only unbeaten, untied club in the NFL, goes after its fifth victory against the visiting Rams, who must bounce all the way back from a 27-24 upset loss to San Francisco last week if they are to stay within reach of the Colts in the Coastal Division race.

The New Orlenas Saints, trying to nail their initial NFL victory after four losses, march into Dallas, where the powerful Cowboys will be a strong favorite despite the absence of injured quarterback Don Meredith.

Atlanta, winless in four starts, entertains the explosive Washington Redskins and Minnesota, also 0-4, tackles Green Bay's defending world champs at Milwaukee, Wis.

St. Louis is at Cleveland, San Francisco at Philadelphia, New York at Pittsburgh and Detroit at Chicago in other games tomorrow.

The Rams, 3-1, should be hard-pressed trying to contain Baltimore's Johnny Unitas, who triggers the NFL's most potent passing attack. The Colts must contend with the league's best defensive unit against rushing and running force, led by Dick Bass and Les Josephson, that also tops the circuit.

Craig Morton is expected to start for Dallas, 3-1, in place of Meredith, who reinjured his ribs in last week's 17-14 victory over Washington. The Saints also lost an offensive weapon when rookie John Gilliam, their top pass receiver, suffered a broken finger.

Charlie Taylor, the Redskins' healthy pass-catching sensation —25 catches in four games— poses the chief threat to Atlanta's struggling Falcons. Washington has split four decisions.

Minnesota faces a bruising defense that has helped the Packers overcome early offensive shortcomings and a series of injuries to quarterback Bart Starr. The Packers, 3-0-1, lead the Central Division.

St. Louis has reeled off three straight victories—the last two with second half rallies—to grab the Century Division lead with a 3-1 mark. Rookie quarterback Jim Hart has given the Cardinals surprising offensive punch, but the Browns, 2-2, are slight favorites at home.

Surprise! Schoendienst Tabbed Top NL Manager

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst played his cards right and became The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year.

The soft spoken manager teamed up with his former roommate, Stan Musial, and their St. Louis Cardinals ran away with the National League pennant and beat the Boston Red Sox in the seven-game 1967 World Series. The Cardinals won 101 games during the season.

Schoendienst went to spring training hoping his Cardinals had enough to win the pennant. He was certain they could move up from their sixth-place finish in 1966. The Cardinals finished seventh in Red's first year as a manager, 1965.

"We knew we had pretty good talent and we had a chance to move up," Schoendienst said, smiling at the news that he had won the award. "We had good pitching, and we were sure we would score more runs than last year," he said. "I had a fine ball club."

Shannon often said Schoendienst's confidence in his ability to play third was important to him. And Orlando Cepeda praised Schoendienst because "he treats us like men, like human beings."

All the Cardinals say Schoendienst is a master at treating his ball players with respect. Schoendiensts' only comment is that's the kind of guy he is.

Oaks Triumph With Barry As Spectator

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—The Oakland Oaks had an American Basketball Association win today—even with their best player in the stands.

Rick Barry is sitting out this season but will join the Oaks, who are coached by his father-in-law, next year. He and 4,827 others saw the Oaks down the Anaheim Amigos 134-129 in the first ABA game ever.

The Oaks showed several good backcourt men during their exhibition games and they were standouts again. Andy Anderson hit 33 and Levern Tart hit 23.

Big John Fairchild, who played two years with the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association, paced the orange-shirted Amigos with 30 points.

The Oaks led 70-60 at the half but then Fairchild began hitting and the Amigos tied it up 102-all with 10:25 left. But Mel Peterson and Tart both began to score and Oakland moved six points ahead and never looked back.

The celebrities in the stands drew as much attention as the players. In addition to Barry, singer Pat Boone, who owns the Oaks, and ABA commissioner George Mikan also attended.

Unbeaten Apaches Top Tam Indians

Tamalpais High's Mill Valley-variety Indians tangled with some real Injuns, Vallejo Apache variety, and came out with a respectable performance, but missing a few patches of scalp here and there, as unbeaten Vallejo rolled, 33-14.

Coach Willie Hector's club was paced by the superb receiving of Leroy Barrow, who played fullback early in the game, switching back to end when Tam couldn't gain on the ground, and Ron Blasingame, whose bruised ribs didn't seem to hurt his running ability at all.

Barrow roamed at will through the Apache secondary, grabbing eight passes for 162 yards, while Blasingame picked up 58 yards on just eight rushes.

Vallejo capitalized on Tam errors for a 21-0 edge at halftime, as the Indians gained all kinds of yardage, piling up twelve first downs to the Apaches' eleven, but bogging down against the tough Vallejo line close to the goal.

Hector said, "We missed a couple of assignments and Vallejo scored a couple of times on them, and they got another when a back made a shoetop interception and ran down the sidelines for the touchdown."

Over-all, Hector thought that his team was "hitting real well, but so were they — Vallejo's improved since the Drake game — and they shut us off when they had to."

The Indians finally got on the board in the last period when the swift invalid, Blasingame, sprinted thirty-one yards to pay dirt. Quarterback Don Mackin, who hit on 14 of 33 passes for 217 yards, ran over the PAT. Second team quarterback Kerry Tusup produced the other Tam score by passing to Barrow for thirty-five, then to Luther Brown for twenty-two and the score. Ron Small ran over the conversion.

Hector praised Barrow and Blasingame, who he said "ran real well, broke some tackles" and thought that Tam was in fair physical shape for next week's game with Redwood.

Former Hero Lemon To Manage Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Lemon, a popular Washington slugger in the late 1950s and a first base coach for the Minnesota Twins for the last three years, was named today as manager of the Washington Senators.

Lemon, 39, succeeds Gil Hodges who signed Wednesday to manage the New York Mets.

General Manager George Selkirk said at a news conference that Lemon, who played for the old Senators from 1954 to 1960, agreed on a two-year contract Thursday night.

Lemon, who was present during the announcement, told reporters: "It was very much a surprise. Things have happened so fast we haven't discussed anything."

Lemon was a popular player in Washington, hitting 144 of his 162 major league home runs for Washington from 1954 to 1960 before the team moved to Minnesota. He hit 33 homers in 1959 and 38 in 1960, driving in 100 runs in each of his last two years.

Lemon said no decision had been made on coaches.

Hodges resigned after four and one-half years at the Senators' helm. When he took over in 1963, the team was mired in last place in the American League. It finished this season in a sixth-place tie with Baltimore.

Hodges, 43, replaced Wes Westrum, who resigned shortly before the season ended after two years as the Mets' manager.

Lemon will be a newcomer as a major league manager but he had one year's experience in piloting the Senators' York, Pa., farm club of the Eastern League in 1964. York finished last.

Bolinas Utility District May Take Over Fire District Role

Bolinas Fire Protection District may be dissolved and the services taken over by the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District.

This merger proposal is scheduled to come up before the Local Agency Formation Commission at 7:30 a.m. Nov. 2 in the Marin County Civic Center.

The merger has the blessings of the boards of commissioners of both the fire district and the public utilities district, Assistant County Administrator John F. Barrows reported.

Resolutions passed by both governing bodies urge the merger and agree that the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District will be expanded to become contiguous with the present boundaries of the fire district, which comprises some 5,700 acres.

Directors of the Public utilities district will continue as directors of the merged district, and the fire commission will be dissolved.

The areas in the fire district which are at present outside the boundaries of the public utilites district would not be liable for any bonded indebtedness of the utilities district.

The two bodies give this reason for the proposed merger: "Substantial economies of operation together with substantial improvement in fire protection can be accomplished by the merger."

Clark Comment On Garrison Brings Denial

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark was quoted as saying here last night he "might have to prosecute Jim Garrison," the controversial district attorney of New Orleans.

However, a spokesman for the Justice Department in Washington said the department has no plans for bringing a case against Garrison at this time.

The spokesman further denied that Clark had accused Garrison of ruining prominent New Orleans businessman Clay Shaw.

Shaw is one of several persons Garrison is prosecuting for alleged participation in a 1963 conspiracy to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

Clark had been quoted last night by a reporter for the Charlottesville Daily Progress as saying Garrison "took a perfectly fine man, Clay Shaw, and ruined him just for personal aggrandizement."

The spokesman said the attorney general was discussing the matter hypothetically and stated no conclusion about the Garrison case against Shaw.

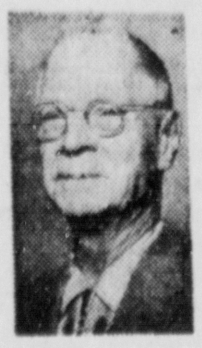
Takes Longshot To Win Permit For A California Elk Hunt



STEVENS

A wise gambler would hesitate a long time before forking over $25 to stand a chance of winning against odds of 414 to one. But 10,351 nifty nimrods bucked those odds in trying to win a permit to shoot an elk in California. Only 25 permits were issued for the elk hunt.

I have had several phone calls and two post cards requesting information on deer hunting in Utah. To forestall other calls and cards, here is the dope on the deer outlook in Utah as stated by the Utah News Bureau.

IN UTAH ALL signs point to one of the better deer seasons of record, according to John E. "Bud" Phelps, director of Utah's Fish and Game Department. Announced dates for the general deer hunt are Oct. 21-31. Either sex animals are legal game in all but two of the state's 62 herd units.

Phelps disclosed that deer will be plentiful and in prime condition in this, an above-average water-forage year. The regular license kill is expected to reach or exceed the 15-year average of 90,000 animals, with a hunter success of above 50 per cent.

THERE IS NO restriction on the number of non-resident deer hunters coming to Utah. In fact, they have always been welcomed. A special invitation to take part in the deer hunt was extended by Phelps to the California hunters who make up 90 per cent of the non-residents coming to Utah to hunt.

Phelps also added the following note: "Those who wish to add fishing and upland game hunting will find the seasons open and the creel and bag returns high for the effort expended."

BUT, SPEAKING of fishing, we have that here in California, no need to go to another state.

Although the report of salmon trolling outside the Gate is not very spectacular, this condition is temporary. There is still time to load up on salmon.

In the upper reaches of the state, the upper Sacramento, the mouth upstream to the confluence of the Trinity with the Klamath, is furnishing some first rate angling for both salmon and steelhead.

AS REGARDS CHANCES to score on striped bass, prospects are fair to good to excellent depending upon the area fished. It remains a bit spotty in the upper San Pablo Bay, but there is no question the annual striper runs are now with us.

Reports from both sides of San Pablo Bay indicate a good run of nice fat flounders, and there has been no slackening off of the sturgeon yield.

STRIPERS HAVE been on the bite up the Napa River, in the Carquinez Strait and the lower Suisun Bay. Most bass are medium size—6 to 8 pounders, but an occasional lunker has been caught.

A late report from Jim Roads of Happy Camp on the Klamath indicates good steelhead fishing in that portion of the Klamath.

Bad weather—giant waves and rough riding has again canceled out the albacore trip by the boat Miss Dragnet. Trip must wait for the ocean to behave itself before she tries again.

Sticky Palm Tree Shot Costs Cerrudo A First Place Finish

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — A ball lodged in a palm tree cost Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael a chance to win the PGA amateur qualifying tournament yesterday and allowed South Africa's young whiz Bobby Cole a one-stroke victory in spite of a four-over-par final round.

Cole, the 19-year-old who copped the British Amateur in 1966, had a cushion of three early subpar rounds—69, 68 and 71—to protect him when he faltered. He shot a 73 and 76 over 36 holes yesterday for a 572 total around the 144-hole tourney.

Cerrudo, who started the tournament wtih a round of 67, finished with a 77 after he drove his ball into a palm tree off the 10th tee. At the time, Cole trailed Cerrudo by two strokes.

Cerrudo played the ball and came out with a double bogey to tie for third at 574 with Deanne Beman of Washington.

Second spot went to Gibby Gilbert of Hollywood, Fla., one stroke behind Cole.

Among the 30 earning spots in next year's PGA national tour from a field of 110 were Bob Murphy of Nichols, Fla., former U.S. Amateur champion; Bob Smith of Sacramento, Calif., Western Amateur champion; Walker Cup members Peter Townsend of England and Marty Fleckman of Port Arthur, Tex., and Tony Jacklin of England, a former member of the British Ryder Cup squad.

SPORTS SHORTS

BASKETBALL

LOS ANGELES — Jerry West, all-pro guard of the Las Angeles Lakers' NBA team, came up with a new break of the bone in his left hand which was fractured last season. He will be out of action from four to six weeks.

HOCKEY

LONG BEACH — Veteran National Hockey League goalie Terry Sawchuk was injured in a practice session and will miss the first two or three games of the new expansion team, the Los Angeles Kings.

BOXING

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The first semifinal bout in the World Boxing Association heavyweight elimination tournament will be fought in Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 11 when Jimmy Ellis of Louisville meets Oscar Bonavena of Argentina in a 12-round affair.

AUTO RACING

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jack Bowsher, a United States Auto Club driver, led third day qualifiers for Sunday's National 500 stock car race when he posted a four-lap average speed of 152.801 miles per hour over the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

BASEBALL

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Giants purchased six players from their farm clubs yesterday, four of them pitchers and the fifth the Pacific Coast League's all-star catcher.

They are righthander John Haydel and backstop Don Bryant from Phoenix of the PCL; southpaw Bob DeLong and righthander Jim Moyer from Decatur of the Mid-West League; righthander Mike Corkins from Fresno of the California League and outfielder Bernard Williams from Medford, Ore., in the Northwest League.

ST. LOUIS — The champion St. Louis Cardinals, eager to get back to their loyal hometown fans, passed up a chance to visit President Lyndon B. Johnson in Washington.

Cardinal president A. Busch Jr. said President Johnson invited the Cards to divert their charter plane returning from Boston for a stop in the nation's capitol. Busch said he declined the invitation because "we have all our good St. Louis fans waiting for us."

TROJANS

Buckley's 43 yard quick kick was downed by Bruce Kilby at the South S.F. two. When Walker's answering kick, barely managed under a heavy rush after another high snap, went only 24 yards, the Trojans punched it over in four plays.

Edson got two, then gave to Stirling three consecutive times for four, fifteen, and three yards, the last carry headlong plunge behind Kilby's atavistic block. Barnette made his third straight PAT.

The fourth quarter was uneventful, other than another fine quick kick by Buckley and an interception by Stirling, until the South City club, which was playing without its star halfback, Russ Cottrell, got a drive going with three minutes left.

The Warriors scored on a two-yard run by Vince Nash with 1:19 left, then recovered an outside kick at the Terra Linda 49. But Kilby and tackle Carl Hicks threw Warrior backs for losses totaling 19 yards on the next two plays, turning a moment of truth into a reaffirmation of the Trojans' strength.

Trojan Coach Don Lucas felt that "the whole club played well. I don't think either team was too up for the game, but we kept hitting and played tough football. It cost us, though. I don't know how badly Powell is hurt, and Dane Larsen and Weekly, our other linebackers, hardly played in the second half. But our reserves did a good job."

About next week, Lucas said, "Drake doesn't have those big linemen it had last year, but it's a quick, well-coached club that likes to hit. The best two line coaches in the league will be competing, and the better line will decide the game."

McLaren Sets Torrid Pace In Laguna-Seca

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Twelve drivers led by Bruce McLaren of New Zealand set a blistering pace in yesterday's first qualifying session of the Monterey Grand Prix, all of them cracking the existing Laguna lap record.

That was set last year by Jim Hall in his Chapparal with 104.7 miles an hour for the 1.9-mile, nine-turn course. McLaren blew that up in 109.1 mph.

McLaren turned the trick in his McLaren-Chevy MK 6. Following him in the initial qualifier for the $70,000 Sunday contest were Dan Gurney of Newport Beach, driving a powered Lola T-70, and McLaren's teammate, Dennis Hulme of New Zealand, driving a twin of McLaren's car.

Top time was worth a $700 reward, and if McLaren can come up with another first in either of the next two qualifying runs, he gets the pole position.

Gurney's second-best got him a $300 bonus.

Hulme is the man to watch in this race. He has won all three of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup races and could set up the championship with a victory Sunday.

John Surtees of England, last year's Can-Am champion, turned in an 11th-place time yesterday. Track observers felt he was having transmission trouble with his Lola-Chevy.

Two of the more interesting cars in the race turned in fourth and fifth fastest times. Former Laguna Seca winner Hall of Texas, driving his automatic Chaparral-Chevy with the unique spoiler wing on the rear, turned on a 107.00 mph finish ahead of Parnelli Jones in fifth with 105.84 mph driving a Lola T-70.

Jones' car was powered by a relatively small four-cam Ford V-8 of the Indianapolis type. The car was completed only last week and has never seen competition.

conscious.

The Giants had a golden opportunity to score early in the game when Dillon sent a punt billowing into a strong wind, with the ball landing on the three-yard line. But the Hornets set down Blackwell twice for losses and Richter and Peters once each to end that threat.

The Giants finally did score when a Novato fumble set them up on the seven in the second period. Two plays later, roll-out specialist Jim Peters found Biagini with a perfect tomato toss for the TD, the only one that was needed that night.

The Hornets should have listened to the field umpire when Dillon's punt came back home like a too-loyal boomerang.

"There's an ill wind that blows tonight," the official quipped.

It never did stop blowing.

coupled with a 49er victory over the Eagles, would throw the NFL Coastal Division into a three-way first place tie among the Colts, 49ers and Rams. A Colt win, coupled with a 49er loss, would give Baltimore an almost prohibitive two game lead in the division.

A year ago the Rams beat the Colts 23-7 at Baltimore and their coach, George Allen, then declared: "The Rams became a team today."

Marin Hurting For Yuba Game

College of Marin's theatrical 42-41 win over Sierra last week was something like New Year's Eve. It was great while it lasted, but in the cruel light of morning, oh such a headache!

Marin coach Dick Read has been brought down to earth again by the sobering, if not terrifying, list of injuries the Mariners will take into their Golden Valley conference game with Yuba at Marysville tonight.

The list of hurt and lame, long enough to qualify the Tars for federal relief as a disaster area, ranges from starting defensive end Jerry Feickert, who's out for the year with a broken elbow, to offensive end Len Pieri and reserve center Trevor Benedict, who missed practices with the flu.

DEFINITELY OUT

Also definitely out for the game are starting halfback Donnie Smith and guard Bob Barnecut, each with a bruised shoulder. Halfback Dean Lazzarini will see limited action with a shoulder pointer, end Chris Anderson is doubtful with a head injury that has kept him out of the last two games.

To add to Read's woes, starting defensive end Bill McClelland and reserve deep back Tom Lacey are out for the rest of the season because they did not carry the required number of units last semester.

"With all those men out," said Read, "we're down to about 42 players, counting the walking wounded."

REJUVENATED CLUB

The crippled Tars will be visiting a rejuvenated Yuba club. After dropping their first three games, the 49ers made a complete about-face by swamping Napa 39-6 in their conference opener.

Yuba likes to run the ball, with halfback Tim Barrett, All-Conference last season as a flanker, running wide on pitch-outs from freshman quarterback Bill Dolphin. "They're big, as usual," said Read. "The front four averages about 235 and 6-3."

The 49ers also throw, with Dolphin passing to either slot-back Bill Oliver, a speed merchant from the prominent Yuba football family (three brothers have starred there) or to split end Gordon Elwell.

Finnegan, Marin 'Cats Go Against Salesian

Salesian High School's football team makes its third and last trip into Marin County tonight in a game against Marin Catholic's independent Wildcats at College of Marin Stadium, 8 o'clock.

So far, it has been unmitigated disaster, Marin-wise, for Salesian. It has lost to Novato, 20-6, and Tamalpais, 27-6. The Wildcats hope they can make this trip just another unpleasant memory for the visitors from Richmond.

The Wildcats seem to be in good shape for this contest, with only former staring quarterback Tommy Crawford still unable to handle throwing duties.

Coach Joel Kiff has at least found a more than adequate replacement in 170-pound Jim Nelson. And he has a talented backfield that poses a double threat.

Jim Finnegan will be back, after sitting out one game with a broken finger, but this time he'll be at fullback. Jim O'Brien, who gained 124 yards subbing for Finnegan last week, gets a starting role at one halfback, giving the Wildcats a potent one-two running punch.

Kiff thinks his chances are good.

"They're a good team," he said of Salesian. "But if we cut off their end runs and stop the long pass, we have a good chance."

Williams Signs Three-Year Pact With Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Dick Williams, who led the Boston Red Sox from ninth place to the American League pennant in his first year as manager, signed a three-year contract today to pilot the club through the 1970 season.

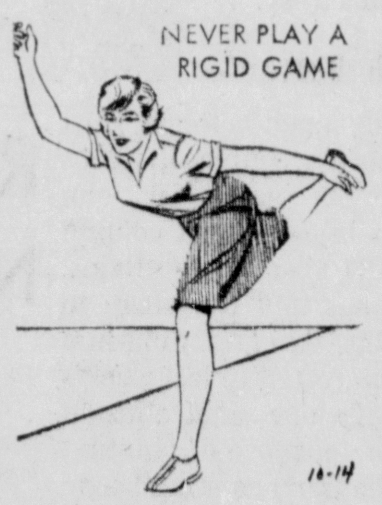
The salary was not disclosed, but General Manager Dick O'Connell said Williams received "a very substantial increase in pay."

Williams received an estiated $30,000 on his one-year contract this year and estimates are that the new pact calls for a salary in the neighborhood of $50,000 a year.

"We think he's done a tremendous job," O'Connell said at a news conference. "We hope he keeps it up for many years to come."

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



NEVER PLAY A RIGID GAME
10-14

Loosen up, if you want to enjoy bowling. Too many women bowlers try to expend only as much energy in bowling as they do while playing bridge. That is contrary to the purpose of the whole sport. If you dress properly there is no reason why you shouldn't let yourself go while throwing a bowling ball. Give a good follow-through and kick your leg if you want. Your fun — and your scores — will increase.

Takes Longshot To Win Permit For A California Elk Hunt

STEVENS

A wise gambler would hesitate a long time before forking over $25 to stand a chance of winning against odds of 414 to one. But 10,351 nifty nimrods bucked those odds in trying to win a permit to shoot an elk in California. Only 25 permits were issued for the elk hunt.

I have had several phone calls and two post cards requesting information on deer hunting in Utah. To forestall other calls and cards, here is the dope on the deer outlook in Utah as stated by the Utah News Bureau.

IN UTAH ALL signs point to one of the better deer seasons of record, according to John E. "Bud" Phelps, director of Utah's Fish and Game Department. Announced dates for the general deer hunt are Oct. 21-31. Either sex animals are legal game in all but two of the state's 62 herd units.

Phelps disclosed that deer will be plentiful and in prime condition in this, an above-average water-forage year. The regular license kill is expected to reach or exceed the 15-year average of 90,000 animals, with a hunter success of above 50 per cent.

THERE IS NO restriction on the number of non-resident deer hunters coming to Utah. In fact, they have always been welcomed. A special invitation to take part in the deer hunt was extended by Phelps to the California hunters who make up 90 per cent of the non-residents coming to Utah to hunt.

Phelps also added the following note: "Those who wish to add fishing and upland game hunting will find the seasons open and the creel and bag returns high for the effort expended."

BUT, SPEAKING of fishing, we have that here in California, no need to go to another state. Although the report of salmon trolling outside the Gate is not very spectacular, this condition is temporary. There is still time to load up on salmon.

In the upper reaches of the state, the upper Sacramento, the mouth upstream to the confluence of the Trinity with the Klamath, is furnishing some first rate angling for both salmon and steelhead.

AS REGARDS CHANCES to score on striped bass, prospects are fair to good to excellent depending upon the area fished. It remains a bit spotty in the upper San Pablo Bay, but there is no question the annual striper runs are now with us.

Reports from both sides of San Pablo Bay indicate a good run of nice fat flounders, and there has been no slackening off of the sturgeon yield.

STRIPERS HAVE been on the bite up the Napa River, in the Carquinez Strait and the lower Suisun Bay. Most bass are medium size—6 to 8 pounders, but an occasional lunker has been caught.

A late report from Jim Roads of Happy Camp on the Klamath indicates good steelhead fishing in that portion of the Klamath.

Bad weather—giant waves and rough riding has again canceled out the albacore trip by the boat Miss Dragnet. Trip must wait for the ocean to behave itself before she tries again.

Sticky Palm Tree Shot Costs Cerrudo A First Place Finish

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — A ball lodged in a palm tree cost Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael a chance to win the PGA amateur qualifying tournament yesterday and allowed South Africa's young whiz Bobby Cole a one-stroke victory in spite of a four-over-par final round.

Cole, the 19-year-old who copped the British Amateur in 1966, had a cushion of three early subpar rounds—69, 68 and 71—to protect him when he faltered. He shot a 73 and 76 over 36 holes yesterday for a 572 total around the 144-hole tourney.

Cerrudo, who started the tournament wtih a round of 67, finished with a 77 after he drove his ball into a palm tree off the 10th tee. At the time, Cole trailed Cerrudo by two strokes.

Cerrudo played the ball and came out with a double bogey to tie for third at 574 with Deanne Beman of Washington.

Second spot went to Gibby Gilbert of Hollywood, Fla., one stroke behind Cole.

Among the 30 earning spots in next year's PGA national tour from a field of 110 were Bob Murphy of Nichols, Fla., former U.S. Amateur champion; Bob Smith of Sacramento, Calif., Western Amateur champion; Walker Cup members Peter Townsend of England and Marty Fleckman of Port Arthur, Tex., and Tony Jacklin of England, a former member of the British Ryder Cup squad.

HOCKEY

LONG BEACH — Veteran National Hockey League goalie Terry Sawchuk was injured in a practice session and will miss the first two or three games of the new expansion team, the Los Angeles Kings.

BOXING

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The first semifinal bout in the World Boxing Association heavyweight elimination tournament will be fought in Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 11 when Jimmy Ellis of Louisville meets Oscar Bonavena of Argentina in a 12-round affair.

AUTO RACING

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jack Bowsher, a United States Auto Club driver, led third day qualifiers for Sunday's National 500 stock car race when he posted a four-lap average speed of 152.801 miles per hour over the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

BASEBALL

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Giants purchased six players from their farm clubs yesterday, four of them pitchers and the fifth the Pacific Coast League's all-star catcher.

They are righthander John Haydel and backstop Don Bryant from Phoenix of the PCL; southpaw Bob DeLong and righthander Jim Moyer from Decatur of the Mid-West League; righthander Mike Corkins from Fresno of the California League and outfielder Bernard Williams from Medford, Ore., in the Northwest League.

ST. LOUIS — The champion St. Louis Cardinals, eager to get back to their loyal hometown fans, passed up a chance to visit President Lyndon B. Johnson in Washington.

Cardinal president A. Busch Jr. said President Johnson invited the Cards to divert their charter plane returning from Boston for a stop in the nation's capitol. Busch said he declined the invitation because "we have all our good St. Louis fans waiting for us."

Buckley's 43 yard quick kick was downed by Bruce Kilby at the South S.F. two. When Walker's answering kick, barely managed under a heavy rush after another high snap, went only 24 yards, the Trojans punched it over in four plays.

Edson got two, then gave to Stirling three consecutive times for four, fifteen, and three yards, the last carry headlong plunge behind Kilby's atavistic block. Barnette made his third straight PAT.

The fourth quarter was uneventful, other than another fine quick kick by Buckley and an interception by Stirling, until the South City club, which was playing without its star halfback, Russ Cottrell, got a drive going with three minutes left.

The Warriors scored on a two-yard run by Vince Nash with 1:19 left, then recovered an outside kick at the Terra Linda 49. But Kilby and tackle Carl Hicks threw Warrior backs for losses totaling 19 yards on the next two plays, turning a moment of truth into a reaffirmation of the Trojans' strength.

Trojan Coach Don Lucas felt that "the whole club played well. I don't think either team was too up for the game, but we kept hitting and played tough football. It cost us, though. I don't know how badly Powell is hurt, and Dane Larsen and Weekly, our other linebackers, hardly played in the second half. But our reserves did a good job."

About next week, Lucas said, "Drake doesn't have those big linemen it had last year, but it's a quick, well-coached club that likes to hit. The best two line coaches in the league will be competing, and the better line will decide the game."

McLaren Sets Torrid Pace In Laguna-Seca

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Twelve drivers led by Bruce McLaren of New Zealand set a blistering pace in yesterday's first qualifying session of the Monterey Grand Prix, all of them cracking the existing Laguna lap record.

That was set last year by Jim Hall in his Chapparal with 104.7 miles an hour for the 1.9-mile, nine-turn course. McLaren blew that up in 109.1 mph.

McLaren turned the trick in his McLaren-Chevy MK 6. Following him in the initial qualifier for the $70,000 Sunday contest were Dan Gurney of Newport Beach, driving a powered Lola T-70, and McLaren's teammate, Dennis Hulme of New Zealand, driving a twin of McLaren's car.

Top time was worth a $700 reward, and if McLaren can come up with another first in either of the next two qualifying runs, he gets the pole position. Gurney's second-best got him a $300 bonus.

Hulme is the man to watch in this race. He has won all three of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup races and could set up the championship with a victory Sunday.

John Surtees of England, last year's Can-Am champion, turned in an 11th-place time yesterday. Track observers felt he was having transmission trouble with his Lola-Chevy.

Two of the more interesting cars in the race turned in fourth and fifth fastest times. Former Laguna Seca winner Hall of Texas, driving his automatic Chaparral-Chevy with the unique spoiler wing on the rear, turned on a 107.00 mph finish ahead of Parnelli Jones in fifth with 105.84 mph driving a Lola T-70.

Jones' car was powered by a relatively small four-cam Ford V-8 of the Indianapolis type. The car was completed only last week and has never seen competition.

The Giants had a golden opportunity to score early in the game when Dillon sent a punt billowing into a strong wind, with the ball landing on the three-yard line. But the Hornets set down Blackwell twice for losses and Richter and Peters once each to end that threat.

The Giants finally did score when a Novato fumble set them up on the seven in the second period. Two plays later, roll-out specialist Jim Peters found Biagini with a perfect tomato toss for the TD, the only one that was needed that night.

The Hornets should have listened to the field umpire when Dillon's punt came back home like a too-loyal boomerang.

"There's an ill wind that blows tonight," the official quipped.

It never did stop blowing.

coupled with a 49er victory over the Eagles, would throw the NFL Coastal Division into a three-way first place tie among the Colts, 49ers and Rams. A Colt win, coupled with a 49er loss, would give Baltimore an almost prohibitive two game lead in the division.

A year ago the Rams beat the Colts 23-7 at Baltimore and their coach, George Allen, then declared: "The Rams became a team today."

Marin Hurting For Yuba Game

College of Marin's theatrical 42-41 win over Sierra last week was something like New Year's Eve. It was great while it lasted, but in the cruel light of morning, oh such a headache!

Marin coach Dick Read has been brought down to earth again by the sobering, if not terrifying, list of injuries the Mariners will take into their Golden Valley conference game with Yuba at Marysville tonight.

The list of hurt and lame, long enough to qualify the Tars for federal relief as a disaster area, ranges from starting defensive end Jerry Feickert, who's out for the year with a broken elbow, to offensive end Len Pieri and reserve center Trevor Benedict, who missed practices with the flu.

DEFINITELY OUT

Also definitely out for the game are starting halfback Donnie Smith and guard Bob Barnecut, each with a bruised shoulder. Halfback Dean Lazzarini will see limited action with a shoulder pointer, end Chris Anderson is doubtful with a head injury that has kept him out of the last two games.

To add to Read's woes, starting defensive end Bill McClelland and reserve deep back Tom Lacey are out for the rest of the season because they did not carry the required number of units last semester.

"With all those men out," said Read, "we're down to about 42 players, counting the walking wounded."

REJUVENATED CLUB

The crippled Tars will be visiting a rejuvenated Yuba club. After dropping their first three games, the 49ers made a complete about-face by swamping Napa 39-6 in their conference opener.

Yuba likes to run the ball, with halfback Tim Barrett, All-Conference last season as a flanker, running wide on pitch-outs from freshman quarterback Bill Dolphin. "They're big, as usual," said Read. "The front four averages about 235 and 6-3."

The 49ers also throw, with Dolphin passing to either slot-back Bill Oliver, a speed merchant from the prominent Yuba football family (three brothers have starred there) or to split end Gordon Elwell.

Finnegan, Marin 'Cats Go Against Salesian

Salesian High School's football team makes its third and last trip into Marin County tonight in a game against Marin Catholic's independent Wildcats at College of Marin Stadium, 8 o'clock.

So far, it has been unmitigated disaster, Marin-wise, for Salesian. It has lost to Novato, 20-6, and Tamalpais, 27-6. The Wildcats hope they can make this trip just another unpleasant memory for the visitors from Richmond.

The Wildcats seem to be in good shape for this contest, with only former staring quarterback Tommy Crawford still unable to handle throwing duties.

Coach Joel Kiff has at least found a more than adequate replacement in 170-pound Jim Nelson. And he has a talented backfield that poses a double threat.

Jim Finnegan will be back, after sitting out one game with a broken finger, but this time he'll be at fullback. Jim O'Brien, who gained 124 yards subbing for Finnegan last week, gets a starting role at one halfback, giving the Wildcats a potent one-two running punch.

Kiff thinks his chances are good.

"They're a good team," he said of Salesian. "But if we cut off their end runs and stop the long pass, we have a good chance."

Bolinas Utility District May Take Over Fire District Role

Bolinas Fire Protection District may be dissolved and the services taken over by the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District.

This merger proposal is scheduled to come up before the Local Agency Formation Commission at 7:30 a.m. Nov. 2 in the Marin County Civic Center.

The merger has the blessings of the boards of commissioners of both the fire district and the public utilities district, Assistant County Administrator John F. Barrows reported.

Resolutions passed by both governing bodies urge the merger and agree that the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District will be expanded to become contiguous with the present boundaries of the fire district, which comprises some 5,700 acres.

Directors of the Public utilities district will continue as directors of the merged district, and the fire commission will be dissolved.

The areas in the fire district which are at present outside the boundaries of the public utilites district would not be liable for any bonded indebtedness of the utilities district.

The two bodies give this reason for the proposed merger: "Substantial economies of operation together with substantial improvement in fire protection can be accomplished by the merger."

Liberal On Liquor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—New Orleans liquor laws are probably the most liberal in the nation. The state has no curfews. Bars and lounges can remain open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Clark Comment On Garrison Brings Denial

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark was quoted as saying here last night he "might have to prosecute Jim Garrison," the controversial district attorney of New Orleans.

However, a spokesman for the Justice Department in Washington said the department has no plans for bringing a case against Garrison at this time.

The spokesman further denied that Clark had accused Garrison of ruining prominent New Orleans businessman Clay Shaw.

Shaw is one of several persons Garrison is prosecuting for alleged participation in a 1963 conspiracy to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

Clark had been quoted last night by a reporter for the Charlottesville Daily Progress as saying Garrison "took a perfectly fine man, Clay Shaw, and ruined him just for personal aggrandizement."

The spokesman said the attorney general was discussing the matter hypothetically and stated no conclusion about the Garrison case against Shaw.

Gate Bridge Bus Lanes Study On Nov. 24 Agenda

The Marin Taransit District's request that the current study on double-decking the Golden Gate Bridge include plans for rapid transit bus lanes will be taken up Nov. 24 by the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District Board.

The board, sitting as a committee of the whole, agreed to consider the request.

Marin Director Thomas D. Hardcastle submitted the request, which would include the bus study in the $265,000 deck study being made by consultant engineers Amman and Whitney.

The board kept the Amman and Whitney study alive yesterday despite a move by San Francisco directors to kill it by terminating the Amman and Whitney contract.

A plan for a one-way toll system aimed at lessening bridge congestion was outlined, but the board took no action. The one-way system is included in the double-deck study.

The joint finance and building and operating committee took up the one-way plan Thursday, but took no action after objections were raised by General Manager James Adam, District Engineer Robert E. Shields and board President John E. Nelson.

Yesterday, however, Nelson saved the plan from being dropped altogether from the committee agenda. If a second deck is not built, he said, the one-way play would be a partial solution to congestion.

The board also received traffic statistics for September showing a 5.94 per cent increase over a year ago. Average number of vehicles daily was 84,103. Total revenue for the month was $547,324.

Coin Club Speaker

Steven Album of Oakland will be guest speaker at the Marin Coin Club meeting at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at Brown's Hall, 390 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley. He will spek on California tokens.

Too-Hard Work Compares To Suicide Wish

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Millions of persons seek to bring about their own deaths through "suicide equivalents" such as working too hard, drinking too much and use of abusing drugs, according to a psychologist and drug expert.

Dr. Joel Fort's analysis was made at a seminar on suicide sponsored by San Francisco State College and the Presbyterian Medical Center.

What makes people want to die, he said, is their inability to adjust to a society of violence and moral corruption, the opposite of their early teachings.

Among "suicide equivalents" he listed "drop out of life styles" such as the hippie, hobo and skid row bum.

Others with an unconscious desire to kill themselves are alcoholics, cigaret smokers, hypochondriacs, drug addicts and chronic criminals.

"What is one to say of the man who goes forth in an old car with poor tires, with unbuckled safety belt, with an overdose of alcohol and who drives at high speed?" he asked.

A Detroit assembly line turns out about one car per minute.

Gate Bridge Bus Lanes Study On Nov. 24 Agenda

The Marin Taransit District's request that the current study on double-decking the Golden Gate Bridge include plans for rapid transit bus lanes will be taken up Nov. 24 by the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District Board.

The board, sitting as a committee of the whole, agreed to consider the request.

Marin Director Thomas D. Hardcastle submitted the request, which would include the bus study in the $265,000 deck study being made by consultant engineers Amman and Whitney.

The board kept the Amman and Whitney study alive yesterday despite a move by San Francisco directors to kill it by terminating the Amman and Whitney contract.

A plan for a one-way toll system aimed at lessening bridge congestion was outlined, but the board took no action. The one-way system is included in the double-deck study.

The joint finance and building and operating committee took up the one-way plan Thursday, but took no action after objections were raised by General Manager James Adam, District Engineer Robert E. Shields and board President John E. Nelson.

Yesterday, however, Nelson saved the plan from being dropped altogether from the committee agenda. If a second deck is not built, he said, the one-way play would be a partial solution to congestion.

The board also received traffic statistics for September showing a 5.94 per cent increase over a year ago. Average number of vehicles daily was 84,103. Total revenue for the month was $547,324.

Coin Club Speaker

Steven Album of Oakland will be guest speaker at the Marin Coin Club meeting at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at Brown's Hall, 390 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley. He will spek on California tokens.

Too-Hard Work Compares To Suicide Wish

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Millions of persons seek to bring about their own deaths through "suicide equivalents" such as working too hard, drinking too much and use of abusing drugs, according to a psychologist and drug expert.

Dr. Joel Fort's analysis was made at a seminar on suicide sponsored by San Francisco State College and the Presbyterian Medical Center.

What makes people want to die, he said, is their inability to adjust to a society of violence and moral corruption, the opposite of their early teachings.

Among "suicide equivalents" he listed "drop out of life styles" such as the hippie, hobo and skid row bum.

Others with an unconscious desire to kill themselves are alcoholics, cigaret smokers, hypochondriacs, drug addicts and chronic criminals.

"What is one to say of the man who goes forth in an old car with poor tires, with unbuckled safety belt, with an overdose of alcohol and who drives at high speed?" he asked.

A Detroit assembly line turns out about one car per minute.

Slope Work Recommended For Safe Hospital Site

A fill slope on Bon Air Hill next to Mrin General Hospital is just "barely stable" and should be corrected to ensure safety of Marin's Community Mental Health Center being built next to the hospital, according to an Oakland engineering firm.

The study was made by Woodward-Clyde-Sherard and Associates at the request of the Marin General Hospital Board of Directors.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, refusing to participate in the cost of the slide study, has taken the stand that Schultz Development Co., which is building an apartment house on the hill, is liable for any slides that may occur. Schultz Co. officials maintain that their engineers have reported the hill is safe.

The engineering report by Woodward-Clyde-Shepard confirms that the slide danger is on Schultz property, although a major slide could encroach on the new $1.6 million mental health building under construction.

"The safety of the fill slope is, in our opinion marginal," says the engineering report. "The bottom portion of the fill is, in our opinion, barely stable, and some sliding and instability in this area is anticipated. A small failure or shallow slide at the toe of the embankment would not, in themselves, constitute a hazard to the new hospital addition.

". . . However, due to the marginal safety of the embankment, any loss of suppprt at the toe of the fill slope could cause a much larger slide . . . A slide of this magnitude could possible encroach upon the new building."

The engineers recommended excavating the lower fill slope, installing subsurface drainage, and building a buttress fill against the toe of the embankment.

An altenative would be installation of subsurface drainage and replacement of fill to its present grade and slope.

Two Marijuana Counts In Court

Elmer Clayton White, 23, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a felony complaint of two marijuana counts.

Plea entry was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday. White allegedly had marijuana in his house trailer in Forest Knolls on Sept. 28. The second count charges he had marijuana for sale.

His wife, Claudia Mae White, 21, was charged with the same counts earlier. Trial is pending. Sheriff's officers said the couple had eight match boxes of marijuana.

The oldest public art museum in the United States is the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford, Conn., completed in 1844.

Ambulance Driver Fined For Speeding

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An ambulance driver was fined $20 Friday for speeding during an emergency run, the first case tried under a new city ordinance.

The ordinance forbids ambulances from traveling on emergency runs more than 10 miles per hour over the posted limit.

Slope Work Recommended For Safe Hospital Site

A fill slope on Bon Air Hill next to Mrin General Hospital is just "barely stable" and should be corrected to ensure safety of Marin's Community Mental Health Center being built next to the hospital, according to an Oakland engineering firm.

The study was made by Woodward-Clyde-Sherard and Associates at the request of the Marin General Hospital Board of Directors.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, refusing to participate in the cost of the slide study, has taken the stand that Schultz Development Co., which is building an apartment house on the hill, is liable for any slides that may occur. Schultz Co. officials maintain that their engineers have reported the hill is safe.

The engineering report by Woodward-Clyde-Shepard confirms that the slide danger is on Schultz property, although a major slide could encroach on the new $1.6 million mental health building under construction.

"The safety of the fill slope is, in our opinion marginal," says the engineering report. "The bottom portion of the fill is, in our opinion, barely stable, and some sliding and instability in this area is anticipated. A small failure or shallow slide at the toe of the embankment would not, in themselves, constitute a hazard to the new hospital addition.

". . . However, due to the marginal safety of the embankment, any loss of suppprt at the toe of the fill slope could cause a much larger slide . . . A slide of this magnitude could possible encroach upon the new building."

The engineers recommended excavating the lower fill slope, installing subsurface drainage, and building a buttress fill against the toe of the embankment.

An altenative would be installation of subsurface drainage and replacement of fill to its present grade and slope.

Two Marijuana Counts In Court

Elmer Clayton White, 23, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a felony complaint of two marijuana counts.

Plea entry was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday. White allegedly had marijuana in his house trailer in Forest Knolls on Sept. 28. The second count charges he had marijuana for sale.

His wife, Claudia Mae White, 21, was charged with the same counts earlier. Trial is pending. Sheriff's officers said the couple had eight match boxes of marijuana.

The oldest public art museum in the United States is the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford, Conn., completed in 1844.

Ambulance Driver Fined For Speeding

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An ambulance driver was fined $20 Friday for speeding during an emergency run, the first case tried under a new city ordinance.

The ordinance forbids ambulances from traveling on emergency runs more than 10 miles per hour over the posted limit.

Lucille Shreve—A Traveling Thespian

Theater and travel are only two of the many interests of Lucille Shreve of Corte Madera.

She's also an amateur anthropologist, a golfer, a boating and swimming enthusiast, an active clubwoman, a housewife, a hobbyist and much else.

But the two subjects about which she talks with the greatest interest are her little theater work, and her travels with her husband, Nelson Shreve, an advertising agency executive.

THE TRAVELS have provided her with a rich source of recollections and anecdotes.

For instance, there was the time when she met up with a real, not-alive ghost while spending several days on a remote island off the coast of Scotland.

She awoke in the night to the sound of some one sighing and crying outside her door.

The same sound was heard on subsequent nights.

"BUT I WAS afraid to tell anyone," she says, "because I didn't want people to think I had cracked up."

Came the time for her departure, and the caretaker asked if she would like to extend her stay. Hesitantly, Lucille Shreve told about the strange noises in the night.

Matter-of-factly, the caretaker offered this explanation: "That was a child who was killed during the London blitz, and her parents buried her here near her old home. Now, when some one is staying in her old room and it is some one she thinks might be friendly, she comes out.

"NOT EVERYONE gets to hear her."

Mrs. Shreve did not extend her island stay.

Other Shreve travel adventures have been varied, ranging from a friendship with a Tahitian native dedicated to learning "kosher" cooking to exploring Mexico's pyramids and collecting rare stones during the climb.

Mrs. Shreve often combines her interests in travel and the theater, spending night after night in the theaters of London and Paris.

BUT IT IS in her home territory of Marin that her enthusiasm for the stage becomes most pronounced. She has established herself as one of the stalwarts of the county's little theater movement.

Included among her credits is a long association as producer, director, actress and board member with the traditional Mountain Play.

She has produced a number of plays for the Sausalito Women's Club.

One of her closest affiliations is with the Tiburon Peninsula's Cove Players. She is one of the founders of that troupe. And she is currently co-directing that group's production of "Catch Me If You Can," a thriller that opened last weekend at the 41 Main Street Theater in Tiburon above Tiburon Tommie's Restaurant, and will continue to play Friday and Saturday evenings, including tonight, at 9 o'clock, through October.

SHE DESCRIBES the Alfred Hitchcock-style play as "one of our most exciting undertakings. It is the Bay Area premiere, and we have assembled an outstanding cast."

One of her current objectives is to bring about a greater coordination and cooperation among Marin's little theater groups.

"The benefits would be countless," she says. "We could exchange costumes and information on actors and borrow props, lighting equipment and sets when necessary."

It could, she feels, create a pool of talent as well as equipment that would raise the level of all the little theater companies.

IN "CATCH ME If You Can," she is working again with another Marin little theater veteran, Dan Totheroh, who is the director.

It is a team that has worked effectively together in the past.

Lucille Shreve's other interests are not forgotten, and more travels loom ahead.

But right now, she says, "the play is the thing."

THE EXPERIENCED and successful Marin little theater team of director Dan Totheroh and co-director Lucille Shreve is working together again in the Cove Players' current production of "Catch Me If You Can" Friday and Saturday nights at the 41 Main Street Theater in Tiburon. Here the two study the script and find some comedy lines among the suspense.

THE 150TH ANNIVERSARY of Marin's historic Mission San Rafael Arcangel will be observed next week with special programs from Wednesday through Sunday. The mission, as depicted above by an artist, was founded on Dec. 14, 1817, by the Franciscan fathers as a refuge for their Indian neophytes from San Francisco's unfriendly climate. When decay and man razed the historic edifice, it was rebuilt, and stands today on San Rafael's Fifth Avenue as a prime tourist attraction.

Story Of Mission San Rafael Arcangel

It Was Founded 150 Years Ago

By A Devout Franciscan Father

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Independent-Journal Historian

Kneeling before a crude cross and with a cold wind whipping their long robes, four Franciscan friars founded Mission San Rafael Arcangel on Dec. 14, 1817.

They were watched by a cluster of Indian neophytes they had brought with them from the Yerba Buena mission of San Francisco de Asis better known as the Mission Delores, across the bay.

Also watching, in wonderment, were some of the Coastal Miwok Indians who were the natives of the area.

WHAT THEY were seeing was the birth of the 20th of a chain of 21 Franciscan missions in California. It marked one of the final chapters of a story that had begun nearly a century earlier when a 16-year-old Majorcan-born youth entered the Franciscan order.

From the outset, Fr. Junipero Serra longed for an assignment in the New World and an opportunity to convert the natives of Mexico to Christianity. After repeated petitions, he finally received permission in 1749 and reached Vera Cruz after an arduous 99-day voyage.

For 19 years after his arrival in New Spain, Father Serra was kept busy in the Franciscan program of preaching and founding missions.

THEN, IN 1767, came the suppression of the Jesuit order and the expulsion of all its missionaries from the Spanish dominions. It was decided that a body of Franciscans should take over the Jesuit missions in Lower California, no settlements having been made at that time in Alta California.

Father Serra was put in charge and named presidente of all California missions.

His assignment went beyond the mere operation of the missions established by the Jesuits, and included the colonization of Upper California.

AS A RESULT, a band of missionaries, with crop seeds and cattle from the Lower California missions, moved northward with instructions to set up new missions in San Diego and Monterey.

Their first mission was established at San Diego de Alcala on June 16, 1769.

Then, one by one, about a day's journey apart, the Franciscans forged their chain of missions until it stretched ultimately to Yerba Buena, or San Francisco. San Rafael was to be the next link, and its founding was related directly to health problems being experienced at the San Francisco mission.

IN HIS "Missions and Missionaries of California," Fr. Zephyrin Engelhardt wrote:

"The mortality at Mission San Francisco had always been out of proportion to the ordinary rate . . .

"Fr. Ramon Abella pointed out three causes for the high death rate. A large percentage of the dead were children or infants who probably lacked rational treatment on the part of their mothers; the next cause, according to the father, was the change from a wild to a civilized life; lastly, the unfortunate people were constitutionally debilitated by venereal diseases . . ."

BUT AN important contributing cause of the high death rate, Father Engelhardt wrote, was the inclemency of the San Francisco climate.

It was Gov. Pablo Vicente Sola who suggested transferring a part of the mission population to the healthier climes north of San Francisco Bay. As an experiment, a small number of ailing Indians were sent to the northern shore "greatly to the benefit of their health."

But, because of the isolation of the area to the north and because of the shortage of the priests, the Father Prefect hesitated to make a larger and more formal transfer to the new site.

THEN SEVERAL of the Indian neophytes died without benefit of sacraments from a priest, and a padre stepped forward to volunteer for the hazardous assignment.

Fr. Luis Gil y Taboada wrote Governor Sola on Dec. 10, 1817: "I am ready to sacrifice myself in the service of these poor Indians, even to the shedding of my blood if necessary."

Prior to his death, Fr. Francis F. McCarthy, upon learning that I was collecting information on the mission from the archives in the San Francisco Archdiocese library, wrote me, offering me information on Father Gil, to

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792—Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"Why Did My Cocktail Dress Get Baggy?"

Your cocktail dress is made of two different fabrics. The outer fabric is a cotton knit of an open, fish-net construction. It is lined with rayon crepe. Similar garments are of rayon knit fish-net lined with tricot or acetate taffeta. In each instance the bagginess appears because the fish-net becomes distorted and either shrinks or stretches in cleaning while the lining material remains stable.

Special care should be taken not to pull the dress while it is warm or wet with steam. The "bagginess problem" is showing a notable growth as the popularity of this cocktail dress increases.

"The mortality at Mission San Francisco had always been out of proportion to the ordinary rate . . .

"Fr. Ramon Abella pointed out three causes for the high death rate. A large percentage of the dead were children or infants who probably lacked rational treatment on the part of their mothers; the next cause, according to the father, was the change from a wild to a civilized life; lastly, the unfortunate people were constitutionally debilitated by venereal diseases . . ."

BUT AN important contributing cause of the high death rate, Father Engelhardt wrote, was the inclemency of the San Francisco climate.

It was Gov. Pablo Vicente Sola who suggested transferring a part of the mission population to the healthier climes north of San Francisco Bay. As an experiment, a small number of ailing Indians were sent to the northern shore "greatly to the benefit of their health."

But, because of the isolation of the area to the north and because of the shortage of the priests, the Father Prefect hesitated to make a larger and more formal transfer to the new site.

THEN SEVERAL of the Indian neophytes died without benefit of sacraments from a priest, and a padre stepped forward to volunteer for the hazardous assignment.

Fr. Luis Gil y Taboada wrote Governor Sola on Dec. 10, 1817: "I am ready to sacrifice myself in the service of these poor Indians, even to the shedding of my blood if necessary."

Prior to his death, Fr. Francis F. McCarthy, upon learning that I was collecting information on the mission from the archives in the San Francisco Archdiocese library, wrote me, offering me information on Father Gil, to

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792—Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"Why Did My Cocktail Dress Get Baggy?"

Your cocktail dress is made of two different fabrics. The outer fabric is a cotton knit of an open, fish-net construction. It is lined with rayon crepe. Similar garments are of rayon knit fish-net lined with tricot or acetate taffeta. In each instance the bagginess appears because the fish-net becomes distorted and either shrinks or stretches in cleaning while the lining material remains stable.

Special care should be taken not to pull the dress while it is warm or wet with steam. The "bagginess problem" is showing a notable growth as the popularity of this cocktail dress increases.

who rightfully belongs the title of "Founder of Mission San Rafael Arcangel."

"UNLIKE HIS brother priests in California who were all Spanish-born," Father McCarthy wrote, "Padre Luis Gil y Taboada was Mexican born—in Santa Fe. He had studied for the priesthood with the Fathers of the Recollection of Our Lady in his native land, but at 27, he joined the Franciscan community at the College of San Fernando to satisfy his ambition of becoming a missionary. He had served two years at Mission Dolores on his first assignment in California, before being made the curate at Mission San Jose."

Father McCarthy noted that Father Gil was especially qualified for the San Rafael assignment, since the new outpost had its beginnings principally as an auxiliary or asistencia sanitorium for Mission Dolores.

Aspirants to missionary life were expected to acquire an elementary knowledge of medicine and simple surgery to minister to the infirm they might encounter, the late historian wrote.

"BUT FATHER Gil y Taboada, while not a physician, was possessed of medical knowledge and surgical skill to a degree considerably above that of the ordinary missionary," Father McCarthy related. "Dr. George Heinrich von Langsdorff recognized that superiority when in his published work on diseases peculiar to the land, he offered his opinion of Fr. Luis Gil y Taboada.

"He wrote: 'He was especially skillful in performing operations, and adept in the performance of Caesarean operations'."

Padre Comisaria Prefect Sarria recorded with some awe how in one such operation Father Gil successfully delivered twins into the world. He also noted another accomplishment that was to serve Father Gil well on the new assignment for which he had volunteered, his mastery of Indian dialects.

A DESCRIPTION of those solemn proceedings of Dec. 14, 1817, that marked the beginning of Mission San Rafael Arcangel was given in writing to Fr. Presidente Mariano Payeras by Fr. Prefect Vincente Sarria:

"The beginning was given to the foundation of San Rafael with all solemnity on the 14th of last month by Fr. Abella, Fr. Narciso (Duran), Fr. Luis (Gil y) Taboada and myself. We planted and blessed with solemn ceremonies the Holy Cross at the time of the vespers, and on the day, Holy Mass was sung with music, Te Deum, and the word of God was announced in both languages.

"In the afternoon there were 26 baptisms of children. There are about 200 gentiles for instruction."

THE FRIARS came to California as missionaries of Christ, not as farmers, mechanics, carpenters or stock breeders. But before they could impart the message of the Gospel, they first had to train the Indians in skills so that they could provide for their own well-being.

Father Gil showed the neophytes how to mix straw with mud to form adobe bricks to be dried in the sun, and how to fire clay for tile.

The first structure to be built was a simple chapel that served both religious and utilitarian purposes. The roof was high with an attic between it and the chapel ceiling for the storage of hay and grain.

GRADUALLY fields were tilled and crops planted. Water was sluiced from the springs on San Rafael Hill to the main compound to irrigate the new grape vines and fruit trees.

Life at the mission followed a rigid routine. Bells were rung at sunrise to awaken the community. All members over 9 then assembled in the chapel for mass. After the service, the Indians gathered in the community kitchen for their breakfast rations — a copious supply of corn gruel in bark or pound for work assignments.

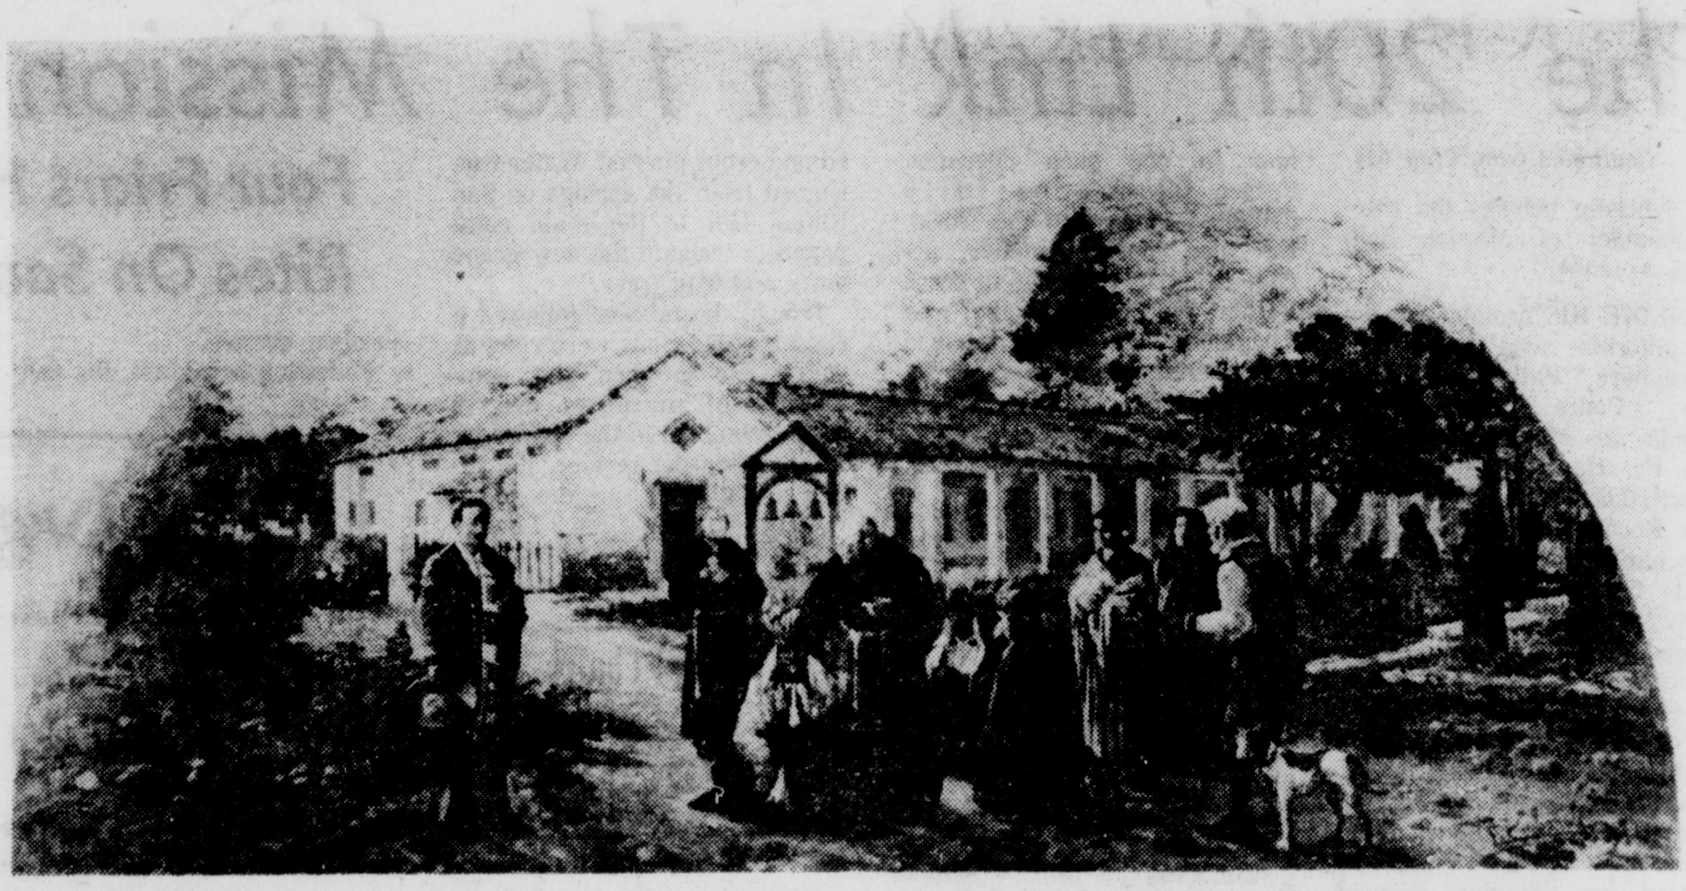
MANY OF THE men toiled in the fields. Others in crude workshops in the compound, learned such trades as sandalmaking, blacksmithing, harnessmaking, carpentry and boatbuilding.

The women were taught how to card, spin and weave wool, and how to sew. The stronger women took turns grinding corn and wheat on the metates. Expectant mothers had lighter chores. Nursing mothers remained at home as long as they wished.

Even the children had work to do, tending cattle.



THE BAPTISM of an Indian neophyte by a Franciscan father before the Mission San Rafael Arcangel was depicted in this artist's painting. Hundreds of Indians were converted to Christianity through the efforts of the dedicated missionaries assigned to the mission outpost north of San Francisco Bay.

AT NOON, the Angelus summoned the Indians to a dinner consisting of pozole, made from wild game or other meat, corn, peas, lentils and beans. Each person received a quart and a half allotment.

At 2 p.m., the Indians went back to work until 5, when they returned to say prayers. At 6 o'clock, they ate a supper of hot gruel, followed by a recreation period when the Indians danced, visited or played games of chance with sticks until the 8 o'clock curfew.

To busy Father Gil, the days seemed all too short. His knowledge of their language permitted him to converse with the neophytes, to tell them of his plans and to treat them as equals. A strong bond grew up between these Indians and the kindly friar.

THERE WERE other Indians, however, who could not be brought into the fold.

On record is a letter written by Father Gil to Capt. Luis Arguello, commandante of the Presidio at Yerba Buena, on April 25, 1818, expressing concern over the possible hostile intentions of Indians from an unfriendly rancheria toward his neophytes, and asking for assistance.

The corporal, Rafael Garcia, who headed the detail of four or five men sent to Mission San Rafael Arcangel to protect the padre and his charges was to become better known to Marin County historians as the grantee of Rancho las Baulines, and later as holder of the adjacent Rancho Baulines y Tomales.

GRADUALLY, the asistencia mission took shape, with chapel, living quarters for the friar and houses for the neophytes in various stages of construction.

One report from Father Gil noted that there had been 209 baptisms and added: "There is no doubt that if those who were baptized here had resided in San Francisco, two-thirds of them would have died."

Crops were good and the mission prospered.

FATHER GIL was already 44 when he came to San Rafael, with service at six missions behind him. Now he suffered frequent and agonizing attacks of angina pectoris, and he had longed to return to Mexico. Nevertheless, earlier when a permit for such a return had reached him, he had torn up the paper, realizing he was still needed at the embryonic mission.

Now, however, he felt justified in asking for relief from his wearisome duties in San Rafael and for re-assignment to Mexico. He appealed to Father Prefect Payeras for permission to leave his post, and approval was received in 1819. But Father Gil was told that the missions were still critically short of priests, so he agreed to remain in California, and served at Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo.

He died in 1833 without ever returning to his beloved homeland.

HIS REPLACEMENT in San Rafael was Fr. Juan Amoros, a native of Spain who had been a missionary at San Carlos and who was especially talented at science and invention.

Hubert Howe Bancroft, who gave praise only when it was clearly due, waxed enthusiastically about Father Amoros, saying:

"He was possessed of more than common ability, having great zeal, in every task successful. He was a successful business manager, a mechanic of more than ordinary skill and a kind missionary. He engaged in no controversies. He urged the extension of fair trade."

Father Amoros' special scientific marvel was his water clock that continued to keep time for many years after his death.

REV. FRANCIS Weber, an archivist for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese in Los Angeles, quoted a Spanish general as offering this description of Father Amoros:

"He was a model of virtue, charity, humility and Christian meekness — a man without a blemish and of the most exemplary life. He was the admiration of his contemporaries and the astonishment of the aborigines."

Father Weber went on to tell how Father Amoros, soon after arriving in San Rafael, launched a vigorous program for the ex-

Two Good Franciscan Fathers, And The Mission They Guided

BOAT-BUILDING received increased attention at the mission. In his "Sixty Years in California," William Heath Davis wrote:

"I remember that hides and tallow were brought to the vessel in schooners and launches manned and commanded by the Indians from Mission Dolores and the missions of San Jose, Santa Clara and San Rafael.

"The vessels and boats having been built by the Indians under instructions from the padres after designs and models prepared by them of a very ancient pattern, they reminded me of illustrations of old Spanish vessels. Richardson (William A., grantee of Saucelito Rancho) owned one of these vessels built at the mission of San Rafael . . ."

BY 1828, THERE were 1,140 converts at the mission.

Writing to his superior five years earlier, Father Amoros had said: "This is a new settlement of converted Indians, and is desirious to aid the troops in every way it may be able. Already this year it has helped with 105 fanegas (about 1.6 bushels) of all kinds of seeds including 16 fanegas of beans which it did not have the previous year . . ., and now it offers to give all the beans we can spare, keeping only what is absolutely needed for seed and to ration to the keeper of supplies; as to clothing and other utensils, we do not even have sufficient for these most recent Christians.

"With their breech-cloths and the little amount of clothing furnished to them, they cover only the most necessary parts of their bodies. We earnestly desire to do more for them, but these people, as they are very new in their Christianity, it is very necessary to have much patience. And with this and in time, God willing, we shall accomplish our desires and obligations."

IN FATHER Amoros, the young mission north of the bay had a worthy successor to courageous Father Gil, and a man determined to work for the betterment of the Indians who were in his charge.

Mission San Rafael Arcangel was much blessed, indeed, by the caliber of the two exceptional padres who guided it through its earliest years.

(Editor's Note: Florence Donnelly's history of Mission San Rafael Arcangel will be continued in next week's Independent-Journal Marin Magazine.)

pansion of the mission by establishing workshops in Christianity, and by building granaries and barns.

BOAT-BUILDING received increased attention at the mission. In his "Sixty Years in California," William Heath Davis wrote:

"I remember that hides and tallow were brought to the vessel in schooners and launches manned and commanded by the Indians from Mission Dolores and the missions of San Jose, Santa Clara and San Rafael.

"The vessels and boats having been built by the Indians under instructions from the padres after designs and models prepared by them of a very ancient pattern, they reminded me of illustrations of old Spanish vessels. Richardson (William A., grantee of Saucelito Rancho) owned one of these vessels built at the mission of San Rafael . . ."

BY 1828, THERE were 1,140 converts at the mission.

Writing to his superior five years earlier, Father Amoros had said: "This is a new settlement of converted Indians, and is desirious to aid the troops in every way it may be able. Already this year it has helped with 105 fanegas (about 1.6 bushels) of all kinds of seeds including 16 fanegas of beans which it did not have the previous year . . ., and now it offers to give all the beans we can spare, keeping only what is absolutely needed for seed and to ration to the keeper of supplies; as to clothing and other utensils, we do not even have sufficient for these most recent Christians.

"With their breech-cloths and the little amount of clothing furnished to them, they cover only the most necessary parts of their bodies. We earnestly desire to do more for them, but these people, as they are very new in their Christianity, it is very necessary to have much patience. And with this and in time, God willing, we shall accomplish our desires and obligations."

IN FATHER Amoros, the young mission north of the bay had a worthy successor to courageous Father Gil, and a man determined to work for the betterment of the Indians who were in his charge.

Mission San Rafael Arcangel was much blessed, indeed, by the caliber of the two exceptional padres who guided it through its earliest years.

A White Cross Of 'Mums

An Espalier Salute To The Mission

By KAY CUNNINGHAM

This year's Chrysanthemum Fiesta of the Chrysanthemum Society of Marin, to be held next weekend in the Crocker-Citizens National Bank, San Rafael, coincides with the observance of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Mission San Rafael Arcangel.

So the 'mum enthusiasts will be offering a floral tribute of their own to the mission.

On exhibit at the two-day show will be flowering mission crosses of espaliered chrysanthemums as a special 1967 feature.

IN HIS BACKYARD in Fairfax, Norman Stroyd constructs a wire frame for one of the more than 700 chrysanthemum plants he grows there. This one will be in the popular umbrella shape, and the 'mum trained on it. Stroyd is a professional gardener.

THE IDEA originated with Homer Crowell, treasurer of the chrysanthemum society.

Norman Stroyd, one of the growers who will be showing the flowering crosses, remembers it this way:

"One day Homer and I were talking about our show, and about the fact that our dates coincided with the mission celebration.

"And suddenly he said to me, 'Hey, Norman, wouldn't it be nice if we could make something in the shape of a cross for our show as a tribute to the mission?'

"SO I TOLD him I'd have a go at it, and would try to espalier a cross with a white cascade-type chrysanthemum."

Espaliering 'Mums Is Well Worth Patience It Takes

NORMAN STROYD puts to use a new product from England —covers that protect just emerging blooms on a chrysanthemum plant during the period when they are most tender and most susceptible to damage.

The espaliering of plants is not unusual in Marin County. But the chrysanthemum is not one of the plants most frequently accorded that treatment.

Yet, according to Stroyd, it lends itself very well to espaliering.

HE IS A transplanted Britisher who says he has always loved the "chrysanths," as he calls them.

He joined the Chrysanthemum Society of Marin three years ago. And although a professional gardener, he admits that his first year's efforts at growing 'mums was a complete failure, yielding not a single bloom worthy of exhibit at the annual show.

With dogged British determination, he decided upon another try. Society members generously supplied him with plant cuttings and growing advice. Perhaps they were too kind. For at the annual show the second year, 1966, he amazed veteran growers by walking off with the Challenge Trophy, the much coveted award that goes to the society member who has the most blue ribbon-winning entries.

TODAY THE Stroyd backyard at 40 Inyo Street, Fairfax, is home to more than 700 chrysanthemums.

In caring for them, Stroyd has the enthusiastic assistance of his wife Lillian.

"She can't walk by a plant anymore without stopping to see if it needs pinching, disbudding or some other attention," he laughs.

For the espaliered crosses he will be showing next weekend, Stroyd chose the Daphne, a white cascade-type chrysanthemum. The cascades are the so-called "charm chrysanthemums," of a miniature-flowered, multi-blooming type. Sometimes they show as many as 1,000 open blooms at one time.

ESPALIERING them is not easy, Stroyd says, for a precise program of training for the plant is required. Yet, he adds, it is not out of reach of the patient amateur.

He described his approach as follows:

"I got cuttings of two beautiful white cascades and planted them in gallon cans around the first of May. After they started going, I removed all but six lateral branches from each plant and tied each lateral to a small stake.

"I FORMED A wire frame about four feet high into the shape of a cross and placed it in a wooden planter box with a wood stake up the center to keep the cross rigid. About the first of June, I transferred the cascade 'mums into the planter boxes, tied the laterals to the wires and watched them grow. After each lateral would grow four or five inches, I'd pinch the tips to build back growth for the thickness I wanted.

When the laterals had grown up just a bit higher than the arms of the cross, I bent the two end ones on each side onto the arms of the cross. This I did in the hot sun as that is when the stems are soft and pliable.

"EVERY SINGLE day I spent about 15 minutes on each cross, pinching, shaping and tying down the new growth to the wire frame. I fed them often, kept them free of insects, and watered frequently.

"They had grown to a height of a bit over four feet by the end of August, so I then placed each cross flat on its back on a table in my backyard. This causes all the shoots to go upward again towards the sun. When the crosses are on display at our show the blooms will be 'right on straight' for everyone to see.

"I have been at it all the time, but it has been worth it."

NORMAN STROYD'S crosses are expected to be in full bloom for the Chrysanthemum Fiesta which is open free of admission to the public in the main lobby of the Crocker-Citizens Bank at Fourth and B streets in San Rafael next Saturday, from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. and on Sunday, Oct. 22, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

It is also planned to display one of Stroyd's crosses Friday at the evening commemorative mass at Mission San Rafael Arcangel.

Nor will the crosses be the only special notice the chrysanthemum growers will take of the mission anniversary celebration.

Also on display at the show will be a new commercially developed hybridized white spider-type 'mum that has been given the name Mission San Rafael.

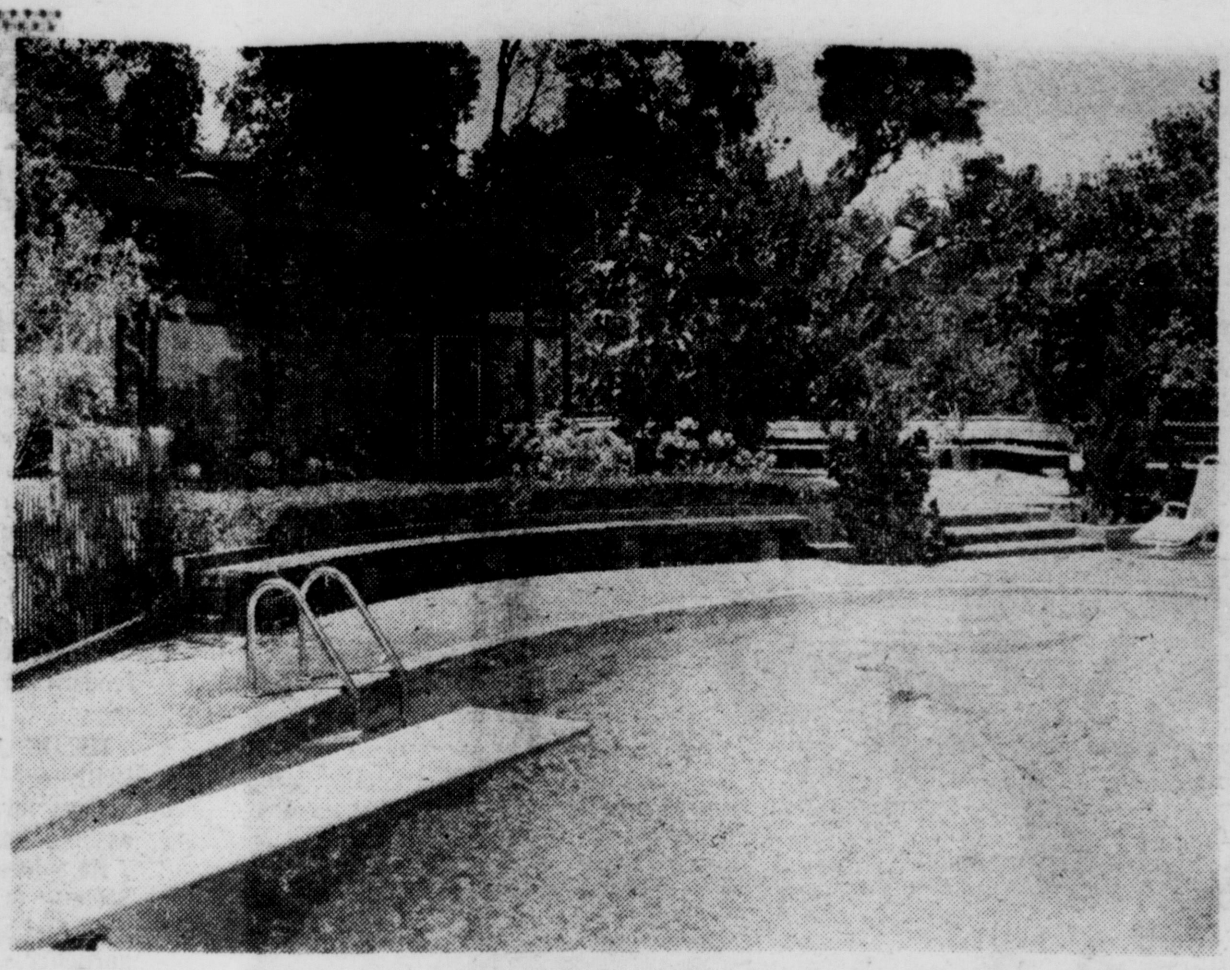
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT William Kapranos and landscape contractor Ray Forster set out to create continuity from confusion as they remodeled an older, overgrown garden at the John W. Hogan home on Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross. They concentrated on bold changes close to the house and less dramatic measures in perimeter areas. An irrigation system beyond repair and low water pressure necessitated a new and larger water main running directly from the street meter. All usable plants were retained, either in place or relocated, so that few additions were required.



A TWO-STEP construction program was planned by landscape architect William Kapranos for the garden of Dr. Calvin Plumhoff at 210 Ridgewood, Kent Woodlands, and executed by landscape contractor Cagwin and Dorward and pool-builder Mardy. For five years after the initial construction, dichandra grew where the pool was later dug. The view from the house through the outdoor living area was not impaired, and pool security was provided without injury to the vista.

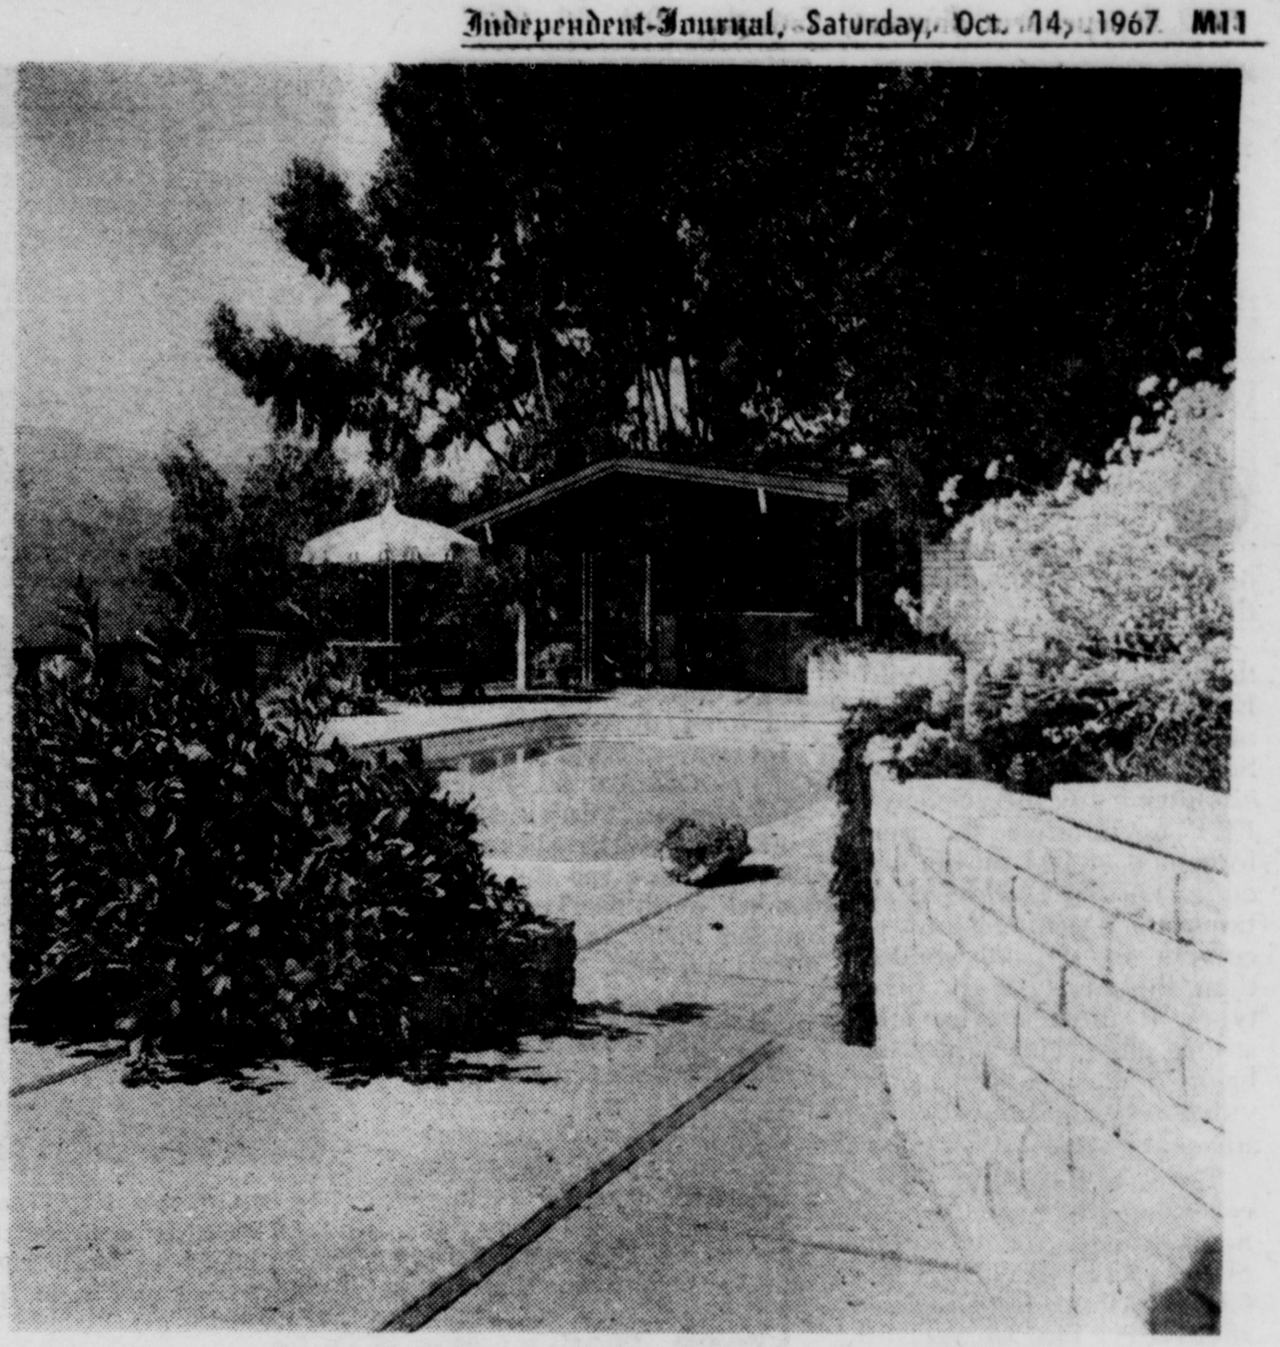
Landscape Solutions

Problems can be opportunities in landscaping.

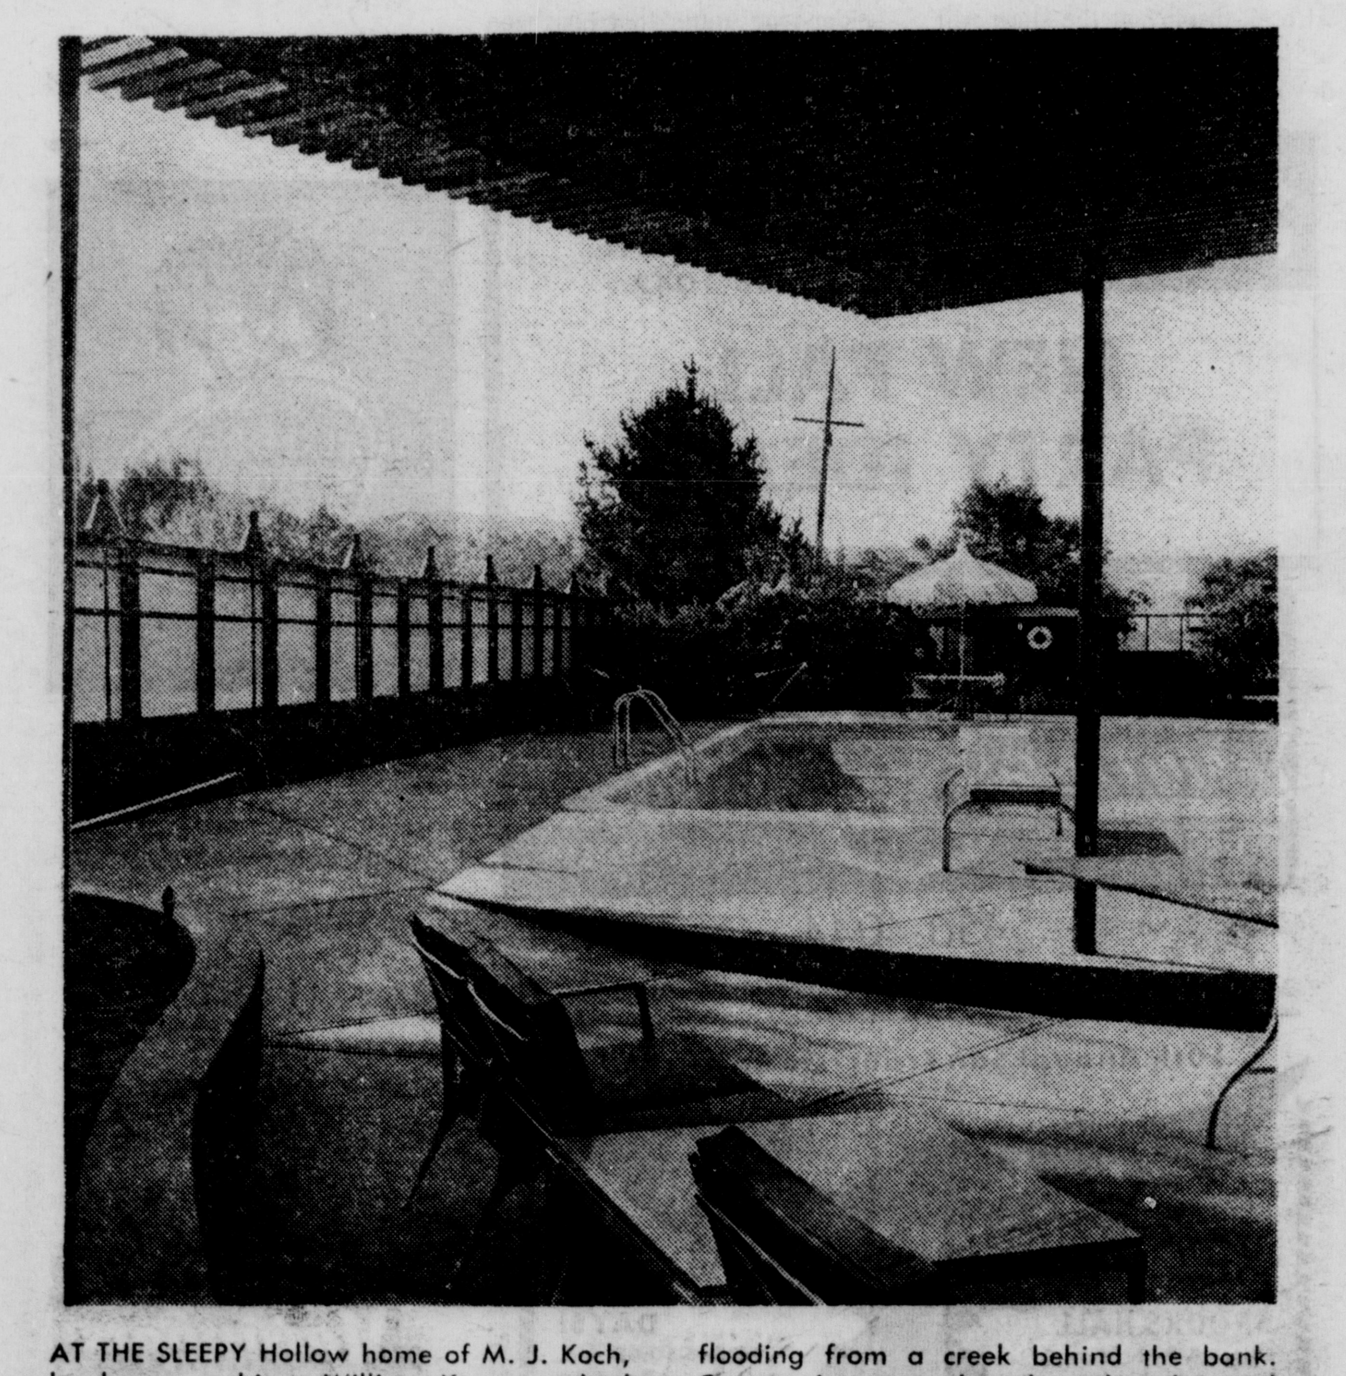
Steep sites, small lots, old and overgrown gardens, odd-shaped properties — such situations might cause the home owner to despair.

No need for that, however. With a little planning, these debits can become assets.

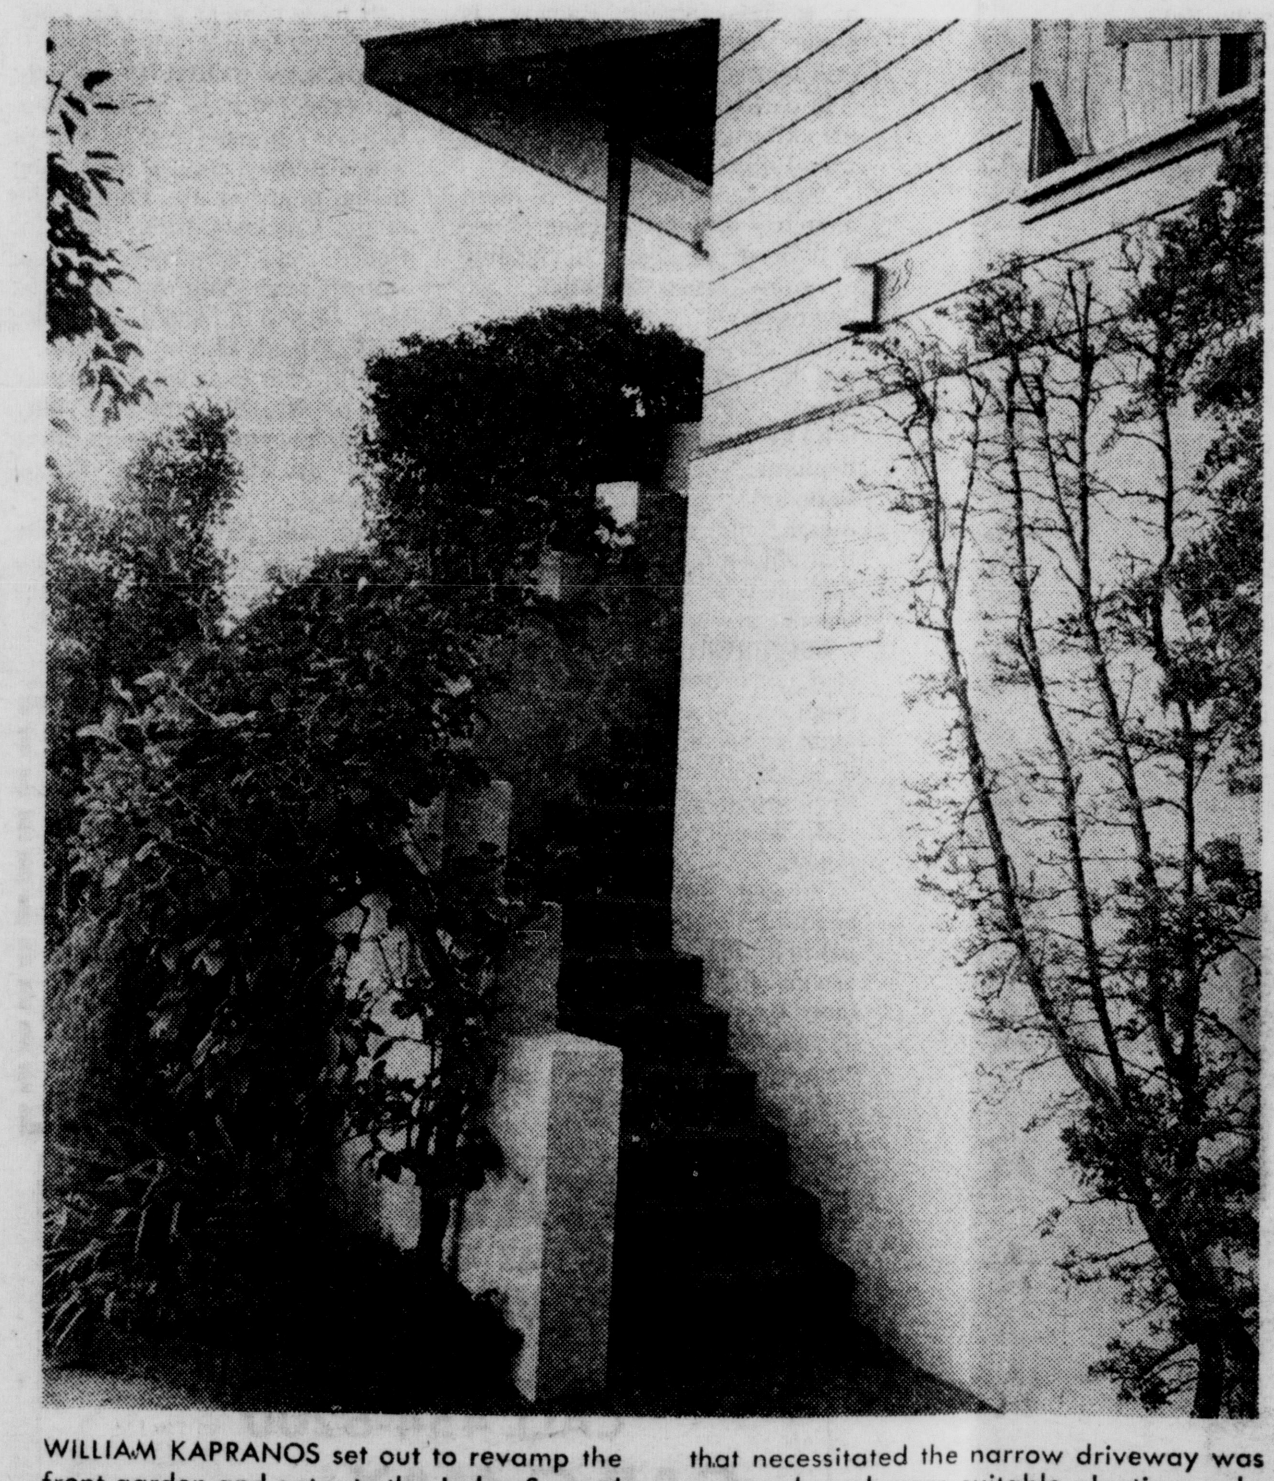
The pictorial examination on these pages of the designs drawn for six Marin gardens by one Marin landscape architect, William Kapranos, illustrate how good planning can enhance a home. Problems were solved. And some of Marin's most pleasing landscapes were the reward for some imaginative, creative thinking.



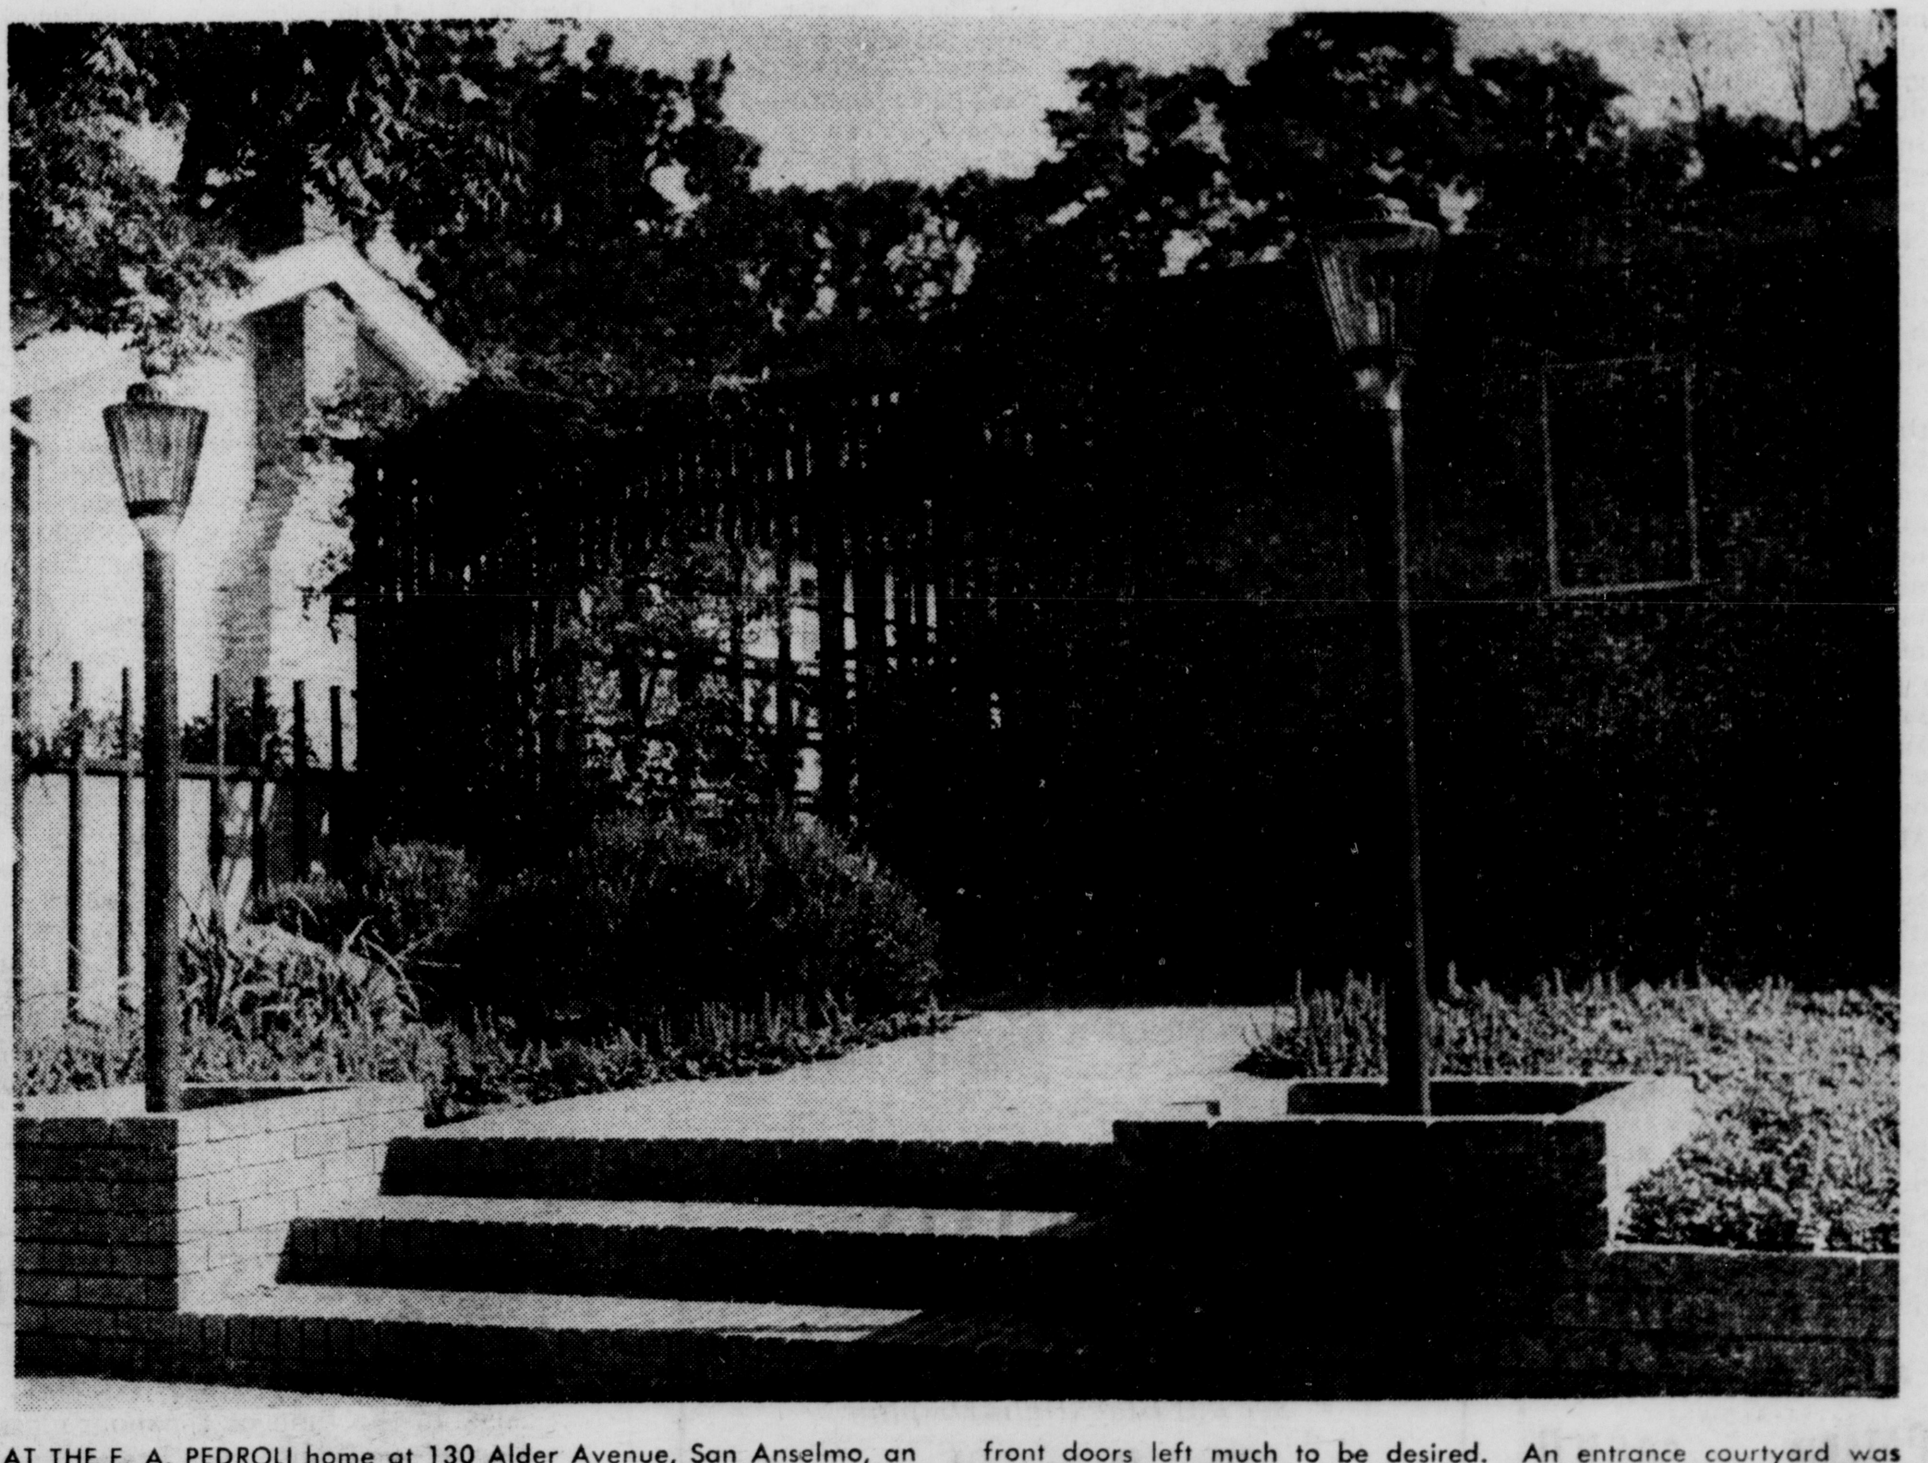
A VERY STEEP site with the house blocking access to the construction area, so that machinery and materials had to be brought up 85 degrees from a one-way road below, presented special problems at the George Dexter home for landscape architect William Kapranos, landscape contractor Cagwin & Dorward and builder A. VonRotz. A spectacular view at the 4 Alpine Terrace, San Anselmo site, made the effort worthwhile. The pool was dug as the downslope rim was built up and new construction was tied effectively to existing house and patio.



AT THE SLEEPY Hollow home of M. J. Koch, landscape architect William Kapranos had to locate the pool carefully to clear a subsurface storm drain easement, and provide elevation and retain bank to insure against flooding from a creek behind the bank. Construction was phased so that the pool could be completed without disrupting house-side outdoor living. Pool was built by Mardy.



WILLIAM KAPRANOS set out to revamp the front garden and entry to the Judge Samuel Gardiner home at 29 Fairhills Drive, San Rafael. A too dominant blackwood acacia that necessitated the narrow driveway was removed, and more suitable plantings substituted. A railroad tie curved bulkhead permitted encroachment onto the slope to make room for an entry walk.



AT THE E. A. PEDROLI home at 130 Alder Avenue, San Anselmo, an about-to-be-expanded house on a not-too-large lot with a creek at the immediate rear presented problems. And in front, a poor "straight walk" entry down a narrow side-of-house access to the new double front doors left much to be desired. An entrance courtyard was created by landscape architect William Kapranos and landscape contractor John Stobbe by extending the sideyard fence above its six-foot solid height with open work on to the roof level. A perimeter trellage encircles the courtyard with vines above and to the sides.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

New Technical innovations in layman's terms. Our stereo home music systems are constantly undergoing improvements. Now, space age technology is being used in many of the components.

One of the first breakthroughs was the FET, Field Effect Transistor. After almost two years of research, Scott engineers developed circuitry using the very new FET to improve the performance of FM tuning circuits. The FET allowed all transistor FM tuners and receivers to perform better than the most costly tube types. It allowed extremely strong sensitivity (ability to bring in stations), and provided very good rejection of adjacent stations.

The next big step forward electronically, again by Scott, was the incorporation of the INTEGRATED CIRCUIT in the tuners and the receivers. The integrated circuit is truly a space age device. The IC is a micro miniaturized circuit. A spec of silicon much smaller than this dot • contains five transistors and two resistors. These elements are permanently carved into the silicon wafer. Each wafer is identical because the integrated circuits are reproduced directly from a microscopically accurate photographic master. There is no possibility of variation. In order that these micro miniaturized ICs can be handled, they are encapsuled into a bead about half the size of an eraser on a pencil.

With transistor amplifiers, the problem of matching loud-speakers to the set became acute. With tube equipment, speaker matching, although important, did not cause significant change in the quality of response nor did improper matching cause damage to the amplifier section of the system. With transistor amplifiers a mismatch could cause serious damage to the amplifier. Modern sets have protective circuitry designed into the system to prevent accidental damage. Again Scott has come to the foreground and they have designed what they call CONTROLLED IMPEDANCE loudspeaker systems. The circuitry built into the speaker systems keeps the system matched throughout the entire musical range; thus, transistor amplifiers can perform at their best with minimum of distortion.

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

New Technical innovations in layman's terms. Our stereo home music systems are constantly undergoing improvements. Now, space age technology is being used in many of the components.

One of the first breakthroughs was the FET, Field Effect Transistor. After almost two years of research, Scott engineers developed circuitry using the very new FET to improve the performance of FM tuning circuits. The FET allowed all transistor FM tuners and receivers to perform better than the most costly tube types. It allowed extremely strong sensitivity (ability to bring in stations), and provided very good rejection of adjacent stations.

The next big step forward electronically, again by Scott, was the incorporation of the INTEGRATED CIRCUIT in the tuners and the receivers. The integrated circuit is truly a space age device. The IC is a micro miniaturized circuit. A spec of silicon much smaller than this dot • contains five transistors and two resistors. These elements are permanently carved into the silicon wafer. Each wafer is identical because the integrated circuits are reproduced directly from a microscopically accurate photographic master. There is no possibility of variation. In order that these micro miniaturized ICs can be handled, they are encapsuled into a bead about half the size of an eraser on a pencil.

With transistor amplifiers, the problem of matching loud-speakers to the set became acute. With tube equipment, speaker matching, although important, did not cause significant change in the quality of response nor did improper matching cause damage to the amplifier section of the system. With transistor amplifiers a mismatch could cause serious damage to the amplifier. Modern sets have protective circuitry designed into the system to prevent accidental damage. Again Scott has come to the foreground and they have designed what they call CONTROLLED IMPEDANCE loudspeaker systems. The circuitry built into the speaker systems keeps the system matched throughout the entire musical range; thus, transistor amplifiers can perform at their best with minimum of distortion.

By JOHN SUNIER

JANACEK: Concertino for Piano; Sonata for Piano; BARTOK: Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion—Palenicek/Lajeskova Lejsek, pianists with chamber ensemble — Crossroads 22 16 0074:

An interesting coupling of composers in works featuring the piano. Although the Bartok work is well done, the Janacek is the main interest here. This great Czech composer has been receiving more attention of late, and well deserves it.

His opera, "The Makropoulos Case," which made such a hit recently at the S. F. Opera, is being released on records very soon, and his "Slavonic Mass" has had three tremendous recordings released in a row.

The concertino is subtitled "Spring" and indicates a rather programmatic work, although the sounds one hears are anything but that. Good reproduction and performance all around. Even if you already have the Bartok piece, this is worth having for the Janacek.

NOVAK: String Quartet in G Major Opus 22; SUK: String Quartet in B Flat Major Opus 11 — Novak Quartet and Smetana Quartet — Crossroads 22 16 0048:

Two very romantic and enjoyable quartets. Although by students of the Dvorak-Smetana school, both pieces show a fine individuality and make their creators much more than "followers." Silky-smooth soloists are these performers, all eight of them.

JANACEK: String Quartets Nos. 1 and 2 — The Janacek Quartet — Crossroads 22 16 0014:

Another wonderful addition to the slowly expanding Janacek discography. First recording of one and first in stereo of the other. Again, winner of a Grand Prix du Disque. The Second Quartet is subtitled "Intimate Pages," and was inspired by a beautiful woman 40 years younger than the composer, and to whom she showed a deep and profound devotion. The passionate music certainly doesn't indicate this is the work of a 74-year-old man.

REICHA: Symphony in E Flat Major; VORISEK: Symphony in D Major—The Prague Chamber Orchestra — Crossroads 22 16 0008:

Both of these Bohemian composers were not only contemporaries but also friends of Beethoven. Their music is in strictly classical style, but for this listener doesn't get off the ground. It sounds like sketches for Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 which Beethoven threw away.

SHOSTAKOVICH: Quartet No. 3; PROKOFIEFF: Quartet No. 1 — The Smetana Quartet — Crossroads 22 16 0018:

Still more chamber music from Supraphon in stereo, via Epic Records. This is the first LP version of the longish Shostakovitch Opus 73. Written just a year after the end of the Second World War, the Quartet No. 3 resists the usual programmatic interpretation of struggles against the Nazi invaders, triumph of the Soviet peoples etc. etc.

It is unusually direct and simple, written with note-sparing yet light-hearted mood that is certainly a contrast to the Shostakovich of the giant symphonies. The Prokofieff quartet is typical of this unique composer. The true slow movement is the final one.

By the way, the cartoon-style artwork on the covers of all Crossroads LPs is a delight, and this particular one is especially droll.

MILL VALLEY'S Jack Aranson, right, plays one facet of the hero's personality, while Kevin O'Sullivan plays the other in "Philadelphia, Here I Come!," the Broadway comedy hit that is playing wednesdays through Sundays at the San Francisco City Theater at 465 Post Street, San Francisco. The play closes next weekend.

Tyrant's Daughter Tells Story Of Life In Kremlin's Shadow

By DON KEOWN

All earlier doubts and cynicism about the author fade completely after a first reading is followed by a more thoughtful re-reading of this important book.

The final impression, reinforced by Mrs. Alliluyeva's fascinating interview on educational television, is that the daughter of Josef Stalin is a most remarkable person—intelligent, sensitive, courages, honest to herself and acting from the best of motives. She is also the possessor of a considerable talent for literary expression.

Serialization and advance comment on the book would seem to make post-publication reviews of "Twenty Letters" superfluous. But when has that ever stopped a reviewer? So:

TWENTY LETTERS TO A FRIEND by Svetlana Alliluyeva, Harper & Row, 246 pages, $5.95.

Although there has been some criticism of the manner in which Priscilla Johnson McMillan has translated the Alluluyeva manuscripts from Russian to English, the remaining impact is such that one suspects that Mrs. McMillan is not being given proper credit, and that, indeed, she has performed excellently a most difficult assignment. The letters remain an intensely personal record, with the distinctively emotional, self-probing flavor of their Russian origins.

Mrs. Alluluyeva has presented history students with a grim picture of what life was really like for the despot's family and for those around them. In so doing, she corrects many myths that have grown up about the shadowy figure in the Kremlin. For instance, she shatters the long-nourished belief of some conspiracy-minded Westerners that Stalin was murdered. She demonstrates, too, that Russia under Stalin was somewhat less a personal dictatorship than many historians and commentators would have us believe. Even Stalin was not always free to work his iron will, if the Communist apparatus deigned otherwise.

Some skeptics will question Mrs. Alliluyeva's proclivity toward heaping blame upon Lavrenty P. Beria, seeing it as an effort to shift responsibility for terror from her father. But it is doubtful that this is a calculated move. More likely it is her recollection, colored by a sense of family loyalty even to the father she feared and a deep dislike for Beria, who was, indeed, a sinister figure. Never, however, does she try to spare her father the tyrant's role, a considerable admission for a daughter. She presents numerous examples of his ruthless cruelty, sometimes in conflict with his periodic indulgences in the part of the affectionate father.

There is no question in her mind that Russia was better off after Stalinism, although on television she is again pessimistic over trends since the fall of Nikita Khrushchev.

SVETLANA ALLILUYEVA, daughter of Josef Stalin, is the author of "Twenty Letters to a Friend," one of the most publicized books of 1967.

The book is not a large volume, but its revelations are of major significance to those struggling to understand what went on in the Soviet Union during those years when the author lived her curiously restricted life in the dark shadow of the dour dictator in the Kremlin, as well as present circumstances in the still most powerful Communist country on the globe.

It may, indeed, ultimately help achieve Mrs. Alliluyeva's expressed goal of greater understanding between these United States she so greatly admires and the land she has left physically but has not deserted patriotically.

Gift Books Are Here, So Christmas Must Be Near

The gift book season is upon us.

They'll be coming in a deluge now — huge in size, glossy in format, high in price.

Some will be entirely for show. But others will have real content and value.

Three of the first to reach us are aimed respectively at nature lovers, western history buffs and wine connoisseurs. All three are impressive works, and those to come will be hard-put to equal or excel them.

STUDENTS OF animal life will revel in "The Imperial Collection of Audubon Animals." Reproduced in color plates are the classic illustrations by John James Audubon for his three-volume "Imperial Folios" and three-volume "Octavo," long collectors' treasures. Included, too, is the art of his son, John Woodhouse Audubon, who completed the work when his father's health began to fail.

The original texts of Audubon and his too often overlooked colleague, Rev. John Bachman, are also reprinted.

In addition, the editor, Victor H. Cahalane has supplied additional descriptive material for the pictured animals that brings to the book the most recent knowledge and insights of the zoologist.

The plates of the Audubon art are simply breathtaking. There are 150 in all, beautifully reproduced. The book thus becomes something of a work of art. But it is also a rich source of factual information on the animal life observed and recorded by Audubon and Reverend Bachman during their travels through an earlier America, and supplemented by Cahalane.

THE IMPERIAL COLLECTION OF AUDUBON ANIMALS by John James Audubon and Rev. John Bachman, and by Victor H. Cahalane, Hammond Inc., 307 pages, $19.95 first printing, $25 thereafter.

WILDERNESS KINGDOM: The Journals & Paintings of Father Nicolas Point, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 274 pages, $17.95 until March 31, 1968, $21.95 thereafter.

WINES OF THE WORLD edited by Andre L. Simon, McGraw-Hill, 719 pages, $14.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

PUBLICATION OF "Wilderness Kingdom: The Journals and Paintings of Father Nicolas Point" was preceded by great publicity. Now it develops that the fanfare was fully justified.

Like Audubon, the Jesuit missionary, Father Nicolas Point, traveled through the U. S. and Canadian West in the mid-1800s, and as he did so, recorded on canvas what he saw. His attention was directed not so much toward the animal life as to the men he encountered and tried to convert — the Indians. The result was one of the great records of what the American Northern Plains and mountain Indians were really like.

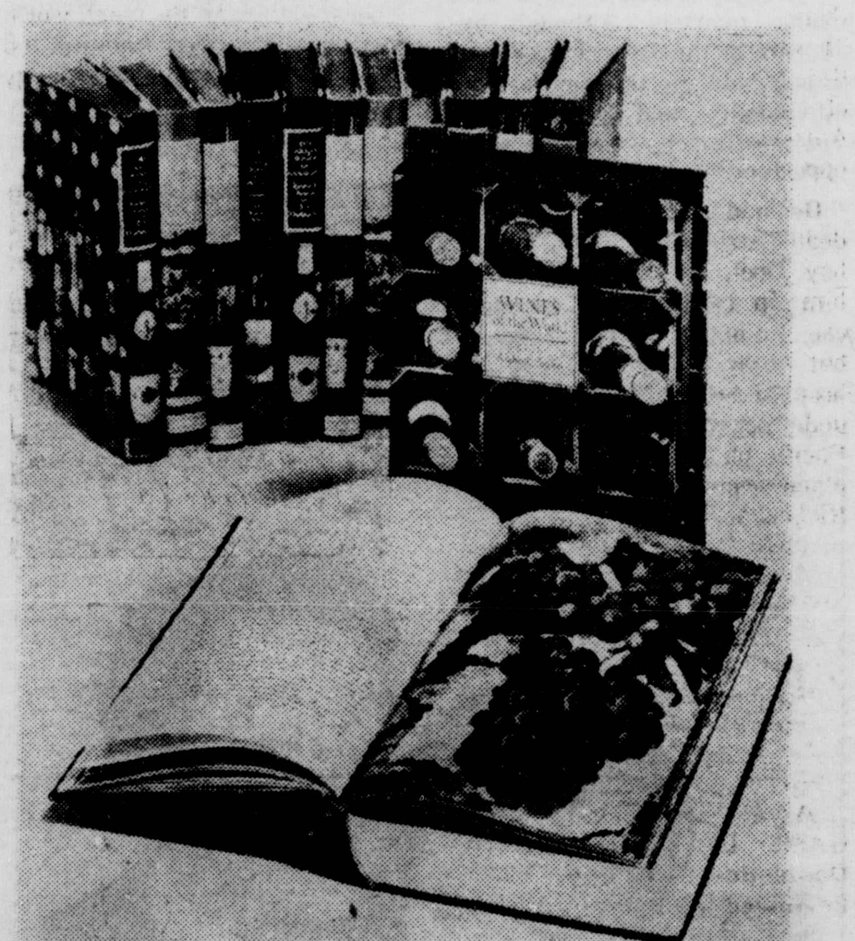
He not only painted, but he wrote. His manuscript "Wilderness Kingdom" was, in essence, an illustrated diary in six ledger-size, amateurislly-bound volumes that, after his death, were stored in the archives of College Sainte-Marie, and since then have been displayed only rarely.

For this magnificent new edition, Father Joseph Donnelly, the Marquette University authority on Jesuit history, has translated the Point text from French to English and has written a biographical introduction and captioned the illustrations. The color reproduction of Father Point's European-style paintings is beautiful enough to impress the art student, and authentic beyond quibbling by the history scholar.

In his foreword, anthropologist John C. Ewers says: "A goodly number of Father Point's paintings are the only portrayals of places, people and/or actions which several generations of historians have read about in the literature of the West. They have tried to imagine what these people and scenes must have been like, not knowing that they had been depicted faithfully by Father Point. . . . I marvel at his ability to reveal so much in such small pictures." The general reader will marvel, too, and enjoy this unexpected opportunity at a firsthand record of what the Indian was really like, very different from the TV and movie style savage.

"WINES OF the World'' edited by the world's foremost authority on the subject, Andre L. Simon of France, is not so slickly produced as the other two books, but still it is a handsome volume, as well as a huge and comprehensive one that covers its field admirably.

Simon himself has written several of the chapters and the introduction. His collaborators include the likes of Cyril Ray, H. Warner Allen, George Rainbird, Anthony Hogg and John N. Hutchison. The latter wrote the chapter on the wines of the Americas.



"WINES OF The World" edited by Andre Simon is hailed by its publisher McGraw-Hill as "the most comprehensive book available on all the world's wines."

One by one the major and minor wine producing regions of the globe are covered, each broken down by countries, and then by districts within their boundaries.

The book is of encyclopedic scope, telling the connoisseur or the novice just about everything he could hope to learn about the origins and properties of all the many wines.

In addition to the necessary maps, there are 60 color plates of wines, vineyards, grapes and producing areas.

Included, too, is a glossary of the more important terms, and a bibliography.

In his introduction, Simon takes a generally optimistic view of present-day viticulture. The great wines may be fewer, he says, than they once were, and the remaining great ones not quite so great, but there are still many good wines to be found throughout the world.

This book will help lead you to them. And those who receive it as a gift in its colorful slipcover are certain to award it a place of honor on their shelves. It's an impressive exploration of a fascinating subject.

Tyrant's Daughter Tells Story Of Life In Kremlin's Shadow

By DON KEOWN

All earlier doubts and cynicism about the author fade completely after a first reading is followed by a more thoughtful re-reading of this important book.

The final impression, reinforced by Mrs. Alliluyeva's fascinating interview on educational television, is that the daughter of Josef Stalin is a most remarkable person—intelligent, sensitive, courages, honest to herself and acting from the best of motives. She is also the possessor of a considerable talent for literary expression.

Serialization and advance comment on the book would seem to make post-publication reviews of "Twenty Letters" superfluous. But when has that ever stopped a reviewer? So:

Although there has been some criticism of the manner in which Priscilla Johnson McMillan has translated the Alluluyeva manuscripts from Russian to English, the remaining impact is such that one suspects that Mrs. McMillan is not being given proper credit, and that, indeed, she has performed excellently a most difficult assignment. The letters remain an intensely personal record, with the distinctively emotional, self-probing flavor of their Russian origins.

TWENTY LETTERS TO A FRIEND by Svetlana Alliluyeva, Harper & Row, 246 pages, $5.95.

Mrs. Alluluyeva has presented history students with a grim picture of what life was really like for the despot's family and for those around them. In so doing, she corrects many myths that have grown up about the shadowy figure in the Kremlin. For instance, she shatters the long-nourished belief of some conspiracy-minded Westerners that Stalin was murdered. She demonstrates, too, that Russia under Stalin was somewhat less a personal dictatorship than many historians and commentators would have us believe. Even Stalin was not always free to work his iron will, if the Communist apparatus deigned otherwise.

Some skeptics will question Mrs. Alliluyeva's proclivity toward heaping blame upon Lavrenty P. Beria, seeing it as an effort to shift responsibility for terror from her father. But it is doubtful that this is a calculated move. More likely it is her recollection, colored by a sense of family loyalty even to the father she feared and a deep dislike for Beria, who was, indeed, a sinister figure. Never, however, does she try to spare her father the tyrant's role, a considerable admission for a daughter. She presents numerous examples of his ruthless cruelty, sometimes in conflict with his periodic indulgences in the part of the affectionate father.

There is no question in her mind that Russia was better off after Stalinism, although on television she is again pessimistic over trends since the fall of Nikita Khrushchev.

Svetlana Alliluyeva remembered much and wrote well when she set down these letters in 1963.

The book is not a large volume, but its revelations are of major significance to those struggling to understand what went on in the Soviet Union during those years when the author lived her curiously restricted life in the dark shadow of the dour dictator in the Kremlin, as well as present circumstances in the still most powerful Communist country on the globe.

It may, indeed, ultimately help achieve Mrs. Alliluyeva's expressed goal of greater understanding between these United States she so greatly admires and the land she has left physically but has not deserted patriotically.

SVETLANA ALLILUYEVA, daughter of Josef Stalin, is the author of "Twenty Letters to a Friend," one of the most publicized books of 1967.

Gift Books Are Here, So Christmas Must Be Near

The gift book season is upon us.

They'll be coming in a deluge now — huge in size, glossy in format, high in price.

Some will be entirely for show. But others will have real content and value.

Three of the first to reach us are aimed respectively at nature lovers, western history buffs and wine connoisseurs. All three are impressive works, and those to come will be hard-put to equal or excel them.

STUDENTS OF animal life will revel in "The Imperial Collection of Audubon Animals." Reproduced in color plates are the classic illustrations by John James Audubon for his three-volume "Imperial Folios" and three-volume "Octavo," long collectors' treasures. Included, too, is the art of his son, John Woodhouse Audubon, who completed the work when his father's health began to fail.

The original texts of Audubon and his too often overlooked colleague, Rev. John Bachman, are also reprinted.

In addition, the editor, Victor H. Cahalane has supplied additional descriptive material for the pictured animals that brings to the book the most recent knowledge and insights of the zoologist.

The plates of the Audubon art are simply breathtaking. There are 150 in all, beautifully reproduced. The book thus becomes something of a work of art. But it is also a rich source of factual information on the animal life observed and recorded by Audubon and Reverend Bachman during their travels through an earlier America, and supplemented by Cahalane.

THE IMPERIAL COLLECTION OF AUDUBON ANIMALS by John James Audubon and Rev. John Bachman, and by Victor H. Cahalane, Hammond Inc., 307 pages, $19.95 first printing, $25 thereafter.

WILDERNESS KINGDOM: The Journals & Paintings of Father Nicolas Point, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 274 pages, $17.95 until March 31, 1968, $21.95 thereafter.

WINES OF THE WORLD edited by Andre L. Simon, McGraw-Hill, 719 pages, $14.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

PUBLICATION OF "Wilderness Kingdom: The Journals and Paintings of Father Nicolas Point" was preceded by great publicity. Now it develops that the fanfare was fully justified.

Like Audubon, the Jesuit missionary, Father Nicolas Point, traveled through the U. S. and Canadian West in the mid-1800s, and as he did so, recorded on canvas what he saw. His attention was directed not so much toward the animal life as to the men he encountered and tried to convert — the Indians. The result was one of the great records of what the American Northern Plains and mountain Indians were really like.

He not only painted, but he wrote. His manuscript "Wilderness Kingdom" was, in essence, an illustrated diary in six ledger-size, amateurislly-bound volumes that, after his death, were stored in the archives of College Sainte-Marie, and since then have been displayed only rarely.

For this magnificent new edition, Father Joseph Donnelly, the Marquette University authority on Jesuit history, has translated the Point text from French to English and has written a biographical introduction and captioned the illustrations. The color reproduction of Father Point's European-style paintings is beautiful enough to impress the art student, and authentic beyond quibbling by the history scholar.

In his foreword, anthropologist John C. Ewers says: "A goodly number of Father Point's paintings are the only portrayals of places, people and/or actions which several generations of historians have read about in the literature of the West. They have tried to imagine what these people and scenes must have been like, not knowing that they had been depicted faithfully by Father Point. . . . Eddie Makes Pikers Out Of Alger's Heroes

RICKENBACKER by Edward V. Rickenbacker, Prentice-Hall, 443 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Eddie Rickenbacker's autobiography makes the greatest rags-to-riches story dreamed up by Horatio Alger sound like the tale of an abject failure.

Rickenbacker attained his first fame as one of the leading racing car drivers prior to World War I. He then became America's leading World War I ace — and winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, designer and manufacturer of automobiles, head of a major airline, government envoy on delicate World War II missions around the globe. Along the way, he picked up 14 honorary degrees — although he never finished the seventh grade.

This is the stuff the American Dream is made of. Eddie Rickenbacker is living embodiment of that dream — and he knows it.

Modesty was never one of Rickenbacker's failings, and he tells his own story with full pride in what he has done. But there is never the arrogance of "I did it all myself." For throughout run the twin themes of belief in God and faith in America as the land of opportunity.

He had many brushes with death, starting when he was a boy. Doctors were about to give him up after he was literally crushed in a 1941 airplane crash, but he was hardly out of the hospital from that when he undertook a mission to the Pacific for the government. The plane went down in the Pacific; Rickenbacker and five others survived 24 days afloat in rubber rafts in one of the epic adventures of World War II.

But long before that, he had come to believe that God watched over him; and it may well be that belief many times saved his life, as he is firmly convinced it did.

Much of his life story is an absorbing tale of adventure. Some of it is a recounting of his successful business methods. Nearly all of it is interesting.

Some of his predictions of the future are interesting, too. Along with interplanetary travel, 1,000-passenger airplanes, etc., they include these:

"Some day our road builders will realize the advantages of using existing railway rights of way for vehicular travel through the simple means of constructing new levels above them . . .

"Automotive power plants will progress from the piston engines of today to turbines and then to jet-type engines . . . Turbines, which consume all fuel completely, will come into use just in time. At the rate we are going, current combustion engines would otherwise smother the world in gasoline vapor."

Another prediction is less encouraging; that the next world struggle will find race pitted against race, instead of ideology against ideology.

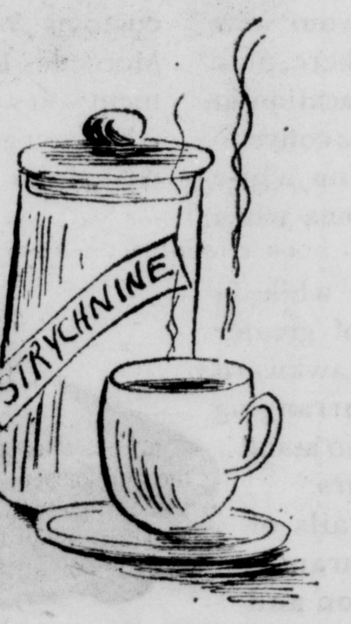
Sleuths & Suspense

A MOST CONTAGIOUS GAME by Catherine Aird, Doubleday, 192 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Centuries ago in England the Catholics were so hounded they built priest-hides in their houses, a place to hide the clergy, hoping to avoid persecution

When heart-troubled Thomas Harding retired to just such a house he found a hide after he stripped the plaster from a wall because he thought an electrical outlet was in an odd place. Inside he found the skeleton of a boy murdered more than a century ago. He sets off to find who killed the boy and why.

At the same time, in the village not far away, a young wife is found strangled to death, and more and more Harding finds connections between the ancient death and the new.



It's a fine tapestry Catherine Aird (a pseudonym) has woven, and one can't quarrel with her skill; but one can with one of her characters, an American, who is more English than anything else.

How Safe Is Your Castle?

HOW TO AVOID BURGLARY, HOUSEBREAKING AND OTHER CRIMES by Ulrich Kaufmann, Crown, 144 pages, softcover, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Crime rate statistics are only a little, if any, more reliable than television's notoriously defective ratings.

Still, there is every reason to believe that the house has become less and less a man's castle and more and more subject to uninvited intruders.

It is a problem about which we might all properly be concerned — providing we approach it with calm prudence rather than hysterical fear, and with reasonable outlays rather than massive expenditures.

Ulrich Kaufmann, former federal agent, reserve intelligence officer and private security service owner, provides some general guidance on how to go about it in this book.

He discusses locks, burglar alarms and other anti-burglar devices, with illustrations. Commonsense practices that avoid advertising your absence from your home to the potential intruder are suggested. Included are the use of lighting, the screening of visitors before you open the front door to them, the inventory sheet, the security check, etc.

Both the house and apartment dweller are covered, as well as the traveler. Automobile theft prevention is another subject.

Finally, there is a section on self defensive measures the average citizen can employ against the attacking thug including guns, gadgets and a modified version of karate.

The book, considering its size and its softcover, seems somewhat overpriced. On the other hand, the reader who picks up only an idea or two to make his dwelling or his person more secure may well feel the $3.95 well spent. And the ideas are there.

Widow Of Peter Catherine Marshall Turns To Novel

CHRISTY by Catherine Marshall, McGraw-Hill, 496 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Anne G. Stine.

Catherine Marshall, author of 10 non-fiction books including "A Man Called Peter," and two other best-sellers, has written her first novel: "Christy."

This intensely moving book is the story of a 19-year-old girl who leaves her parents and home to teach in an interdenominational mission school in the wilds of the Great Smokies. It is based largely on the life of Catherine Marshall's mother who also left home at the same age to teach with dedication under similar circumstances.

Because of the intensive research, the book took nine years to write. The setting is Cutter Gap in 1912 and it covers 11 months in the life of an extraordinary young woman.

Christy wants a full life, with laughter and love and a practicing religion, not one of rote. The story tells of her struggle to teach 65 children—of all ages — in one room in the mission, of her effort to achieve peace within herself, and her success in reaching the mountain people.

These people, so proud of their heritage, have sharp minds and iron wills, but their religion is one of fears and taboos. They are sometimes ludicrous, often resentful, always interesting.

Among the memorable characters are: Alice Henderson, a Quaker, with deep understanding and gentle compassion for all with whom she comes in contact; Fairlight Spencer, a graceful, barefoot nymph with two great desires—to learn to read, and to live a rich life; David Grant, handsome, intense and impatient; Dr. Neil MacNeill, forthright and strong, with a true understanding of his people.

Many delgihtful children pull at the reader's heartstrings and make one laugh at the same time.

"Christy" abounds in beautiful descriptions of the forest, its feel, sound and smell. There is real drama and suspense throughout. One is left with a feeling of deep joy in the conviction that out of endurance and faith it is possible to achieve a life of tremendous fulfillment.

The Subject Of Love, And Why We Fear It

YOUR FEAR OF LOVE by Marshall Bryant Hodge, Doubleday, 270 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Why is a warm wriggly puppy so irresistible?

You want him because he is showing you that he wants you, and you know you won't have to prove to him that you have a great mind, body, or personality for him to accept you. He is lovable because he helps you to love yourself.

Sad to say however, there are some people who are so afraid of love that they find it difficult to love even a puppy.

To be lovable, you first must love yourself. The more we hate ourselves, the less we can love or be loved in return.

Everyone has parts of his personality or physique he wishes to high heaven he could change. In this book, Dr. Hodge shows us how to bring about changes and how to accept that which we can't change.

When he writes of "love," he includes all definitions of the word: self-esteem, sexual intercourse and social intercourse.

He uses case histories to illustrate his arguments and he gets his points across easily.

It's interesting to note that Dr. Hodge obtained his Doctor of Philosophy in psychology from the University of California after he had graduated from both Whitworth College in Spokane and the San Francisco Presbyterian Seminary, and had been an ordained minister.

In answer to the question, "Can Religion Help?", he says the question should be: "What type of religious belief and what kind of community of believers would be consistently helpful in a thorough going way in aiding people to experience love?"

He points out many ways in which we avoid love; we hide our natural passions such as anger, anguish, fear, hate and joy behind a cool facade of indifference or civility; or we enslave ourselves with "obligations" and busy little details; or retreat to an "Ivy Tower," all in the desperate attempt to avoid being hurt by the commitment of love.

However, Dr. Hodge concludes, "We can discover for ourselves that it is worth the risk to love, even though we tremble and even though we know we will sometimes experience the hurt we fear."

Norway Beckons To Skiers

Norway is preparing once again to host a friendly invasion of American and Canadian ski enthusiasts.

A non-stop flight to Bergen or Oslo puts the sportsman within easy reach of the country's leading ski resorts, since both cities are linked by the scenic Bergen railroad to the Hardanger Mountain plateau.

VOSS, FOR instance, is but 90 minutes by electric train from Bergen, and is a delightful mountain village with a great variety of ski slopes served by modern lifts, and with hotels in all price ranges.

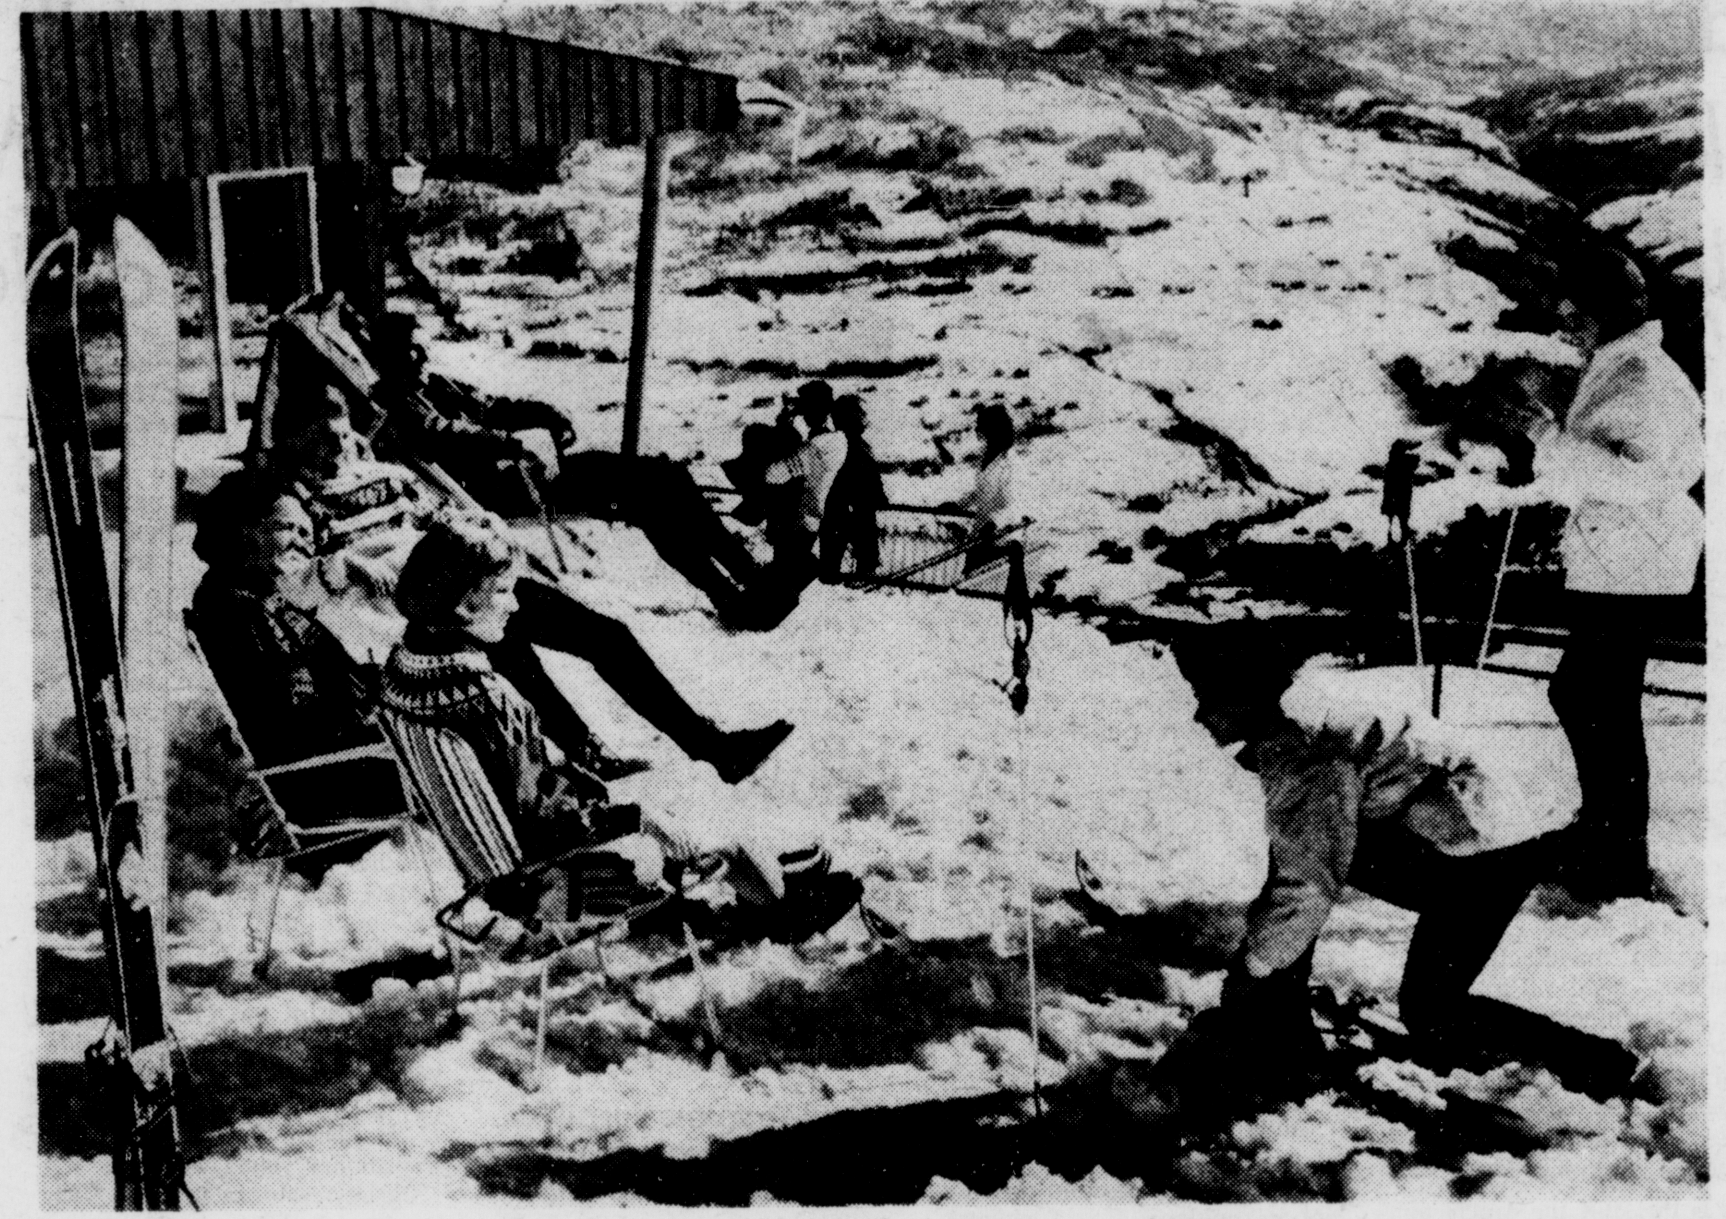
Another two hours by train from Voss takes the skier to Geilo, a winter sports center that is the home of Scandinavia's largest ski school. Facilities include a number of log cabins designed for American families or small groups of skiers.

The Norwegian ski season runs from Christmas to the end of April. In top grade hotels, the cost of a single room with bath and three meals is but $13 a day.

SMALLER HOTELS and modest pensions charge much less. And youth hostels provide bed and three meals for but $3.50 a day.

Independent package tours called "Snow Ball Tours" are popular with visitors.

Free folders on Norway's ski vacations may be obtained by writing Scandinavian National Travel Offices, 505 Fifth Avenue, New York; 612 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, 90017.



BESIDES BEING Norway's leading sports resort, Voss has additional significance to Americans as the birthplace of one of the greats of another sport, Notre Dame's immortal football coach, Knute Rockne. Modern cable cars, ski lifts, ideal skiing terrain and good hotels are among the Voss attractions. (Norwegian National Travel Office photo)

Finland, Too, Is A Paradise For Winter Sports

Finland, the land of sunlit nights, scenic lakes and ultra-modern cities, not only welcomes visitors during its beautiful summer, but offers excitement and enjoyment during the winter months as well.

From the capital city of Helsinki, in the south, to Mount Rukatunturi, just below the Arctic Circle and near the Russian border, all of Finland in winter is a sportsman's paradise.

AT THAT time visitors may choose between opera and ballet, symphony concerts, sophisticated art exhibits as well as dining and dancing in quaintly native or ultra-modern continental restaurants and nightclubs, and still enjoy all the winter sports.

In winter every city in Finland becomes a ski center with marked and well-lighted ski trails.

The city of Lahti (population 80,000), typical of present day Finland, young and modern, is located within a couple of hours by rail or bus from Helsinki. It is richly endowed with scenic views. This city is also the skiing center of a nation where even the tiniest tots seem to have been born with skis on their feet.

ALL LAHTI hotels have special weekend rates for skiers which comprise hotel room and all meals from Saturday morning to Sunday night. The many marked trails are all illuminated at night and one of them also has an attractive cafe at which to rest and enjoy refreshments.

There is a special ski stadium, as well as slalom slopes, a ski jump, ski-lifts and a skating rink.

A non-stop flight to Bergen or Oslo puts the sportsman within easy reach of the country's leading ski resorts, since both cities are linked by the scenic Bergen railroad to the Hardanger Mountain plateau.

VOSS, FOR instance, is but 90 minutes by electric train from Bergen, and is a delightful mountain village with a great variety of ski slopes served by modern lifts, and with hotels in all price ranges.

Another two hours by train from Voss takes the skier to Geilo, a winter sports center that is the home of Scandinavia's largest ski school. Facilities include a number of log cabins designed for American families or small groups of skiers.

The Norwegian ski season runs from Christmas to the end of April. In top grade hotels, the cost of a single room with bath and three meals is but $13 a day.

SMALLER HOTELS and modest pensions charge much less. And youth hostels provide bed and three meals for but $3.50 a day.

Independent package tours called "Snow Ball Tours" are popular with visitors.

Free folders on Norway's ski vacations may be obtained by writing Scandinavian National Travel Offices, 505 Fifth Avenue, New York; 612 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, 90017.

BESIDES BEING Norway's leading sports resort, Voss has additional significance to Americans as the birthplace of one of the greats of another sport, Notre Dame's immortal football coach, Knute Rockne. Modern cable cars, ski lifts, ideal skiing terrain and good hotels are among the Voss attractions. (Norwegian National Travel Office photo)

Finland, Too, Is A Paradise For Winter Sports

Finland, the land of sunlit nights, scenic lakes and ultra-modern cities, not only welcomes visitors during its beautiful summer, but offers excitement and enjoyment during the winter months as well.

From the capital city of Helsinki, in the south, to Mount Rukatunturi, just below the Arctic Circle and near the Russian border, all of Finland in winter is a sportsman's paradise.

AT THAT time visitors may choose between opera and ballet, symphony concerts, sophisticated art exhibits as well as dining and dancing in quaintly native or ultra-modern continental restaurants and nightclubs, and still enjoy all the winter sports.

In winter every city in Finland becomes a ski center with marked and well-lighted ski trails.

The city of Lahti (population 80,000), typical of present day Finland, young and modern, is located within a couple of hours by rail or bus from Helsinki. It is richly endowed with scenic views. This city is also the skiing center of a nation where even the tiniest tots seem to have been born with skis on their feet.

ALL LAHTI hotels have special weekend rates for skiers which comprise hotel room and all meals from Saturday morning to Sunday night. The many marked trails are all illuminated at night and one of them also has an attractive cafe at which to rest and enjoy refreshments.

There is a special ski stadium, as well as slalom slopes, a ski jump, ski-lifts and a skating rink.

Personality Touch For The Bathroom

One of the smartest ways to give your bathroom a personality of its own is to use wallpaper on accessories, such as hampers and wastebaskets, as well as on the walls.

If you have estimated the rollage necessary to cover the walls and ceiling of your bathroom, very likely you'll have more than enough paper left over to "play with."

If you have a hamper in your bath that doesn't match your new wallpaper color scheme or is a little banged up, cover it with wallpaper, using these directions.

First, mark the center front of the hamper and measure the area you want covered from top to bottom. You may want to leave the trim as it is, or first paint it the background color of the wallpaper. If you do this, you can also paint the back of the hamper, which won't show when it is next to a wall. At any rate, do your painting before wall-papering. When you have double-checked the height of the area you are going to wallpaper, measure the width of the trimmed paper and transfer this width to the hamper to be sure the outside edges of the paper will be equal to your center measure. If the measurements differ, then you will have to allow extra paper top and bottom for trimming with a sharp safety razor or scissors after the paper is applied.

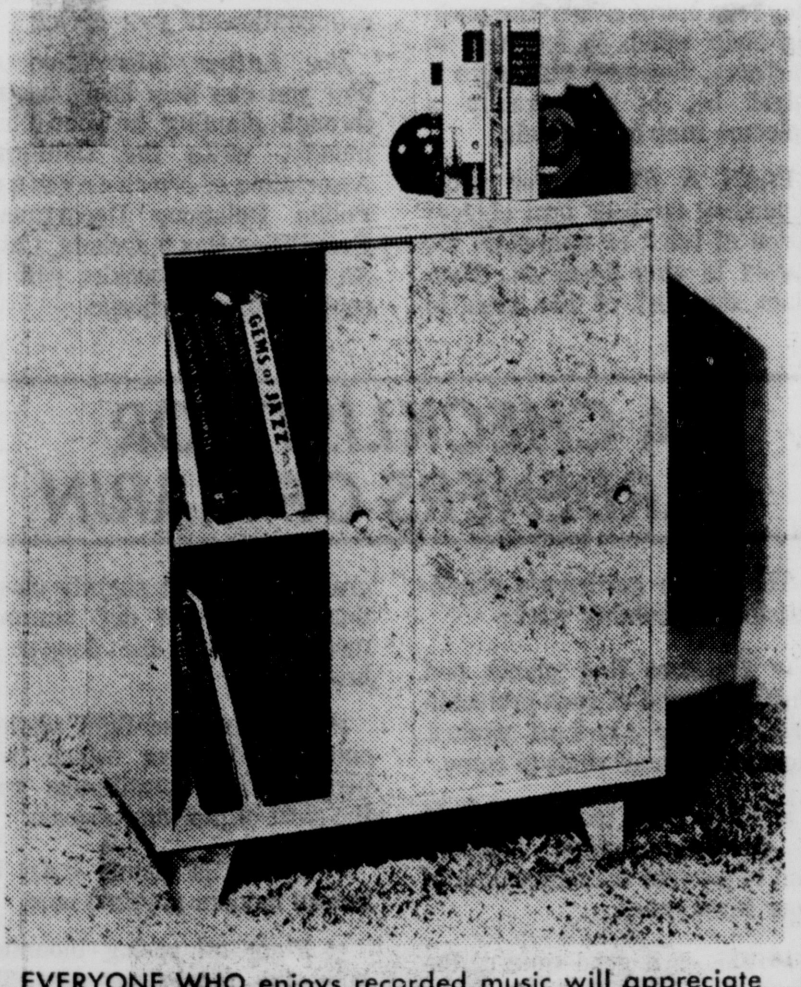
Put on the paper so that the top will have as close to a full pattern across as possible. If you've done your own wallpapering in the room, you'll have paste enough left over, otherwise you can buy a small quantity at any paint and wallpaper store in the type of paste recommended for the particular paper you are applying. It it's factory pasted, just wet and apply.

When the center strip of paper is in place, the center of the paper matching the center of the hamper, match the pattern for the side strips and cut the side strips. To cover the top of the hamper, cut enough paper to fold under at least two inches on the inside. You can achieve a nice smooth job by doing the front area first and, if the sides curve, clip the paper about every inch and overlap. To get a better-looking finished job, cut another piece of paper to cover the unfinished edges on the inside of the hamper top.

Use the same basic instructions for covering a waste basket. If the paper is vinyl coated, you can even line the waste basket, but that of course is a little more work. And if you're extra ambitious, you can also cover tissue boxes, shelves or the inside of your medicine cabinet.

YOU CAN GIVE your bathroom decor a personal touch by matching the accessories to the wallpaper. Here the hamper and basket are receiving just that treatment.

To Hold Those Discs



EVERYONE WHO enjoys recorded music will appreciate the convenience of an easy-to-build cabinet. This one is compact in size, providing generous storage space for seven, 10 and 12-inch records. The sliding door cabinet can be built from easy-to-work hardboard made of compressed wood chips. It stands 33 inches high, 14 inches deep and 24 inches wide, and is easy to finish. Just send 50 cents to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., 10510, and ask for Easi-Bild's Sliding Door Record Cabinet Pattern No. 436. You'll have yourself an interesting and useful do-it-yourself project.

Autumn Is Caulking Time, So Inspect Your House At Once

Getting ready to paint the outside of your house? Caulk it.

Not getting ready to paint the outside of your house? Caulk it.

There are two periods during the year — spring and fall — when an inspection of the house should be made to determine whether and where caulking is needed.

JUST TO keep the record straight, caulking is defined in the dictionary as "stopping up and making tight against leakage." What isn't explained is that the tiniest opening, even a hairline gap, can admit water and thus cause expensive damage to inside walls and ceilings.

In determining where caulking compound is to be applied, look especially at the parts of the house where insertions, such as windows and doors, have been made into the exterior at the original construction. While the frames might have been watertight originally, settling and other causes create tiny openings that are not readily visible but can be spotted close up. For that reason, it is necessary to get on a ladder to examine around window and door frames.

Quite often, for instance, you will see a small gap between the top of a window frame and the house that could not be seen from the ground.

CAULKING compound has a special quality that enables it to expand and contract in extreme temperatures, which is why it is used in place of a patching material that dries to a stone-like hardness. Be sure you get the kind that takes paint, which is true of white or light color compounds.

Black caulking, which might bleed through paint, usually is used on or around roofs which are not to be painted.

Caulking compound can be applied from a tube that has a squeeze-type arrangement, with a putty knife or with a professional caulking gun, but in recent years most do-it-yourselfers have found it best to use a small, inexpensive gun into which a cartridge is inserted. When the trigger is pulled, the compound comes out with enough pressure to move well into an opening.

BE SURE all crumbling compound, bits of wood or other loose materials are removed from the opening before applying the new material. When the opening is very large, first fill most of it with coarse hemp or oakum, sold by most hardware and paint stores, lumber yards and building supply dealers.

Then go ahead with the compound.

ONE OF the best groundcovers for shade or part-sun in Marin is St. John's Wort, botanically known as Hypericum. This particular variety is called Aaron's Beard and it forms a low mat that is covered by bright yellow flowers. It is an excellent choice as a low maintenance groundcover for the parking strip between sidewalk and street. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

The Problem Of The Parking Strip

One of the finest targets for any group of home owners desiring to better the neighborhood appearance should be the parking strips which so often detract from the looks of a block.

Many residents don't have the problem since lawns and shrubbery are planted right to the street or property line. Where they exist, however, they often become a sort of no-man's land between sidewalk and curb, unwanted by the homeowner and unattended by the city.

THE SIMPLEST solution, of course, is simply to treat the ground with a soil sterilant to discourage weeds, leaving the ground bare, or covering it, possibly, with gravel afterward. This, however, has less aesthetic appeal than does some sort of easy - maintenance groundcover such as English Ivy or Prostrate Abelia.

Some gardeners prefer to plant the area to lawn, and more power to them if they don't mind a little extra trimming and cutting. There's nothing more beautiful than a well-kept lawn.

The home owner faced with the parking strip problem should first remember that arriving guests and friends need some area on which to alight when they step out of a car. The parking strip which is foot-high in Barberry, however attractive it might be, is not exactly a welcome mat for arrivals.

PLAN A SMALL (or wide, depending on your own choice) apron of brick or aggregate for guests to step down on. Then plant the rest of the area to groundcovers of your choice.

Another possibility for landscaping the area would be to lay alternate areas of brick (or other paving material such as concrete and redwood) and groundcover.

One attractive arrangement is to criss-cross redwood header boards and fill in the non-planted spaces with paving of some sort. Planted areas can be in low-growing juniper, St. John's Wort, ajuga, lavender or combinations of your choice.

For further information on how you can help bring beauty through planting to your community, write the California Association of Nurserymen, Public Relations Department, Post Office Box 8, Orinda, Calif. An informative booklet will be supplied free of charge.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Be sure that plants and shrubs in need of such protecton are properly staked against storm rains and winds to come.

✓ Keep fallen leaves raked as a disease-prevention measure and to prevent the suffocation of your lawn grass.

✓ This is a good time of the year for uprooting tired or overgrown foundation plantings and replacing them with more satisfactory shrubs. Heavenly Bamboo is one good choice.

✓ Autumn feedings of the lawn are the most effective of the year. Be careful to follow the directions of the manufacturer of the fertilizer.

✓ Once the rains begin, your grass can be cut slightly closer than during the dry summer months without the danger of browning.

✓ Keep up the fight against snails and slugs which will become more pestiferous with the start of the rainy season.

✓ Poinsettia plants can be moved indoors anytime now.

✓ Plant all spring-blooming bulbs this month and next. Tulips are better planted on the late side — in November and December.

✓ Pick fading blooms from rose bushes and you can encourage prolonged fall bloom.

WHEN YOU PLANT MARIGOLDS IN SPRING, PRAY FOR WHITE

The quest for the white marigold goes on.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co. of Doylestown, Pa., is still dangling a $10,000 reward before amateur and professional gardeners for the first seeds that produce a pure white marigold at least two and a half inches across.

The hunt has been going on since 1954.

Since then, hopeful gardeners have submitted more than 4,000 seed samples to Burpee's horticulturists.

Two hundred of those samples were test grown on Burpee's Floradale Farms in Lompoc this year. None produced a pure white flower. But two, from Arkansas and Kentucky gardeners, came close enough to earn their growers "consolation" prizes of $100 each from the seed company.

The company says that marigold growers seem to be coming closer to the goal, and that the $10,000 offer still stands.

Not incidentally, Burpee in its 1968 catalog for spring gardeners will offer two near-white varieties, Improved Hopeful and Miracle, that are the result of the search. Either could, the company suggests, produce the white marigold if climatic and genetic factors produced the necessary mutation.

After the white marigold and the square-shaped tomato (target of another scientific search), what? The purple dandelion?

Two Fine Bulbs That Belong Together

In any contest to pick the most "Perfect Pair" in the flower bulb world, Ranunculus and Anemones would win going away.

These two bulbs compliment each other in every way. A computer couldn't make a better match.

TAKE A LOOK at these facts and you'll see what we mean:

1. Ranunculus and Anemones both thrive in a sunny location.
2. Ranunculus and Anemones both are planted just a half-inch deep.
3. Ranunculus and Anemones both are planted from September to January.
4. Ranunculus and Anemones are both spaced six to eight inches apart.
5. Ranunculus and Anemones are both very easy to grow.
6. Ranunculus and Anemones both bloom from March to May.
7. Ranunculus and Anemones both reward you with armloads of huge bright glistening flowers from each bulb.

NOW WE DO find two slight differences in this "dynamic-duo," but they just seem to make the two more compatible.

First, Ranunculus grow about 18 to 24 inches tall, while Anemones are a little shorter at 12 to 20 inches.

This means that when you plant them together in a bed or border the Anemones should be in front and the Ranunculus in back.

Secondly, while Ranunculus come in a full spectrum of colors, ranging from the reds, roses, and pinks all the way through the oranges, yellow and whites, they do not produce any flowers in the blue or violet shades. Anemones, on the other hand, come in beautiful rich blue and violet shades as well as in reds, pinks, and white. So here again the two complement each other.

THROUGH YEARS of hybridizing it is now possible to obtain both Ranunculus and Anemones bulbs in separate colors as well as in a mixture.

When you plant an entire flower bed or border of Ranunculus and Anemones alone, certainly nothing is more spectacular than a two color combination. Just imagine how striking a bed of bright Gold Ranunculus and rich violet blue (Blue Poppy) Anemones would be next Spring when your garden bursts into bloom. Or you could use glistening White Ranunculus along with fiery Scarlet (His Excellency) Anemones; the number of breathtaking color combinations is almost unlimited.

IF YOU WANT to spot Ranunculus and Anemones here and there throughout the garden you should consider using the mixtures. The Ranunculus mixture contains both the seven separate colors, plus many bi-colors, tritones, blends and "in-between" colors that are real eye catchers.

There are two Anemones mixtures: the De Caen which produces huge single Poppy type flowers and the St. Brigid which has double and semi-double peony-type blooms.

The flowers of both of these mixtures are in a well balanced color range predominating in the Red, White, Blue, Rose and Pink shades and various two-tone blends of these colors.

Of all the bulb flowers in the world none can surpass Ranunculus and Anemones in the number of blooms produced per bulb, or the length of the blooming period.

One large jumbo bulb can put up as many as 100 flowers each season, while a medium sized bulb will average 35 to 50 flowers.

IF YOU'RE new to our area you may wonder why you have not heard of either Ranunculus or Anemones. The reason for this is simple and easy to explain. The weather conditions here are ideal for these two exciting bulbs, and in our climate they easily grow to perfection. This is the reason Ranunuculus and Anemones are now by far the most popular of all fall-planted bulbs in this area.

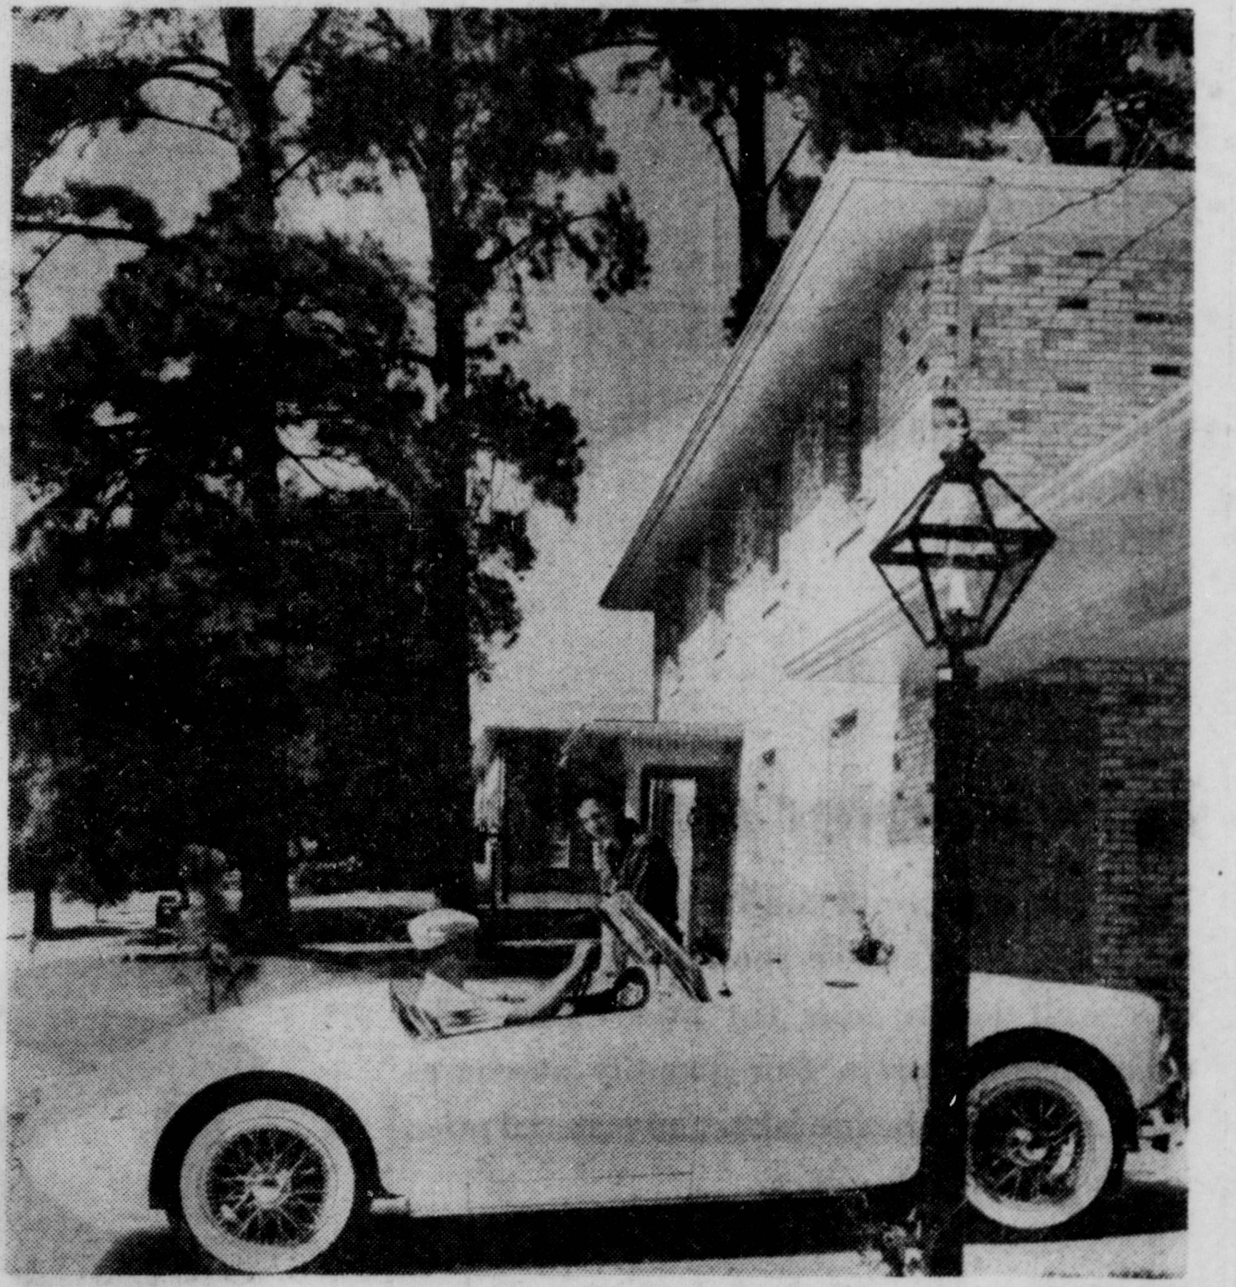
On the other hand, neither of these two bulbs can stand freezing temperatures, so unfortunately the gardeners in the East, Mideast and other colder areas cannot grow and enjoy the supreme beauty of this colorful team.

Borders Need Not Be Plants

Borders and edgings need not always be exclusively of plant material.

For instance, natural rocks may be brought in to define a border and then interplanted with a variety of rock plants, including wonderful little bulbs such as freesia and grape hyacinth, or spicy material such as thyme or Dwarf Pinks.

A New Era For The Gaslight



GASLIGHT LENDS a note of distinction to any driveway, patio, garden, pool or entry to a home. The fixtures blend with any decor. The flame is mellow and soft, creating an air of romance and hospitality. Furthermore, gaslight repels pesky insects, and requires very little in the way of care. They can be arranged to be turned on and off manually, by remote control, or automatically with special devices on the lamp itself. Despite the innovations, the flicker of gaslight remains as a reminder of the charm of another, slower more tranquil ear.

The Gardening Pages

WHEN YOU PLANT MARIGOLDS IN SPRING, PRAY FOR WHITE

The quest for the white marigold goes on.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co. of Doylestown, Pa., is still dangling a $10,000 reward before amateur and professional gardeners for the first seeds that produce a pure white marigold at least two and a half inches across.

The hunt has been going on since 1954.

Since then, hopeful gardeners have submitted more than 4,000 seed samples to Burpee's horticulturists.

Two hundred of those samples were test grown on Burpee's Floradale Farms in Lompoc this year. None produced a pure white flower. But two, from Arkansas and Kentucky gardeners, came close enough to earn their growers "consolation" prizes of $100 each from the seed company.

The company says that marigold growers seem to be coming closer to the goal, and that the $10,000 offer still stands.

Not incidentally, Burpee in its 1968 catalog for spring gardeners will offer two near-white varieties, Improved Hopeful and Miracle, that are the result of the search. Either could, the company suggests, produce the white marigold if climatic and genetic factors produced the necessary mutation.

After the white marigold and the square-shaped tomato (target of another scientific search), what? The purple dandelion?

Two Fine Bulbs That Belong Together

In any contest to pick the most "Perfect Pair" in the flower bulb world, Ranunculus and Anemones would win going away.

These two bulbs compliment each other in every way. A computer couldn't make a better match.

TAKE A LOOK at these facts and you'll see what we mean:

1. Ranunculus and Anemones both thrive in a sunny location.
2. Ranunculus and Anemones both are planted just a half-inch deep.
3. Ranunculus and Anemones both are planted from September to January.
4. Ranunculus and Anemones are both spaced six to eight inches apart.
5. Ranunculus and Anemones are both very easy to grow.
6. Ranunculus and Anemones both bloom from March to May.
7. Ranunculus and Anemones both reward you with armloads of huge bright glistening flowers from each bulb.

NOW WE DO find two slight differences in this "dynamic-duo," but they just seem to make the two more compatible.

First, Ranunculus grow about 18 to 24 inches tall, while Anemones are a little shorter at 12 to 20 inches.

This means that when you plant them together in a bed or border the Anemones should be in front and the Ranunculus in back.

Secondly, while Ranunculus come in a full spectrum of colors, ranging from the reds, roses, and pinks all the way through the oranges, yellow and whites, they do not produce any flowers in the blue or violet shades. Anemones, on the other hand, come in beautiful rich blue and violet shades as well as in reds, pinks, and white. So here again the two complement each other.

THROUGH YEARS of hybridizing it is now possible to obtain both Ranunculus and Anemones bulbs in separate colors as well as in a mixture.

When you plant an entire flower bed or border of Ranunculus and Anemones alone, certainly nothing is more spectacular than a two color combination. Just imagine how striking a bed of bright Gold Ranunculus and rich violet blue (Blue Poppy) Anemones would be next Spring when your garden bursts into bloom. Or you could use glistening White Ranunculus along with fiery Scarlet (His Excellency) Anemones; the number of breathtaking color combinations is almost unlimited.

IF YOU WANT to spot Ranunculus and Anemones here and there throughout the garden you should consider using the mixtures. The Ranunculus mixture contains both the seven separate colors, plus many bi-colors, tritones, blends and "in-between" colors that are real eye catchers.

There are two Anemones mixtures: the De Caen which produces huge single Poppy type flowers and the St. Brigid which has double and semi-double peony-type blooms.

The flowers of both of these mixtures are in a well balanced color range predominating in the Red, White, Blue, Rose and Pink shades and various two-tone blends of these colors.

Of all the bulb flowers in the world none can surpass Ranunculus and Anemones in the number of blooms produced per bulb, or the length of the blooming period.

One large jumbo bulb can put up as many as 100 flowers each season, while a medium sized bulb will average 35 to 50 flowers.

IF YOU'RE new to our area you may wonder why you have not heard of either Ranunculus or Anemones. The reason for this is simple and easy to explain. The weather conditions here are ideal for these two exciting bulbs, and in our climate they easily grow to perfection. This is the reason Ranunuculus and Anemones are now by far the most popular of all fall-planted bulbs in this area.

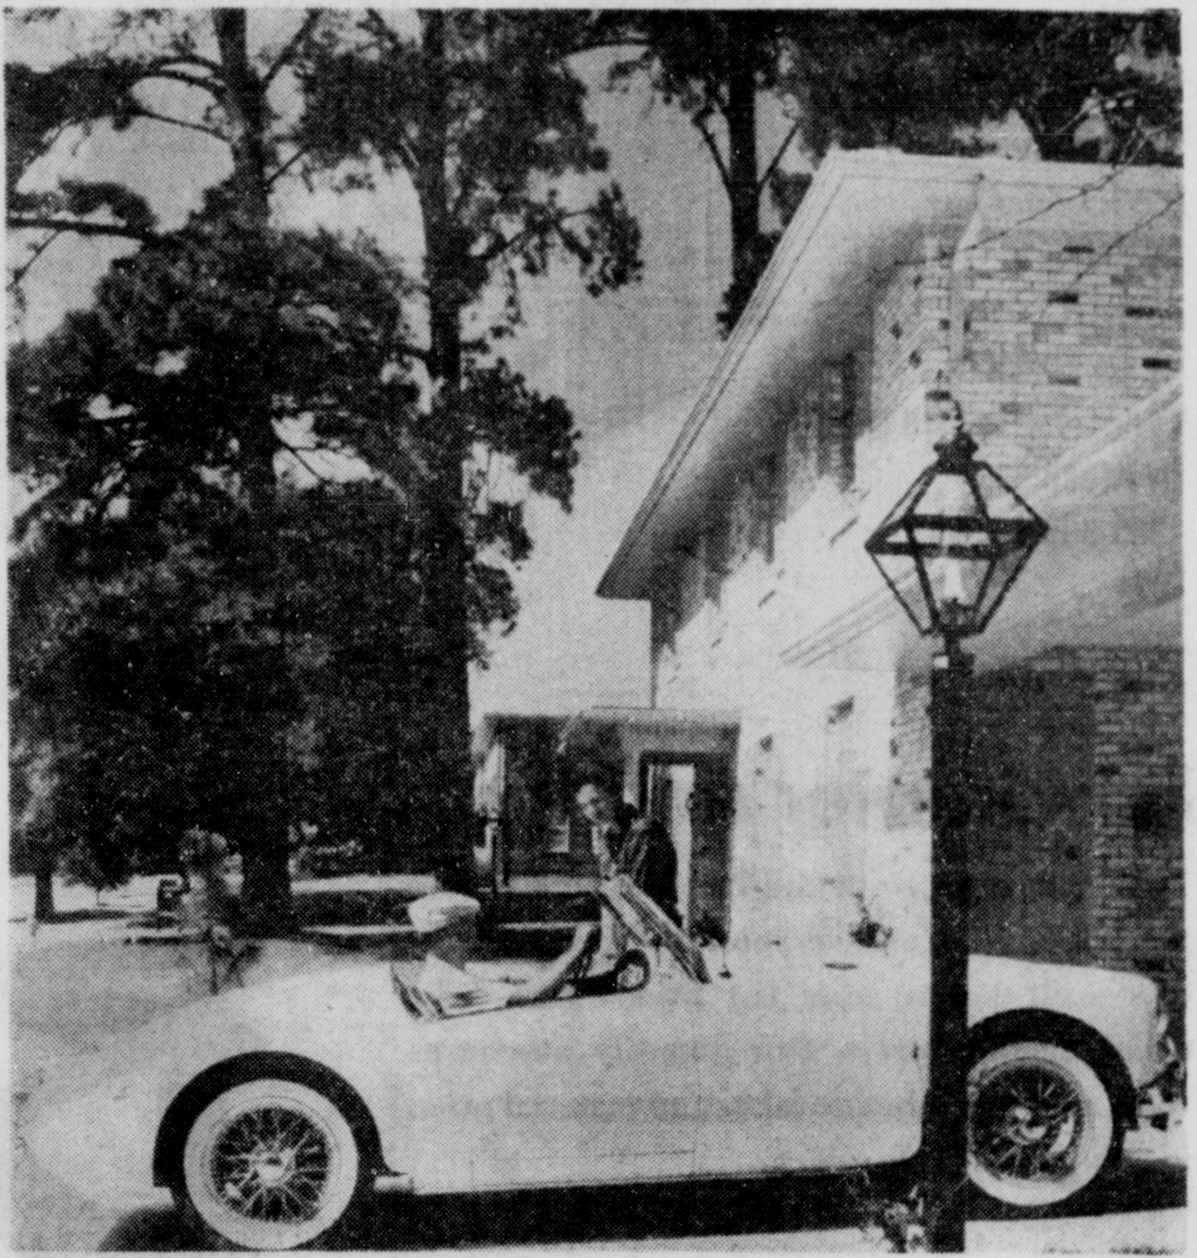
On the other hand, neither of these two bulbs can stand freezing temperatures, so unfortunately the gardeners in the East, Mideast and other colder areas cannot grow and enjoy the supreme beauty of this colorful team.

Borders Need Not Be Plants

Borders and edgings need not always be exclusively of plant material.

For instance, natural rocks may be brought in to define a border and then interplanted with a variety of rock plants, including wonderful little bulbs such as freesia and grape hyacinth, or spicy material such as thyme or Dwarf Pinks.

A New Era For The Gaslight



GASLIGHT LENDS a note of distinction to any driveway, patio, garden, pool or entry to a home. The fixtures blend with any decor. The flame is mellow and soft, creating an air of romance and hospitality. Furthermore, gaslight repels pesky insects, and requires very little in the way of care. They can be arranged to be turned on and off manually, by remote control, or automatically with special devices on the lamp itself. Despite the innovations, the flicker of gaslight remains as a reminder of the charm of another, slower more tranquil ear.

That Girl's Boy Friend Builds His Life Around The TV Show

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ted Bessell is that boy who co-stars with Marlo Thomas on "That Girl," but there is no specific girl in his private life, having recently undergone a marriage annulment.

He rattles around alone in a three-bedroom Encino home, overlooking the San Fernando Valley, which he described as "early shack."

THERE'S A swimming pool, too, but Ted is rarely in it. He is, in fact, seldom at home to enjoy the acre of land which surrounds his home, perfumed with orange and lemon trees.

During the television season Ted is up and away from his pad by 7 a.m., for long hours of rehearsal and shooting at Desilu Studios, a half-hour drive by freeway.

He makes no attempt at fixing his own meals, admitting, "I'm very bad in the kitchen. Everything I try to cook somehow gets burned."

HE STOPS AT restaurants late in the evening before turning into his driveway, usually long after dark.

TED BESSELL
No complaints

"I don't cherish the idea of coming home alone," Bessell says.

To avoid the empty house Ted frequently stops by to visit with his buddy Jerry Van Dyke, comedian brother of Dick Van Dyke, where Jerry's wife makes him sandwiches.

THE TALL, diffident actor breaks the monotony of his life by dating a variety of pretty girls, none of whom he is considering for a wife.

The ABC-TV series is Ted's third. He spent one season as a Marine with "Gomer Pyle," another in the ill-fated "It's a Man's World" and was a semi-regular in the defunct "Tycoon" series which starred Walter Brennan.

For whatever reason, Bessell chooses to remain as vague as possible about his private life. "It's a thing with me," he explains.

A NATIVE OF Flushing, Long Island, Ted meets occasionally with friends he knew back East and with whom he played lacrosse. But the six-footer prefers to play tennis on the public courts if he can't get out of town.

"The television show takes up so much of my time I just have to squeeze in the rest of my life around it," he concludes. "But I'm not complaining. If you're a TV actor you've got to expect to be dedicated. Fortunately, I am."
